STILETTO IN ENGLAND.

Revolver Is Growing In Favor as a Weapon.

Is the revolver becoming the stil-letto of England? The question is prompted by the recent appalling list of crimes committed by this cheap, easily-used and easily-procured weapon in England. The list might have been said to culminate in the murder of Mr. Whitley but for the fact that since then there is a case in which a young railway porter is charged with shooting and wounding a girl.

An Impulsive Age.

The tendency of the age is undoubtedly toward quick decisions and active measures. The old-time deliberate, non-impulsive habit of the Briton has been influenced by the restless energy of the day. In restless, badly balanced minds the sense of proportion is lost in the need for instant action. Many deeds of violence, done on quite inadequate grounds, are reported which never would have taken place if the perpetrator had had the patience calmly to consider whether or not a method of righting his wrong, real or fancied, was in proportion to the offence.

In many murder cases tried recently it has been shown that the deed had not been deliberately premeditated.
The offender seems to have provided himself with a revolver, so as to be ready for any emergency, just in the way the Italian seems to carry a stiletto.

Act Decreases Sales.

Extensive enquiries made revealed the surprising fact that the gunsmiths' trade is falling off in the sale of revolvers of at least two-thirds since the act of 1903 was passed. That act requires the production of a license or other authority by a would-be purchaser, while the seller has to keep a careful record. The act has diminished remarkably the shooting crimes by gangs of young ruffians, such as those who made Clerkenwell infamous a few years before it was passed, but has not prevented suicide or crimes in which passion of some kind acts as the spur.
There was a well-known case not long ago of a man obtaining a license to carry firearms from a postoffice, walking along to a gun shop, buying a revolver, proceeding a few yards farther to an hotel, smoke-room, and shooting himself. The series of events occupied about twenty minutes.

Rural Training Cause.

A suggestion was thrown out by a member of a leading firm of gunsmiths that it is, as a rule, the man who is country-bred who uses the revolver when he means to injure or destroy life.

"I think if these cases were investigated," he said, "it would be found that the men concerned had either had a country training or were in the habit of going out shooting. The pure-bred townsman knows nothing of weapons; he would sooner use a knife or poison. But the man who has lived in the country has seen or has engaged in the destruction of animals by firearms. He is familiar with them, and hence his liking for the revolver."

The view was supported by one of the leading detective officers, though it struck him as being novel. He would hardly call a case in which the man who shot to kill had not had country experience. Usually, however, it was slight. The true sportsman, if he commits suicide, uses one of his favorite guns, and hardly ever the revolver.

SCHOOLS VERSUS CRIME.

Elementary Schools In Great Britain Reduce Number of Criminals.

Since the year 1870 millions of money have been spent on elementary schools in Great Britain. Have the great results which were then anticipated been realized? It is very pleasant to note that the highest hopes of promoters of education thirty years ago are accomplished facts to-day.

In 1870 there were 29,000 people in jail, nearly 6,000 more than there had been ten years before. Now, though the population of the United Kingdom has increased by over fifty per cent., we have to-day only some 20,- 000 people in prison. That this good effect is due to our elementary schools is strongly suggested by the following table:

	1870. Present day.
Population	22,500,000 34,000,000
Number of persons under sixteen years of age	11,733 2,321
Total per 100,000 of the population	52 7

Photographs, again, will point out the improvement that has been brought about in Council School children's appearance.

Thirty years ago we saw forbidding little semi-savages, we now see clean, neat children, with happy and intelligent faces.

Proper Way to Churn.

The agitation in churning should be as violent as the form of churn will admit. Says Farm Progress. The churning is to be stopped while the butter is in the granular form. In order to have as thorough churning as possible the temperature of the cream should not be over 53 degrees.
The buttermilk should be drawn from the churn and the butter washed. The butter must be removed from the churn and salted while yet in the granular form. The amount of salt should be to the taste of the customer. For most people one ounce to the pound is required.

Bottled Love Letters.

Missouri girls are still throwing bottled letters into the Missouri river to see what will turn up. A year ago a Carroll county girl cast a message on the waters of St. Louis. Recently she received an answer from a young engineer in the employ of the Government river improvement service stationed a few miles below Memphis, Tenn. The letter stated that the bottle had been found in a crevasse by workmen engaged in the work of repairing the levee.—Kansas City Times.

The Gambler's Hands.

"That man is a 'night worker,' probably a faro dealer," said a detective to a friend as the two stood on a street corner the other afternoon, while the person alluded to by the detective passed by. "Know him?" asked the friend. "Not yet," replied the detective, "but I may later." "How do you know he's a faro dealer, then?" "I don't know it," was the reply, "but that he is in some such business is evident from the peculiar pallor of his face, which you may have noticed.
You wouldn't get that particular shade if you worked in a bank or at a desk all day long. It's the artificial light and the bad ventilation that do it, I guess. Keeping in the noise of the rattling chips keeps out the air in most cases, and those dealers work as steadily and as regularly as anybody else. Perhaps you noticed, too, that his hands were smooth and clean, in far better condition than yours or mine or the average business man's.
The professional gambler may not like his pallor, but he takes great pride in his hands."

A sharp tongue is the only edged tool that grows keener with constant use-triving.
