NURSERY NOTES.

Don't pick the baby up every time it cries.

Never force a baby to sit up. It will sit up of its own accord when its spine and muscles are strong enough.

The baby's stomach is intended for food and drink. Avoid therefore giving medicines unless they are actually needed.

Never lift a baby by its arms, but under the arms. A child's arm is very easily dislocated, and lifelong injury may result from its dislocation.

A prominent physician claims that there will be no diphtheria or scarlet fever for children if they eat plentifully of onions every day, especially when there is a scarcity of fresh fruit.

Among the various causes for crossness of children are some very common ones, such as hunger or thirst, improper sleep, overeating, uncomfortable clothing and the pernicious feeding of sweets.

A very neat and useful powder puff is made in the following way: Cut a circular piece of flowered silk, run a casing near the edge and thread with ribbon. In the very center attach a small round puff that may be bought anywhere. Powder sprinkled on this now and then is all that is necessary, and the puff is washable.

A World of Dangers.

"Spiritous beverages," says Mrs. Cumrox, "have wrecked many happy dispositions."

"Yes," answered her husband, "and so have salad, ice cream and coffee taken after 10 o'clock at night."—Washington Star.

Hides in a Chimney.

An amusing story of a bookmaker's device to escape arrest was told at Liverpool, when John Cain, aged 28, was remanded, charged with keeping a betting house.

Three detectives went to the place on Saturday, and found Cain standing at the back door taking bets from two young men. When he saw the officers he ran in and fastened the door, having previously let a bull terrier loose in the yard.

The dog having been pacified, the officers burst in the door and searched the house, but Cain had mysteriously disappeared. After a long and patient search he was found up the chimney of an upper room.

Cain was quite out of sight, and it was only because soot was noticed in the fireplace that suspicion of the hiding place occurred. Detective Sergeant Whitley put his arm up the chimney and caught a boot. Cain was then carefully pulled down and taken into custody. He looked a sorry spectacle.

British Domestic Evils.

Divorces are, happily, rare in society circles. Separation by mutual consent, however, grows more frequent every year. Everyone has upon his or her visiting list husbands and wives who never meet if they can help it, but between whom there has never been an open breach. Incompatibility of temper is the usual cause, and the reason for that is one imagines, the still common custom of encouraging the younger generation to marry before they have begun to approach years of discretion.—London Throne.

An interesting Deed.

The librarian of St. Paul's, London, has in his keeping very many interesting documents, among others a deed of gift from King Ethelbert of a farm in Kent, which he made over to St. Paul's at a time when the cathedral was but an insignificant structure of wood. The rent from the land is received to this day.
