BRETHREN IN UNITY.

The Church of England people of this city are to be commended in their action in extending an invitation to the clergy of other denominations to be present at the welcome to His Lordship Coadjutor Bishop Richardson, and the representatives of the other churches displayed an equally broad and tolerant spirit by their presence at the pleasant function.

The time has long gone by when there should be anything but the most friendly spirit among the different branches of the Christian Church.

All are laboring to the same end, and while there may be friendly rivalry, there should be also generous sympathy and cordial co-operation in the great work in which all the churches are striving, the extension of Christ's Kingdom on earth.

The Bishop Coadjutor takes up his new duties under singularly happy circumstances, and the cordial welcome he is receiving from all classes must cheer and animate him for his important work.

The public impression of him is that he is a broad minded man and this is borne out by his speech and general demeanour at the gathering in which he was so warmly welcomed among his own people and by others not of his immediate fold.

That he and those over whom he has been called to preside may find their relations pleasant, and their work progressive, is the kindly wish of all classes of the people.

The strength of the churches is in union, of sympathy and effort, and the world outside of the churches is quick to detect and recognize conditions among those who profess to be serving the Master, whether they are pleasant and unselfish, generous and broad, or marked by narrowness, selfish rivalry and disunion, leading to unseemly bickerings and quarrels. In few communities, however, have there been more kindly relations between the various churches than in Fredericton, and the gathering at the church hall will add to the generous and pleasant feelings which should always exist among those who take the lead in the evangelization of the people.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The proceedings of the annual meeting of the Fredericton Board of Trade will be read with interest.

The organization has important duties to perform, and does not shrink from discharging them, and while its membership is fairly large and representative, it should include every business and professional man in the city.

The board's attention has been attracted to the existence of unfair discrimination against Fredericton in the matter of freight rates and other questions in that line requiring adjustment and no doubt the committees to whom is entrusted the duty of looking into these matters will give them prompt attention.

An important offshoot of the board is the Tourist committee which has done excellent work for this city, giving much time and attention without hope or desire for personal reward.

The board is to be congratulated on choosing as its president an energetic citizen in the person of Mr. Dibble, who has been an active member for years, and in exhibition matters especially has sacrificed a great deal of his time.

The retiring president, Mr. J. J. Weddall proved himself an excellent officer, and is entitled to the thanks of the board and the citizens generally for the interest he took in the work.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

The Chatham World is urging the Northumberland Conservatives to organize. Evidently from the result of the last election they need it badly enough.

Rev. Mr. Cohoe, a prominent Baptist clergyman of St. John, says that his experience has taught him that nothing is gained for the temperance cause by personal abuse of the liquor dealers.

The Municipal council did a graceful act to the memory of an old friend and former colleague, by ad-

COLLINS MURDER TRIAL

First of the Kind in Albert for More Than Thirty Years--Prisoner Cheerful.

Hopewell Cape, N. B., Jan. 15.—For the first time in more than 30 years a murder case will be tried in the Albert County Circuit Court, which opened this morning at 11 o'clock, Judge Gregory presiding. The intense interest taken all over the country in the case of Thomas Collins, who is accused of murdering Mary Ann MacAulay at New Ireland, is shown by the immense throng already in the shiretown.

His case is eagerly discussed and as many think he will be acquitted as convicted of the charge.

No one ventures to predict the probable length of the trial, although that it will be a protracted one may be gathered from the fact that about fifty witnesses have been summoned in the case by both sides.

Sheriff Lynds says the prisoner is bright and cheerful and looks to the outcome of his trial with confidence. He is, he continued, supplied with most of the weekly papers. In one of these which he recently got, was the news that some ladies and gentlemen of Hillsboro had taken interest enough in his case to retain Hon. H. A. McKeown, of St. John for the defence. When this item met his eye, Collins asked the sheriff if he had noticed it and on receiving a reply in the affirmative the prisoner said that if it was over in his power he would do what he could to repay the kindness shown him.

Among the pursuits with which Collins beguiles the tedium of his confinement are drawing and shorthand. In both of these accomplishments the sheriff says he is now quite proficient.

journing their business to attend the funeral of the late Mr. B. A. Everett, who served several years in that body, with satisfaction to his constituents.

Our ambitious friend, the new warden of York, has at last reached one goal for which he had started, but in looking ahead to his desire to secure a place on the opposition ticket for the legislature, it is possible that his vision is obscured by the campaign of the St. Mary's physician, who disputes with the warden the latter's right for political preference in that line.

The members of the Municipal council miss the cheery greeting and level headed advice of their long time colleague, Coun. John C. Murray, who after thirty years good service in that body, is now unhappily laid aside by a physical affliction, which will prevent his taking a further share in the active business of life. The sincere sympathy of the council and the public generally goes out to the veteran Councillor Murray.

New Brunswick's present representation in the Senate is composed of Hon. F. P. Thompson, Hon. Geo. T. Baird, Hon. John Costigan, Hon. Daniel Gilmor, Hon. Josiah Wood, Hon. Peter McSweeney, Hon. P. Poirer, Hon. John V. Ellis, Hon. G. King and Hon. James Donville. The Conservative representatives are Messrs. Wood, Poirer and Baird. All the others are Liberals, and have been appointed since the Laurier government came into power in 1896.

Up at Toronto they have a hot dispute as to whether the big railway corporations should be allowed entrance to the city along the lake front, via Balmy Beach, and the Minister of Railways has been drawn into the controversy because of his official position. Some of the Toronto newspapers, notably The News, has rather censured Mr. Emmerson for certain action he has taken in the matter, but he is stoutly defended by the Globe's Ottawa correspondent, which leads the funny man of The News to observe: "The Globe's correspondent would have us believe that the back of Mr. Emmerson's overcoat shows two unsightly protuberances, caused by the sprouting of wings. We hesitate. No angel we ever met had curly hair."

ST. JOHN WEDDING.

Brother of T. Amos Wilson Married to Miss Farris.

St. John, Jan. 15.—(Special)—The wedding of Matthew Wilson, merchant tailor of this city, and Miss Elizabeth Farris took place at four this afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents 29 Brook Street, Rev. R. P. McKim conducted the ceremony.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left on the American express for a trip to Boston and New York.

Among the guests were the groom's brother, T. Amos Wilson of Fredericton and Mrs. Wilson.

NATIVES NOT FIT TO GOVERN CUBA.

Dr. Wilkinson, of Havana, Describes the Present State of Feeling on the Island.

Dr. A. S. Wilkinson of Havana, who has just come from the Pearl of the Antilles on a visit to his relatives, stated in an interview at Montreal, that discontent and dissatisfaction are again finding voice in the island of Cuba even before the withdrawal of the United States troops. "What is the cause of it now?" "Disagreement between the 'ins' and the 'outs'" was the reply. "No matter how large a number of 'ins' there may be, you are bound to have a proportion of 'outs' and it is the latter who are dissatisfied and are endeavoring to foment dissatisfaction. I am quite sure that when the United States forces are withdrawn insurrection will burst forth and will rage with renewed fury in all parts of the island."

"Do you think the troops really will be withdrawn?" Dr. Wilkinson was asked.

"It is, I believe, the intention of the authorities to withdraw them," was the reply. "But a great many people think they ought to stay. There are doubts of the possibility of life and property being protected or of a stable government being established without the United States being firmly behind it."

"Of what nationality are the people who think that way—Americans?"

"No, not Americans; but foreigners of all kinds who have interests here."

"Do you know anything of the Cuba railway?"

"You mean the railway that spreads itself all over the island? Well, yes I know it. I should think the people who own the Cuba railway would be glad to too, if the American troops remain."

"They are mostly Americans, are they not?"

"No, they are as much English as American—in fact, I think more so. All that sentiment about the Cubans being allowed to govern themselves is rubbish. They are not fit to govern themselves and seriously doubt if they ever will be fit."

BE HIS FRIEND.

The Wife Who Is Her Husband's Comrade Has Little to Fear.

Marriage isn't a set of rules. It is a condition of life made by the characters of the two people who enter into it. There are homes that seem of a deadly dullness, fit to drive any man abroad. There are women whose daily conversation consists of nothing but complaint about servants and housekeeping and nerves and the press of engagements and disappointing dressmakers, complaints of lack of money or complaints of the strain of shopping with it. There are women who are too absorbed in their children to consider the children's fathers, women who have no knowledge of their husbands' business lives beyond the fact that those husbands forget the commissions given them in the morning and are too tired in the evening to want to go out anywhere, a scathing fact which somehow appointments of its own. You'd think it might leave other folk and their concerns alone. But, no, it hurries one to school, to bed—

To interfere with grown up folk in all of their affairs!

The wife who is her husband's comrade has little to fear. It is one of the greatest factors in keeping him always hers, that of being friends with him, in being truly interested in all he does and plans and wishes for and having the comrade sense of humor that can always laugh at his jokes and make merry by the way instead of taking account of everything with terrible seriousness. If you can smile openly with him at his fancy for another and even tease him a little about it, the fancy isn't likely ever to amount to very much. What is forbidden is, we know, always more tempting. Many and many a situation has been saved because a wife was so true a friend to her husband that she persistently refused to regard it seriously.—Mary Stewart Cutting in Harper's Bazar.

Dressing in White.

Frau Liebreich, a wealthy resident of Munich, is convinced that girls who wear white dresses get married sooner than girls who wear all sorts of colors. Accordingly she has organized a "league of white women" among her friends, the members of which undertake to wear pure white for all important and ceremonial functions. In her address to the first members of the guild, some twenty fair maids of Munich, Frau Liebreich is reported to have said: "I loved my husband before he loved me, and he returned my affection only when he saw me accidentally in a white dressing gown. White is a symbol of pure love and thus appeals to the better half of the male creation. The plainest girl dressed in white will conquer hearts more rapidly than a beauty who stoops to the meretricious attractions of a hundred hues."

VIRTUE IN COPPER.

The Metal Is a Death Dealer to All Disease Germs.

"Copper is a marvelous preventive of disease. If we returned to the old copper drinking vessels of our forefathers, typhoid epidemic would disappear."

The speaker, a filtration expert, took a copper cent from his pocket.

"Examine this cent under the microscope," he said, "and you will find it altogether free from disease germs. Examine gold and silver coins, and you will find them one wriggling and comforting germ mass. Yet copper coins pass through dirtier hands than gold and silver ones. You'd think they ought to be alive with micro-organisms. But no. Copper kills germs. Diphtheria and cholera cultures smeared on a copper cent die in less than two hours."

"They have many cholera epidemics in China, but certain towns are always immune. These towns keep their drinking water in great copper vessels. Travelers have tried to buy these vessels, for they are beautiful. They have a superstition that their health and welfare depend on their retention. I wish all superstitions were as true and salutary as that."

Rear Admiral Denison.

Capt. John Denison, A. D. C., recently gazetted Rear-Admiral, with seniority of Sept. 13, is a brother of Lieut.-Col. George T. Denison of Toronto. He was born in Toronto in 1853, and educated at Upper Canada College. Later he joined the Britannia training ship, and in April, 1867, entered the Royal Navy as a cadet. His rise there has been rapid. He attained midshipman's rank in 1869, was made sub-lieutenant in 1873, lieutenant in 1878 and commander in 1891. Five years later he won his captain's commission, and was placed in charge of H. M. S. Firebrand in the China fleet. There he remained for four years, and was subsequently given command of the Gossamer and of the Anson. In May, 1893, he was selected to command the royal yacht Victoria and Albert and in 1897 was appointed captain of the Laconia, a cruiser of the first class. Now, at the age of fifty-three, he has succeeded in attaining the rank of rear-admiral.

What Is It?

There lives a perfect chatterbox upon the mantel shelf;
It talks and talks the livelong day, though only to itself.
When not at rest is in the room, I've very often found.
"Twill tattle tattle ever on in one unceasing round.
You'd think 'twould be content to keep appointments of its own;
You'd think it might leave other folk and their concerns alone,
But, no, it hurries one to school, to bed—
To interfere with grown up folk in all of their affairs!
