THE KOOKABURRA.

Australia's Laughing Bird and Its Startling Cry.

To the outside world the greatest ornithological oddity in Australia is the kookaburra. Though Australians take little notice of it except occasionally in a hostile way, its exclamation appeals irresistibly to the newcomer. Like the shrieks and parrots, the curlew and the mopeke, it is a conspicuous figure in the scenery of a typical bush home and therefore too common to be worthy of notice. In earlier times it was known as the "settler's clock" from a belief that its joyful peacocks were vented regularly at noon, noon and dusk, being quiescent through the heat of the forenoon and the wane of the afternoon. That belief has long been shattered. The kookaburra laughs just when the fit takes it, particularly when excited, and it laughs as readily at the violent death of its mother-in-law as it does at the enraged settler when he falls off his haystack. A wounded bird makes a demoniacal row, which will bring all others within hearing into the neighboring trees, and these at once set up an echoing cackle that is repeated again and again.

The kookaburra is also known as the laughing gobbler and the laughing jackass.—Sydney (Australia) Times.

SELLING CLOTHING.

Old Time Ways and Those of the Present Day—Traveling Model.

Time was when the travelling salesman for a wholesale manufacturer of men's clothing carried with him on the road as many as fifteen or twenty trunks containing made up samples. In those days he took along with him an expert packer from the factory to unpack the trunks when they hit a town and to pack them in readiness for the next jump.

The present day traveler for a wholesale manufacturer of men's high grade clothing carries with him just two sample trunks, one a wardrobe trunk and the other what is called a swatch trunk. In the wardrobe trunk he carries suspended on suitable hangers fifteen or twenty made up suits. Carried thus, these sample garments keep in good condition and show for what they are and to the best advantage.

In the swatch trunk the salesman carries samples of all the other fabrics that his concern is making up. Swatch is a trade name for a sample cloth 9 by 12 inches. Of swatches the salesman may carry hundreds, and he carries besides some scores of ends of cloth, an end being a long piece cut off the entire width of the cloth.

Of swatches and ends the salesman has a trunkful, and with fifteen or twenty made up suits to show styles and workmanship and those samples to show fabrics he can show goods to better advantage than from a bewildering assortment of hundreds of made up suits.

Of course the man on the road with clothing does not in these circumstances require a packer, but the present day traveler for a concern making only high grade clothing does take with him a model on whom to exhibit clothes for the better display of the made up sample garments he carries and to show just how they will look when worn.

What is considered the standard model in the clothing trade is a man five feet eight inches in height, thirty-six inches chest measure and thirty-two inches waist. He must of course be well built and otherwise of correct proportions: If a model five feet nine inches in height were required he would need to be thirty-seven inches chest measure and thirty-three waist. The model must be young or comparatively young. He does not need to be handsome, but he must be of good bearing, of intelligence and of good sense.

If the salesman is an able man and the model himself is a man with ability in him, then by observation and experience the model absorbs and develops the art of salesmanship, and he may become a salesman himself and come to have a model to try on clothing for him.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Diamond Back Terrapin.

The government fishery experts declare that less than 20,000 of real diamond backs are in existence in and about the Chesapeake and that the toothsome reptiles are eagerly purchased at prices ranging from $175 to $200 per dozen. The rivers, creeks, marshes and inlets of the Chesapeake territory fairly swarmed with diamond back terrapin forty years ago, some of them fully twelve inches across the shell. None of these is ever seen now. Eight inch terrapin are like pound gold nuggets. Negroes made a precarious living in the old days selling diamond backs to farmers at 50 cents the barrel for hog feed. A barrel of eight inch terrapin would now easily bring $1,500.—Exchange.

Is the Earth Drying Up?

That the depopulation of the earth will be brought about through the failure of the water supply is the conclusion reached by the French geologist M. Martel. He has made observations of subterranean caverns and says that the earth is gradually drying up. They contain, he says, not only the secret of prehistoric life, inasmuch as they were the homes of men of the remotest age, but also bear indications of the endless future. M. Martel has found proof of a steady fall in the level of the water in these subterranean depths, and from these facts he arrives at his conclusions.

BODIES RECOVERED.

Sea Gave up its Dead After Some Months.

GLACE BAY, N.S., June 9.—(Special)—The body of a man supposed to be Michael Morrison, who disappeared from his home here last January, was found floating in the harbor here last night. He was about thirty-five years old and unmarried.

About three o'clock this morning the body of a young man, who has been identified as Clifford Murphy, about twenty-five or thirty years old, was found lying on the shore here. He left here in January for his home in Halifax, the other from his sister on his person, one from his mother in Halifax, the other from his sister in Boston. About twelve dollars in cash was also found on him. He was identified by the letters.

SACKVILLE DEATH

Secretary of Charles Fawcett Company Passed Away this Morning.

SACKVILLE, N.B., June 9.—(Special)—The death took place here this morning of Walter Fowler, secretary of the Charles Fawcett Manufacturing company, and one of Sackville's most prominent citizens.

Deceased was fifty-five years old and had been secretary of the Fawcett company since its incorporation, entering the employ of the late Charles Fawcett in 1885. Heart trouble was the cause of death. Deceased is survived by a wife, formerly Miss Fawcett, sister of the late Charles Fawcett, and by two sons, J. Edisworth Fowler, and Roy Fowler.

Pulling the Eagle's Tail.

I knew an Indian, Yellow Eagle, who in order to get his coup feather dug a hole in the ground on the open prairie far from camp or habitation. Over it he fixed a covering of brush, upon which was laid the carcass of a freshly slain antelope. In this trap he lay for three days awaiting the eagle's coming. When at last, lured by the bait, one did alight he seized it from below, and despite its flapping and clawing and pecking he plucked the precious feathers before freeing the astonished and terrified bird. I recall none but the American aboriginal who has been able successfully to pull the American eagle's tail.—Army and Navy Life.

Landseer and the Dog Tax.

On one of Landseer's early visits to Scotland the great painter stopped at a village and took a great deal of notice of the dogs, jotting down rapidly sketches of them on a piece of paper. Next day on resuming his journey he was horrified to find dogs suspended from trees in all directions or drowning in the rivers, with stones around their necks. He stopped a weeping urchin, who was hurrying off with a pet pup in his arms, and learned to his dismay that he was supposed to be an excise officer who was taking notes of all the dogs he saw in order to prosecute the owners for unpaid taxes.

His Inference.

Craggs—Did you tell Simpers you thought I was a man without any balance? Butts—Well, I naturally inferred that if you had a balance you would draw on it for the amount you owe me.

His Preference.

Nurse—Come indoors at once, Master Richard, and be a good boy. You won't go to heaven if you're so naughty. Master Richard—I don't want to go to heaven. I want to go with father!—London Sketch.

Life, Not Death.

There is much difference in the psychological effect of the two ideas "life" and "death." This was illustrated, says the writer of "Letters From a Surgeon" in the case of General Frank Bartlett, who was wounded on the Fredericksburg pike in 1864. General Bartlett was brought to the surgeon bleeding profusely from a wound in his head. He was unconscious and white as death. The surgeon called his name, but could not rouse him. Passing his finger into the wound, he found the ball had not penetrated the bone, but had simply cut an artery in the scalp. This the surgeon bound with a ligature. He laid the general on the ground and completed dressing the wound.

"No harm done, old boy!" he shouted. "This is only a flesh wound. You will be all right when I take a stitch or two."

The good news seemed to bring General Bartlett to consciousness. He rallied completely.

"I thought I was done for," he said. "Well, if I'm all right, here goes."

Before the surgeon could stop him he was in the saddle and riding at the best gait of his horse back to the front again.

The Ways of the Moonshiner.

The ways of the moonshiner are pretty much the same everywhere. A suitable location consists of a secluded spot with water in abundance. It is important, should he ever be called upon to defend a case in court, for the question of the ownership of the land upon which the still is located, to be involved in doubt; hence the moonshiner gets as near the line of his own land or the land he controls as possible. The stills are primitive affairs and are often made complete in the neighborhood in which they are operated. With two or three square yards of sheet copper the still maker requires but a few hours to make the "biller." Homemade hogsheads are usually used as fermenters, and the only thing that the illicit distiller has to send "off yander arter" is the worm. Being difficult to secure, the moonshiner prizes his

A cento is a coat made of patches. In literature it is a poem made up of lines or passages from different authors and put together so as to make a new poem with a new meaning of its own.

The Presidential Salute.

The American presidential salute is 21 guns, as is the English royal salute, but the reason why just 21 guns are fired is obscure. Antiquarians have put forth different theories as to this. One states that seven was the original salute, but that in England this was given three times, once for Scotland, once for Ireland and once for England. Some declare that the American salute is 21 guns because the sum of the numbers 1, 7, 7, 6 (the year of the Declaration of Independence) is 21.—Minneapolis Journal.
