YOUNG MOTHERS

A mother who is in good physical condition transmits to her child the blessing of a good constitution; sickly, ailing mothers, the reverse.

The tiny babe brings to her a living responsibility. At such a time too great care cannot be taken to build up the mother's general constitution, and restore her feminine system to a healthy, normal condition. The greatest assistance that any woman can have in accomplishing this all-important work is

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial."

Mrs. Paul Oliver, of St. Martinville, La., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "For years I suffered from the worst form of female troubles, and the doctor said I could not get well without an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to perfect health, and I have the sweetest little baby girl. I will never cease to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine."

Wanted Sport.

Some years ago Jude's was a noted concert hall in Dublin, and late in the evening the fun was generally fast and furious.

A young Englishman bent on seeing life went there one evening, but expressed himself disappointed with the slowness of the place to a Hibernian friend he met there.

"Would you really like to see a row?" said Pat.

"Yes," said the Englishman.

Pat filled a tumbler with cold water and threw it across the table into his face, saying, "Now, hit the man next to you, and we'll have some grand sport."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

How He Liked Married Life.

Governor Vandam of Mississippi tells of a colored citizen of that state who gave a justice of the peace a big fat possum as a wedding fee.

A year after the justice on meeting the darky asked:

"Joe, how do you like married life?"

"Well, sah," answered Joe ruefully, "all I kin say is I wish I'd eat dat possum."

Spring Fever.

The catalogues are coming in. With lovely lists of flowers and seeds And pictured squashes, beans and peas, But not one word about the weeds. They look so brilliant and so gay That scores of disappointed men Make up their minds, when spring arrives, To go to gardening again.

How strange it is, when fall has come And everything has turned out wrong, The gardener feels so much inclined To sell his garden for a song. But when springtime comes, and all The catalogues appear, why then The man who always failed decides To go to gardening again. —Somerville Journal.

JURY ACQUITTED McCRAW OF MURDER.

Brought in Verdict of Not Guilty After Brief Deliberation—Judge Charged Strongly Against the Prisoner—Verdict was Popular One.

THREE RIVERS, April 8.—Wallace McCraw was yesterday afternoon acquitted of the charge of murder by the jury after twenty-five minutes' deliberation. The intense interest in the case was evinced by the crowd that thronged the court room and the corridors of the court house during the last day of the trial. The prisoner appeared fatigued and the suspense and the anxiety of the last anxious moments while waiting for the announcement of the jury's decision completely changed his appearance. His aged father sat near the prisoner's box all day yesterday, and he was also evidently worn out by the long strain.

Mr. Laflamme concluded his plea at noon and in the afternoon the crown on the side of the case was taken up by Mr. Tourigny, who spoke for about an hour.

Mr. Tourigny brought in among other facts the different sayings of Anse, where he lived until the time the accused previous to the death of his father. His farm served as a stopping place for portageurs and others on their way up to Rat River.

Mr. Wilson in his address had no mercy on the accused whatever. After relating to the jury the incidents of last night's shooting affray in Mont-Val, he said: "With people such as this, life in the Province of Quebec would not be safe." The jury said they were not only to consider the prisoner's aged father. They employed on the farm, was arrested, along with the wife of the murdered man, both being charged with the crime. Mrs. Sciatier was subsequently jury, spoke strongly against the prisoner, taking up all the different facts being convicted. His counsel appealed of the case, the remarks of McCraw to friends before the death and the and his plea was granted.

SISTER ANNIE AND CHOPIN

The Black Key Study and What Was Wrong With It.

When Sister Annie plays the Black Key Study the family may express wonder why she does not give it the whirlwind abandon which Josef Hofmann gives it. The reason is plain. Sister Annie has not been studying long enough to have fingers as strong as steel and as quick as lightning. She knows how the Study should be played, but it may be ten years hence before she is able to even approximate to Hofmann's performance.

In other words, she has musical insight and appreciation, but her mechanical equipment? It is merely the means to an artistic end. There is nothing artistic in piano technique. Yet there are many artists who are debarred from music because they have no technique. If some good angel could grant them that technique they would be full grown, poetic artists.

A good angel has done so. The Angelus is a piano-player operated on the pneumatic principle. But it is not like other players. It is so devised that the operator can bring out the melody of any composition as definitely as any great artist, the accompaniment remaining unobtrusive. Instant retard or accelerando are possible, the touch can be strong and virile, or delicate, indeed, everything that the fingers of a virtuoso can do the Angelus can do. This marvelous player, unquestionably the best on the market, as it was the first, has been secured by Messrs. Gourlay, Winter and Leeming, and can be purchased as an interior part of their magnificent Canadian piano. The Gourlay-Angelus is no larger than any ordinary Gourlay Piano, nor can the presence of the mechanism of the player be seen until the time comes to use it. It must be seen to be appreciated. If interested write for catalogue to Gourlay, Winter and Leeming, 188 Yonge street, Toronto.

FEED FOR FANS.

Safely made a great impression wherever the team played on the southern training trip. His one-handed stabs of hard balls and back-handed throws to bases were a revelation to the crowds.

The players are unstinted in their praises of Manager Kelley. His reputation as a gentleman and inside ball player preceded him from the west, and he is the kind of man for whom a player on the team will do his utmost.

Jake Gettmann seems to have more speed and ginger than ever, and the way he is killing the ball is a caution. The severance of his connection with the Buffalo team appears to have inspired him with new life and ambition and he is waiting for an opportunity to show his Buffalo friends that he would be a great man for that team.

Manager Armour of the Teladors declares he will bar picture hats from his ball park this summer. If the courageous William can carry out this edict against the spreading headgear of the ladies he will not only have accomplished a utilitarian reform but one which some men will appreciate from an aesthetic standpoint as well. Bill will have a tough time with the "Merry Widow" lid.

Clark Griffith declares that he does not intend to ask for waivers on any of his men. He intends to carry all of them through the season. This will give him twenty-five men, and make the largest squad ever carried through a season by any club. One of the toughest jobs Manager Griffith has had in a long time is to pick his pitching staff for the season. All of the Yankee twirlers look good, and Griff may open with eleven box art-swearing he had indulged in after. The judge spoke for about an hour. The jury were out only twenty minutes and returned with a verdict of "not guilty." The verdict seemed to be a popular one, as people about the court house followed from the crowd waiting their for his reappearance.

STORY OF THE CRIME.

Wallace McCraw was, on March 16, 1906, found guilty of the murder of Percy Howard Sciatier, at Grande Anse, on the 5th of March, 1905. His counsel appealed for a new trial on technical grounds.

Sciatier had in his youth come out from England as an apprentice of the side of the case was taken up by Mr. Hudson Bay Company, and later was married to a daughter of one of the Hudson Bay Company's factors. Later he purchased a farm at Grand Anse, where he lived until the time the accused previous to the death of his father. His farm served as a stopping place for portageurs and others on their way up to Rat River.

Sciatier was subsequently jury, spoke strongly against the prisoner, taking up all the different facts being convicted. His counsel appealed of the case, the remarks of McCraw to friends before the death and the and his plea was granted.

The new stand at the Island is almost completed, and the diamond has been laid out. Toronto will have the only covered bleachers in the league, and the best accommodation for spectators generally in the circuit. There will be seats for more than 5,000 people. The difficulty of getting to and from the Island will be largely overcome by the greatly improved facilities for loading and unloading the crowds and making faster trips from the mainland to the Island grounds.

LAKEVILLE CORNER.

April 8.—The lumbermen have all got through hauling their logs to the streams, and are now preparing for spring driving. There is but little snow in the woods and the prospects for driving are poor. The cut is quite large on the Little River, and without heavy rains it will be difficult to get the logs to dead water.

The travelling on the ice in the lakes is good, but the roads are bad on account of the absence of snow.

Messrs. Ferguson and Simmons are busy sawing wood for the farmers now.

Mr. Fred Flowers has a new blacksmith shop at Lakeville Corner, and expects to commence work next week.

Miss F. L. Tapley has been quite sick for the past two weeks, but is improving under the treatment of Dr. Caswell ofagetown.

Miss Ethel Briggs is also very sick, and some doubt of her recovery is felt by her many friends.

Mrs. Sarah McVior of the Range, Queen's Co., has been spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Ferguson.

Some of our local politicians are very busy here these days dispensing patronage to their friends, but there does not appear to be a job for all the hungry ones.

Mr. Marshall Hargrave has his hot house in full blast, and reports say that his plants are looking well.

Randall Bros. also have their hot houses started, and have a large quantity of plants.

Our school has been closed for the winter term, but will likely commence soon.

She had been looking around the drug and toilet department of one of the big shops for some time, when a clerk approached her.

"Haven't you anything harder than these?" she asked, holding up a rubber teething ring.

"None," responded the clerk; "these are the hardest that come."

"Oh, dear," said the woman, he has chewed up three of those already. Chewed them up? exclaimed the clerk. I don't see how a baby—

"Oh, it isn't a baby," she explained. "I want it for my little dog."
