THE SPOILS SYSTEM.

Tory Paper Issues a Word of Warning to Mr. Hazen.

The Montreal Star, Conservative, offers some advice to Mr. J. D. Hazen.

The Star deprecates the idea of any reputable government being influenced by such short-sighted resolutions as the one passed by the Albert County Conservatives a few years ago. The adoption of such a course would have only one ending. We draw Mr. Hazen's attention to the Star's comments, which appear under the heading "An Incredible Resolution."

"The Albert County Liberal-Conservative Association is credited with having passed a resolution calling upon the Hazen government to dismiss all who were appointed to office in New Brunswick by the late defeated government and urging that the positions thus vacated be filled by supporters of S. Hazen. We hope that it will turn out that no such resolution was ever passed. It seems almost incredible that a political association, depending upon popular support, should adopt such a resolution and permit the face to become known, even if, as individual politicians, they were inclined to press just this policy upon the new government."

"But assuming that such a resolution was adopted, the Hazen government will be well advised if they throw it into the waste-paper basket when it is sent them. No government which yields to the 'spoils system' can long command the confidence of the people, and a government which loses the support of this influential and growing portion of the electorate cannot long stand. Government of the people for the people has become outdated in this country. The frank distribution of the 'spoils of office' among the soldiers and the camp-followers of the successful party will alienate far more votes than it will satisfy and will seriously discredit the reputation of the government in question among the people who count."

"Mr. Hazen's government—especially as it is likely to be a coalition government in the federal sense, should eschew party politics and all its ways. It should endeavor to give the province good government and to forget whether an office-holder or a man who is spoken of for office voted for or against its party at the late elections. Mr. Whitney's government has got into a gash deal of trouble with its followers for its refusal to let in the wolves among the civil servants, but it has gained by its steadiness far more heavily amongst the thinking section of the electorate."

HEROS TO BE PROUD OF

What The "Black" Race Has Done For English Arms

Although since he has held the position of Register of Deeds he has strictly and conscientiously obeyed the Garrow resolution, time was when there was no more picturesque figure on the party political platform than Mr. Peter Ryan. A hard hitter and a keen, resourceful debater, he was a formidable opponent, though, because he fought fair and never hit below the belt, he never lost a friend nor made an enemy. Pages might be filled with anecdotes well worth the telling, of his campaign experiences. Here is a sample:

During the contest in Central Toronto in 1882, when the late Robert Hay, and the late Sir J. D. Edgar were the candidates, the colored vote in the ward was an important but somewhat doubtful factor. One Sunday a number of prominent Liberal workers called on Mr. Ryan and urged him to attend a colored people's meeting, which was to be held that night. Though he did not hanker for the job, Mr. Ryan consented on the condition that they would not ask him to speak. But man proposes, etc. Hardly had Mr. Ryan and his friend been seated when, the colored eloquence having become exhausted, the chairman called upon Alderman Ryan (he was a city father then). There was nothing else for it, and the alderman had to go forward.

First, he expressed his pleasure, even his delight, at being present with his colored friends, more especially since his "race" and theirs had much in common. Both had suffered grievously at the hands of the

Some people may be bigger fools than others, but they will have to prove it before we believe it.

MONTREAL, March 19.—Word comes from La Tuque telling of a quarrel which will probably have fatal results. Francois Lacroix, seventy years old, living at La Tuque, was the victim. It is charged that Lacroix, who is a very feeble old man, called on a neighbor and during the visit a quarrel arose. Lacroix's neighbor seized a can of lye and threw it over him. The alkali has eaten its way to the bones from the waist down, and no possible hope of the old man's recovery is entertained by the doctors.
