THE KAISER'S PRESENT.

Statue of William of Orange for British Nation.New York, March 12.—The Sun correspondent at Berlin sends the following cable dispatch:—A statue of William of Orange, who was William III. of England, which the Kaiser will present to King Edward a bronze figure nine feet high, will be shipped in June and an exact duplicate will be erected on the terrace of the royal palace at Berlin.According to the Dusseldorf sculptor, Heinrich Baucke, who is making both statues, the Kaiser first decided to send a duplicate to England when he saw the sculptor's rough sketch, exclaiming: "What a capital present that would make for Fritz!"His original idea was to send a miniature statue as a private present to King Edward, but the idea developed of sending a full-sized figure, which in the words of the Kaiser's written instructions is intended "for the British nation." A miniature model was presented to Queen Wilhelmina on her last birthday.Sculptor Baucke relates that the Kaiser spent three-quarters of an hour in his studio on his first visit of inspection criticizing the details of the historical dress given to the figure.

LITTLE HELPS

Make a belt of print to which suspend two holders to use on baking day.Set kettle of red-hot coal in cellar to prevent freezing.A piece of pumice stone is very useful about the sink for scouring kettles, spiders and beanpots.Powdered pumice stone applied with a damp cloth will keep nickle stove trimmings bright.
