Queen Lurline's Wishes—and Mine

By INA WRIGHT HANSON

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

At the fancy dress ball the profile of Queen Lurline pleased me greatly, a beautiful line from the gold banded, gem decked forehead to the piquant chin where I remembered years before a dimple had lurked.

"Your chin is charmingly the same," I murmured, bowing low before her.

"And your cheek, Gordon Bell."

I laughed. Slang from the lips of royalty is delightful; also I was pleased that she had recognized me. I looked with distaste at the crowds.

"Do you know a bank whereon the wild thyme grows?" I asked seductively.

"I do. Let's find it."

It was down by the lake, and over and around was moonlight, caressing Lurline's face, and making her eyes glow like the gems in her dark hair.

"It has been nine years," she said presently.

"Nine years, two months and a day," I corrected. "Have you received your money's worth?"

"I suppose so," she answered, colorlessly. "I used to think if I could have a gold watch and a piano I should be to dance a stupid polka with the wicked prince."

I saw her the next day and the next and the day after. We reveled in reminiscences of the time when we were boy and girl together before the eccentric and rich Mrs. Van Houter, struck by the orphan's great promise of beauty, had adopted her. I was fairly carried away with Lurline's charms, but I prided myself on my strong will, and she did not know how my arms ached to hold her.

When we were together she was not at home to the prince, for which I was duly thankful, but I exerted all my energies toward making her realize the horror of a union with him. She would not argue, neither would she promise to refuse him. At last I appealed to Mrs. Van Houter.

"It is not right of you to let the child sacrifice herself!" I blazed.

Mrs. Van Houter regarded me lazily. "Would you mind telling me why you don't want Lurline to marry the prince?"

"He is a wreck, physical and moral," I answered, trying to keep cool. "He is a drunkard. I should think these are sufficient reasons."

"Have you told them to Lurline?"

"Yes, but she is blinded by her gratitude to you. A young girl cannot realize what it means anyway."

"Have you no other reason, Gordon?"

I felt my face grow hot. "I think you know there is. If it weren't for your wretched money, Mrs. Van Houter, I would marry Lurline Holland if she would let me."

"And what have you to offer her, boy?"

"Two clean hands and a tongue that has never spoken evil of a woman and the munificent resources of a village doctor," I added bitterly.

"Good. I should advise you to tell the child so."

I stared at her; then I took up my hat. "That is impossible, Mrs. Van Houter. I am not a fortune hunter."

Mrs. Van Houter laughed. "Make your mind easy on that score, Gordon. I have lost every cent I had. Only Lurline and I know it yet, but soon!"

I was unforgivingly rude, but I waited to hear no more. I hastened into the garden—to Lurline.

"Lurline, girl, I want to explain those three wishes—power, position and pelf. It wasn't for themselves that I craved them, dear, but because I thought their possession might help me to win you. The barrier is down between us now. My beloved, may I take you back to the old home and the wintergreens? I will be good to you, Lurline."

Into Lurline's face flashed rose color; from her glorious eyes looked heaven. I took her into my arms, that were so glad, so glad, and she whispered:

"You didn't ask me my three wishes, Gordie. The first one was you, and the second was you, and the third was you."

No Fun For Boys.

In some of the cantons of Switzerland they have special laws made for boys. Here is a sample of them:

"If a boy throws a stone and hits a man he may be fined 3 francs."

"If a boy throws a snowball and hits a woman he may be fined 2 francs."

"If a boy calls a girl a 'red head' he may be fined from 2 to 4 francs."

"If a boy throws at frogs in a pond without being ordered to do so by his father or teacher he shall be fined a franc."

"If a boy throws a stone and breaks a window belonging to some one else his father may whip him or he may be fined 2 francs."

"If a boy makes a face at his teacher or draws pictures of him on his slate or speaks ill of him he may be fined 5 francs and have to beg his pardon."

"If a boy stones a dog or chases a cat it is a fine of a franc."

"If two boys fight without the consent of their teacher it is a fine of 3 francs."

"If a boy steals apples or other fruit it is a fine of 2 francs, and he should be beaten by his father."

The American boy who reads the above will wonder what the Swiss boy has to live for. About all he can do and not be fined is to have the measles or whooping cough.—Exchange.

Invalid Ladies

This Is For You.

There are thousands of females who suffer untold miseries common to their sex.

This is largely due to the peculiar habits of life and fashion, and the improper training of girlhood. Then, too, the physical changes that mark the three eras of womanhood (the maiden, the wife, and the mother) have much to do with her sufferings, most of which are endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends.

To all such whose hollow cheeks, pale faces, sunken eyes, feeble footsteps, indicate nervousness, palpitation of the heart, weak, faint and dizzy spells, we would earnestly recommend a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Jos. Sharp, Brighton, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, weak spells and nervous trouble, and found no relief until advised to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got one box and that helped me so much I sent and got five more. I am now cured completely."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"Dear, blessed old man!" I was sure I could detect tears in her voice, but she added lightly: "Too bad, you'll have to go back and tell him his mistake, isn't it? Take your queen in, Gordie. It must be nearly time for me to dance a stupid polka with the wicked prince."
