TRIUMPHANT LAURIER.

Citizens of Ottawa Will Give Him a Great Reception Tonight--Premier Resting Today at Montreal.

Montreal, July 22—(Special)—Sir Wilfrid Laurier is having a quiet day here, after his triumphant journey up river, culminating in the gigantic celebration here Saturday night. This morning he went down the harbor on a formal inspection and this evening he leaves for Ottawa where another big reception awaits him. Ottawa, July 22—Arrangements for the reception of Sir Wilfrid Laurier have been completed. The premier arrives at 7 o'clock this evening. The demonstration will be of a non-political character and all parties will participate. An address will be presented by the mayor and city council. There are decorations not only at the railway station and city hall but all along the route to the premier's residence.

ALLEGED FIREBUG.

Hartland Resident Arrested for Firing that Village.

Hartland, N. B., July 22—Following the investigation into the origin of the fire of a week ago, Lorne McNally, a resident of this town, is in Woodstock jail. He was arrested on Saturday by a town constable and examined before Justice Barnett. The story he told in attempting to exonerate himself did not wholly satisfy the justice, and he was held for further examination. Several suspects are under surveillance and arrests will probably be made in a few days. McNally is a laborer. His arrest occurred in a peculiar way. Mrs. G. C. Watson, one of the victims of the fire, said to him jokingly, "McNally, I am surprised that you have set this fire." She thought he was exhibiting confusion at her words and her suspicions were aroused. The arrest followed.

PROF. MURRAY CHAIRMAN.

Former Member of U. N. B. Staff to Help Settle I. C. R. Strike.

Ottawa, July 22—(Special)—R. E. Finn, M. P. P. representing the west, and H. Holgate representing the Intercolonial in the freight handlers' dispute have selected Professor Walter Murray as chairman, and the minister of labor has appointed him. The board will proceed to deal with the matter tomorrow.

A bluejacket three sheets in the wind was creating a big disturbance on shore, and it was only after the sixth policeman had arrived on the scene that he was overpowered and handcuffed—the six afterward escorting him on board his ship. Saluting the officer of the watch as best he could, he reported: "Brought six policemen aboard, sir." "You mean they brought you on board." "Beg to differ, sir. I brought them, sir—I surrounded them, sir!"—Illustrated Bits.

MONTREAL'S OVATION.

Sir Wilfrid's Triumphant Progress Through the Commercial Metropolis.

CHEERING THOUSANDS GREETED THE PREMIER'S ARRIVAL.

Montreal, July 22.—The well worn proverb, "that peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," received a new setting Saturday evening from the magnificent demonstration that was given in honor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier upon his return from the colonial conference and his travels on the European continent. Political sentiment no doubt lent color to the unprecedented ovation that greeted the prime minister's home-coming, but there was something more than politics in the celebration, it was the expression of the admiration of a devoted people for a revered leader.

Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier arrived at Victoria pier and were at once greeted with an ovation which has rarely been equalled and never excelled. The first of the words of welcome were tendered at the wharf on behalf of the city by Alderman Lapointe and Alderman Sadler, members of the civic reception committee. Bands played and flags fluttered from all the principal buildings, and the citizens turned out in tens of thousands despite the uncertain weather, which was, certainly not favorable to an outdoor demonstration of such a character.

A SPONTANEOUS WELCOME. There was no political organization in the strict meaning of the term, although all the old time standard bearers were out. It was felt that it should be rather a spontaneous flow of appreciation on the part of the people than an organized display of a political character. Judges, lawyers, university professors, medical men, captains of industry and leaders of commerce were to be seen in the gathering that took possession of the river front. The horny handed sons of toil lined the thoroughfares in thousands. It was a brilliant display. The footbridge from Commissioners street to the ferry was illuminated by nearly 2,000 lights and upon the front were the words "Welcome, Sir Wilfrid, Bien Venue." On the two large sheds opposite King Edward pier were appropriate greetings and along the illuminated roof in red letters were the words, "The All-Red Line." Down below on the Mackay wharf, so that it should be seen by the premier and those who accompanied him, a bonfire blazed. On every hand were manifestations of rejoicing.

Upon leaving the Lady Grey the premier drove to the city hall and on reaching the front of the building was presented on the steps with three addresses, one on behalf of the city council by the mayor, on behalf of the board of trade, by President Caverhill, who, with Secretary George Hadrill, formed a delegation, and the third on behalf of the Chambre De Commerce by President Catelli.

AN OVATION TO SIR WILFRID. Tremendous cheers from the assembled multitude greeted Sir Wilfrid as he bowed to the mayor and commercial dignitaries and proceeded to express his acknowledgments. He first expressed his thanks for the most cordial welcome that had been accorded him, and proceeded to refer to the various points touched upon in the addresses that had been presented, on behalf of the city and its commercial organizations.

The premier evidently spoke under the influence of deep emotion, for the warmth of the greeting from so immense a crowd was something that no man with sensitive nerves and a finely strung temperament could regard with indifference. After the premier's reply to the address, a start was made for the Windsor Hotel. An immense procession formed into line, and headed by bands of music, accompanied the premier on his journey along Notre Dame, past Bonsecours, up St. Denis and along St. Catherine and Peel streets.

Upon the Windsor being reached, the premier once more bowed his acknowledgments and entered the hotel, accompanied by Lady Laurier.

CITY BONDS ARE DUE.

Great Opportunity for Financing Open to the Mayor.

The civic authorities will have some tall financing to do during the next few weeks, and considering the tightness of the money market the task before them is likely to be set with difficulties. The sum of $70,000 city debentures bearing interest at the rate of five per cent fell due, on Saturday and an effort is being made to redeem them with four per cent bonds but this far without marked success. City bonds are exempted from taxation and are undoubtedly a gilt edged investment. In days gone by they have sold above par, but the average price being obtained for the present issues is about 97 and investors are not falling over one another to secure them. The reason for this is apparent to anybody who understands the condition of the money market at the present time.

The local opposition organ, of which his Worship Mayor McLeod is a director, has set up a great howl because of the failure of Premier Robinson to float a loan in Montreal on terms satisfactory to the province and declares that the province is bankrupt. Nobody has ever hinted that the city is not in a good financial position, but what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and the Gleaner's contention is about as reasonable in one case as it would be in the other. Here is his Worship the Mayor for instance, a gentleman with political ambitions, who no doubt considers himself amply equipped to fill the position of provincial secretary. Why doesn't he take hold and dispose of the city bonds at par. It ought to be an easy matter if one is to believe what appears in the columns of his newspaper organ these days and it has been done before. The city has some $100,000 worth of four per cent bonds to sell, and the opportunity is open to his Worship to make a name for himself as a Napoleon of finance. If he doesn't accomplish something very soon his organ to be consistent will be compelled to call upon him to resign his office. It is up to His Worship to be on the look out.

THE KING'S PRIZE.

Australian Marksman Won Coveted Trophy at Bisley.

Montreal, July 20—A Bisley Camp cable says: Addison, of Australia, won the King's prize today, with Hope, a London volunteer, second, and Padgett, of the Yorkshire regiment, third. The winner's score was 818.

Padgett was at first declared the winner, having been allowed inadvertently to shoot an extra shot. This was thrown out. Only two Canadians qualified for the final stage, which consists of ten shots each at 800, 900 and 1,000 yards range and their totals were: Caven, 308; Milligan, 302. Caven stood 31st, and won £12. Pte. Milligan was 85th and will receive £5.

The highest possible aggregate score for the King's prize would be 355.

In the Singer competition Corp. Snowball, Ottawa, was second, winning £8 4 in the St. George's, Staff Sergeant Graham, Toronto, was 30th winning a badge and £8. Staff Sergeant Bayles, Toronto was 65th, winning £4, and Pte. Stevenson, of Ottawa, was 69th, winning £4.

J. S. Senator Tillman tells of an old Judge who held sway in South Carolina during the carpet-bag regime. This Judge's decisions were sometimes much at variance with established precedent, but he promptly silenced all objections by remarking: "Gentlemen, I am a-judging this here case, not something that happened a hundred years back. Anybody that don't like it can say so, and I will fine him for contempt."

It one day happened that two lawyers were talking in the hall of the Court House when the Judge passed them. One was just making a disrespectful allusion to a "fool judge," and the old fellow overheard it.

"You sir, how dare you speak in that manner in the hearing of me court?" he demanded. "I fine you $50 for contempt, sir."

"But your honor, I was not referring to this honourable court; it was a judge in Delaware that I meant," the man protested. "Don't contradict me!" the old man shouted, waving his stick. Everybody knows that when anybody says anything about a fool judge in this town he means me."
