An Absolute Cure for Rheumatism

If the skin or bowels are unhealthy, they won't throw off enough urea. This urea is changed into uric acid—carried by the blood to the nerves—and causes Rheumatism.

Fruit-a-lives surely cure Rheumatism and Sciatica

TORONTO GIRL ALLEGED TO HAVE FORGED CHECKS.

Said to Have Passed Them in Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton—Had Many Aliases and Rich Friends.

Toronto, Jan. 7.—Savoring more of a fiction than reality, the story of Grace Cameron's remarkable career is being rapidly compiled by Detective Sergeant Duncan, and it promises to be one of the most astounding stories that adorn the pages of the police annals of Toronto. From Montreal, Buffalo, Hamilton and even New York and Chicago, episode after episode of her bogus cheque and nocturnal adventures are coming into the hands of the detectives, and in each instance her trail is marked with forged cheques, to such an astonishing extent that even the police marvel that none of her depredations in these cities did not land her sooner.

In Toronto she appears to have shone with extraordinary success, being treated, it is said, by many noted citizens with ceremony that might be accorded a princess. An intimate of a millionaire, the confidante of a well known lawyer in town, posing on several occasions at a Montreal hotel as his wife, and she claims an acquaintance with every legal and medical man of any importance in the city. She avows that she is conversant with all of Charles McGill's affairs, even to his speculations.

In the police court Saturday morning she was ushered into the courtroom by Detective Mackie and placed in the dock with her sister, Ruth Wilson, after all the other prisoners had been disposed of.

The magistrate read the charges one after the other. Miss Cameron listened to the dull tones with a scarcely concealed expression of ennui.

THREE CHARGES.

Three charges were read against her, alleging the forging of names of W. H. Knowlton, Dr. F. Winnett and Dr. P. E. Doolittle, to cheques of $15 each.

A plea of election is not necessary and I should like your worship to remand her until the 11th," said Crown Attorney Corley.

Pouting and smiling, Miss Wilson sat in the dock and looked around the court. She was charged with attempting to defraud John Pettigrew, a grocer at Queen street and Brook Avenue, of $15, by means of a worthless cheque.

Both women were then arraigned on the charge of trying to defraud C. W. Coxwell, grocer, 171 Broad street, by means of a worthless cheque, and it was this attempt that led to their undoing.

HAD MANY NAMES.

Saturday afternoon Miss Cameron was questioned about her many

MYSTERIOUS THOUGHT-READINGERS.

The Zancigs Astound the King and Royal Family.

London Daily Mail.—Mr. and Mrs. Zancig, the marvellous thought-readers, whose wonderful performances have already been recorded in these columns, appeared on Boxing Night at Sandringham before the King and Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the royal children, and a large and brilliant Christmas house party.

His Majesty commenced the entertainment by selecting a very difficult passage from a scientific book taken at random from one of the shelves.

This was read off by Mrs. Zancig—who was at the far end of the saloon, concealed by a Japanese screen—with the greatest ease, as if she had been reading from the book.

In order that there could be no deception and no collusion between Mr. and Mrs. Zancig, a young Princess stood behind the screen.

The Queen then wrote in Danish the following words, "I hope you have had a merry Christmas." Mrs. Zancig read this off in her native tongue with great alacrity and to the great amusement of all present.

Mrs. Zancig was next conducted into one of the adjoining chambers, an intermediary door near the door to pass the word "Ready," and when the word was passed she was shut out, and Mrs. Zancig reproduced on the slate, not only a word written on another slate held by one of the Royal Family, but actually the identical handwriting.

When the entertainment was over the King and Queen cordially shook hands with Mr. and Mrs. Zancig and complimented them highly on their magnificent exhibition of skill. The King said it was as great a mystery as ever to him, and her Majesty, speaking in Danish, assured Mrs. Zancig that she had never seen anything like it.

WILL REBUILD NAVY.

Russian Emperor to Launch New Programme.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 8.—The re-organization of Russia's shattered sea force, lately practically at a standstill by reason of the powerful clique which is fighting to prevent the pitching into the naval scandal of the Grand Ducal regime, to which the defeat of the Russians at the battle of the Sea of Japan is largely attributed, has lately received an impetus through the personal interest of the emperor.

At a recent conference of the highest naval authorities, summoned personally by the emperor, and presided over by himself, his Majesty advised the officers to speak with the utmost frankness. For the first time he was informed of the full extent of the corruption responsible for defeats at the hands of the Japanese. A proposal to adopt the German plan of naval administration was rejected as untimely because it would be regarded as withdrawing the confidence of parliament, but those present at the conference gathered that the emperor was fully determined to put through a complete naval programme. This programme will be elaborated as soon as the finances of the empire permit.

NOVA SCOTIAN'S DEATH.

Halifax Officer who Commanded Gordon Highlanders and had Good Record.

Halifax, Jan. 8.—News was received yesterday of the death in London Eng., of Lieut. Col. H. King Stewart, C. M. G., late of the Gordon Highlanders, and eldest son of Lieut. Col. Stewart of this city. By a recent mail his father received word of his serious illness, the letter stating that his condition was such as to cause solicitude. This was speedily followed by the news of his death.

Colonel Stewart's career since he entered the army had been one of continuous advancement and distinction. He was educated in England, entering the British army and marrying about nineteen years ago, Gertrude, daughter of Lieut. Col. Romilly, of London. She, with one son, survives him. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. W. B. A. Ritchie, and a brother, Charles Stewart, both of this city. Colonel Stewart was 41 years of age. Since leaving the Gordon Highlanders he has been in the employ of the foreign office.

The ready wit of a true-born Irishman, however humble his station, is exceeded only by his gaudy. A gust of wind took a parody out of the hands of its owner. An Irishman dropped his hod of bricks, caught the parachute in the midst of its ascent and presented it to the owner with a bow.

"Faith, ma'am," said he as he did so, "if you were so strong as you are handsome it wouldn't have got away from you."

"Which shall I thank you for first?" asked the lady, "the service or your compliment?"

"Troth, ma'am," said Pat again, touching the place where once stood the brim of a hat, "that look of your beautiful eyes thanked me for both."

"He-O, please, Miss. Jeane do not call me Mr. Durand."

"She (cooly)—O, but our acquaintance is so short. Why should I not call you that?"

"He-Well, chiefly because my name is Mr. Dunont."

THE SPIRIT APPRECIATED.

Mrs. Guzzler.—Oh, Henry, see what Mrs. Nextdoor has sent you—a jar of branded peaches.

MR. Guzzler.—Well, I don't care much for the preserves, but you can tell her that I appreciate the spirit in which they were sent.

A BAD REPORT.

"My! but there must be something awful the matter with the Missus," said the chambermaid. "Consoption, mayhap."

"Why do you say that?" demanded the cook.

"I jist heard the doctor tellin' her that her lungs is 'normal.' Don't that sound turrible?"

Hon. Chas. Hyman is in Southern California. His health has not improved very much and so far as can be learned the premier's letter asking him to reconsider his resignation has not been delivered to Mr. Hyman.
