Life, Not Death.

There is much difference in the psychological effect of the two ideas "Life" and "Death." This was illustrated, says the writer of "Letters From a Surgeon," in the case of General Bartlett, who was wounded on the Fredericksburg, June 1864. General Bartlett was brought to the surgeon bleeding profusely from a wound in his head. He was unconscious and white as death. The surgeon called his name, but could not rouse him. Passing his finger into the wound, he found the ball had not penetrated the bone, but had simply cut an artery in the scalp. This the surgeon bound with a ligature. He laid the general on the ground and completed dressing the wound.

"No harm done, old boy," he shouted. "This is only a flesh wound. You will be all right when I take a stitch or two."

The good news seemed to bring General Bartlett to consciousness. He rallied completely.

"I thought I was done for," he said.

"Well, if I'm all right, here goes."

Before the surgeon could stop him he was in the saddle and riding at the best gallop of his horse back to the front again.

The Ways of the Moonshiner.

The ways of the moonshiner are pretty much the same everywhere. A suitable location consists of a secluded spot with water in abundance. It is important, should he ever be called upon to defend a case in court, for the question of the ownership of the land upon which the still is located, to be involved in doubt; hence the moonshiner gets as near the line of his own land or the land he controls as possible. The stills are primitive affairs and are often made complete in the neighborhood in which they are operated. With two or three square yards of sheet copper the still maker requires but a few hours to make the "biller." Home-made hogsties are usually used as fermenters, and the only thing that the illicit distiller has to send "off yander arter" is the worm. Being difficult to secure, the moonshiner prizes his "worm" highly, and that part of the distillery is usually taken away when the operator leaves.—David A. Gates in Metropolitan Magazine.

Origin of "Bluestockings."

Burke, apropos of "Evelina," paid Fanny Burney this high compliment: "We have had an age for statesmen, an age for heroes, an age for poets, an age for artists, but this—with a gallant bow to Fanny—is the age for women." The name "bluestockings," given to these distinguished women, arose, according to Fanny Burney in her "Memoirs of Her Father," from an apology made by Mr. Stillingfleet in declining an invitation of Mrs. Vesey's to a literary meeting at her house. "I am not properly dressed for such a party," he pleaded. "Pho, pho," she cried, taking him and his dress all in at a glance, "don't mind dress! Come in your blue stockings." This he did, and "those words ever after were fixed in playful stigma upon Mrs. Vesey's associations."—L. T. P.'s London Weekly.

What We Stand On.

The density of the earth as a whole has been estimated, with close agreement among the scientists who have made the determination by different methods, to be about 5.5, or five and a half times as heavy as an equivalent sphere of water. On the other hand, the average density of the materials forming the accessible parts of the earth's crust is between 2.5 and 3, so that the mean density of the whole globe is about twice that of its outer part. This indicates that the central part of the earth is composed of heavier materials and may even be metallic, which condition, says the Engineering and Mining Journal, would accord perfectly with the nebular hypothesis.

Nature and Broken Bones.

In the splinting of broken bones nature can give the best surgeon pointers. When a bone is broken the splintered ends are surrounded with cartilage until they are firmly held in position. Then gradually a layer of bone is placed between them and soldered together. All the physician has to do is to bring the two ends of the bones together so that the point will be smooth and even. Nature's little agents do the rest.

Taste Governs Spelling.

Shakespeare spelled his own name in sixteen different ways which have survived, and it is evident that Elizabethan spelling "depends upon the taste and fancy of the speller." It is the printing press which made spelling by stereotyping it, and it is, after all, on the printer's reader more than on the professor that the spelling of the future depends.—London Star.

Napoleon's Name.

The name Napoleon written in Greek characters will form seven different words by dropping the final letter of each in succession. When read, these words form a complete sentence, meaning, "Napoleon, the destroyer of whole cities, was the lion of his people."

Wrong.

"There is a word of one syllable in the English language that is always spelled wrong, even by the most educated people."

"What is that?"

"The word 'wrong.'"

Obviously.

"Let me see," mused the sporting editor. "What is an incubator?"

"An incubator," replied the agricultural editor, "is an egg plant."

Discouragement is but disenchanting egotism.—Mazzini.

DRESSING TABLE.

This One, Made From a Packing Box, Is Quite Attractive.

A dressing table made at home from an ordinary packing case is perhaps not a new idea, but one well worth remembering, and certainly here is a very charming result that may be had with the utmost simplicity of labor.

One of the sides of the case forms the top of the dressing table, the opening being in front and covered by drapery to hide the interior. Cloth should be stretched tightly across the top and tacked on around the sides of the box. The drapery around the two sides should also be tacked on.

PACKING BOX DRESSING TABLE.

Across the front two curtains should be arranged to slide on a small rod, or even a piece of wire stretched across the top of the opening.

When the curtains have been placed in position a small flounce should be fastened on with brass headed tacks. This flounce will hide the row of tacks which fastens the large curtains and gives a finishing touch to the dressing table which is really quite smart.

Some pretty material chosen perhaps to somewhat match the color of the wall decorations would look well, and the whole cost, including case, drapery, nails and everything, should not be very great.

Of course no dressing table is complete without a large mirror, and a secondhand one might be procured and stained to match the color of the material used to drape the case. Casters should not be forgotten and can easily be obtained.—New York American.

The Thin Woman.

First of all the thin woman who wants to gain flesh must stop worrying. She must eat little and often and drink milk between meals and at bedtime. Fruit in quantities must be a part of the daily diet, cereals, starchy and sweet vegetables, Irish and sweet potatoes, peas, corn and beans and salads of all sorts, not to mention bisque and cream soups. Hot water should be taken morning and night and hot, not boiled, milk in the same manner.

Nourishing Soup.

Take about one pound of shin of beef and cut into small pieces. Wash four ounces of pearl barley and put into saucepan with meat, also a small onion cut up very fine, a few potatoes, salt, pepper and a tomato. Pour over all this about three pints of cold water. Let it come to the boil, skimming carefully. It should then simmer for about three hours. Strain, add a little milk and boil up again.

Cleaning Clothes.

The best article to use for cleaning clothes is a piece of woolen cloth. If possible use a strip of the same cloth as the garment to be cleaned. Take a piece four inches wide and eight inches long and roll lengthwise. Fasten at the middle with a stout rubber band. Soak other end with gasoline and rub the article to be cleaned. This very simple device works like magic.

Weeds.

To give some idea of how weeds multiply it may be stated a single plant of pepper grass will produce 18,000 seeds; dandelion, 32,000; shepherd's purse, 37,000; wheat thief, 7,000; common thistles, 65,000; catnip, 16,000; ragweed, 5,000; purslane, 375,000; plantain, 47,000; and birdock, 43,000.

Paint.

If a tin of paint has to be left open, stir it thoroughly, so as to dissolve all of the oil, then fill up with water. When it becomes necessary to use the paint pour off the water, and you will find it as fresh as when first opened.

British Birds.

It is said that only two kinds of birds are absolutely peculiar to Britain. These are the red grouse and the coal tit.

A Correction.

Bertie—Father, what is an egotist? Father—He is a man who thinks he is smarter than any one else. Mother—My dear, you are scarcely right. The egotist is the man who says that he is smarter than any one else. All men think they are!
