

A. T. McMURRAY, D. M.

Office Hours 9 to 5.

Dentistry in all its modern branches. Special attention given to the care of children's teeth.

Patients living outside the city can make appointments by mail, and thus do away with an unnecessary delay.

By the use of our improved Electric Light, appointments can be made for any evening.

Lady in attendance. 'Phone 29.

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY

On and after Sunday, October 13th 1907 trains will run daily (Sunday excepted), as follows:

TRAINS WILL LEAVE FREDERICTON.

No. 803 Mixed for Campbellton, Moncton, St. John and Halifax.....	5.45
No. 801 Express for Montreal, Chatham, Loggieville.....	18.30
No. 823 Suburban for Marysville.....	16.20
No. 817 Suburban for Marysville.....	6.10
No. 821 Suburban for Marysville.....	11.10
No. 827 Suburban for Marysville.....	18.40
No. 829 Suburban for Marysville.....	21.00

TRAINS WILL ARRIVE AT FREDERICTON.

No. 818 Suburban from Marysville.....	8.15
No. 802 Express from Montreal, Quebec, Chatham and Loggieville.....	13.05
No. 822 Suburban from Marysville.....	13.45
No. 826 Suburban from Marysville.....	18.20
No. 804 Mixed from Chatham Junction, Chatham and Loggieville.....	18.50
No. 828 Suburban from Marysville.....	19.15

All trains are run by Atlantic Standard time. Twenty-four hour station. 24.00 o'clock is midnight. Moncton, N. B., Oct. 10th, 1907.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

Passenger Train Service From Fredericton, Atlantic Time—Effective Oct. 13th, 1907.

DEPARTURES.

6.30 a. m., EXPRESS for St. John, St. Stephen, St. Andrews, Houlton, Woodstock and points north, Fort Fairfield, Caribou, Presque Isle, Plaster Rock and Edmundston, Bangor, Portland and Boston.

8.00 a. m. MIXED, via Gibson branch, for Woodstock and north; Presque Isle, Plaster Rock, Edmundston and leave St. Mary's at 8.30 a. m.

9.50 a. m. EXPRESS for Fredericton Junction, connecting with Atlantic express for St. John and points east.

9.50 p. m. MIXED for Fredericton Junction, connecting with short line express for Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and with Imperial Limited and Pacific expresses from Montreal for the west, north west, and Pacific coast; also connects for Vancouver, Bangor, Portland, Boston, etc., St. Stephen and Woodstock.

9.00 p. m. EXPRESS for St. John and points east.

ARRIVALS.

9.20 a. m. From St. John and east.

9.45 a. m. From Montreal and west, Boston, St. Stephen, Woodstock and Houlton.

9.10 p. m. From St. John and east.

9.05 p. m. From Woodstock and points north, via Gibson branch, arrives St. Mary's 8.35 p. m.

10.40 p. m. From Boston, Portland, Bangor, St. Stephen, St. Andrews, Woodstock and Houlton.

W. B. HOWARD, District Passenger Agent, C. P. Railway, St. John, N. B.

W. J. IRVINE, D.D.S.

Special Practitioner's Certificate from Chicago College of Dental Surgery

Artificial Teeth

Inserted in Gold, Aluminum and ordinary Rubber Plates

Crown & Bridge Work

Executed in Gold and Porcelain after latest and best methods

Anesthetics

all and General applied and administered for Painless Dentistry

OFFICE:

CHESTNUTS BUILDING

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years has borne the signature of Charles H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Colic, Wind Colic, It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Charles H. Fletcher

The Kind You Have Always Bought in Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CASTORIA COMPANY, 27 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

JOHN G. ADAMS,

THE LEADING UNDERTAKER.

Prompt and careful attention to all orders. The only complete line of Funeral Furnishings in the City and the best Equipment.

Down Town. Next above Queen Hotel. 'Phone 26

COAL!

HARD AND SOFT COAL

NOW IN STOCK

P. FAPRELL

PURE COD LIVER OIL

is one of the best if not the very best remedy for loss of flesh and vitality. Our Norwegian Cod Liver Oil at — per bottle is excellent. For those who cannot take the oil in its natural state we have a full line of Emulsions including such well known brands as Scott's, etc. Anything one expects to find in a complete stock of s here.

DRUGS AND MEDICINES

Alonzo Staples,

York Street Drug Store.

DR. F. W. BARBOUR,

SURGEON DENTIST,

President and Prize Man Boston Dental College Class 1891. Registered by Mass. State Board of Legislation. Facilities and experience in all branches of Dentistry. Special attention given to saving aching or aching Young lady in attendance.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.FOR EASTER

Will Issue Return Tickets

AT SINGLE FARE

TO GENERAL PUBLIC

GOING APR. 16, 17, 18, 19 AND 20

RETURNING APR. 21 1908

Between all Stations in Canada East of Port Arthur

W. B. HOWARD, D. P. A. C. P. R., St. John, N. B.

EASTER HOLIDAY

1908

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY

will sell round trip tickets to all stations on the line at

FIRST CLASS ONE WAY FARE

Going April 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 1908 Good for Return April 21, 1908. and to Detroit, Mich., Port Huron, Mich., Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Stations in Canada east thereof, also to stations on the Canadian Pacific Ry., Cape Breton Ry., Cumberland Ry. & Coal Co., Central Vermont Ry., Dominion Atlantic Ry., Grand Trunk Ry., Halifax & Southwestern Ry., Inverness Ry. & Coal Co., Quebec Central Ry., Sydney & Louisburg Ry., and Temiscouata Ry. Apr. 27th.

Ferro Asoline Engines

One car load of Ferro Marine Gasoline engines just arrived. These engines are manufactured by the largest Marine Gasoline engine factory in the world, and in sizes from 1 1/2 to 25 h.p. Immediate delivery if ordered at once. We also carry a full line of gasoline engine accessories and supplies, gasoline cylinder-oil, batteries, magnets, spark coils, spark plugs, etc. If you are interested write for descriptive literature and prices, to

THE L. M. TASK CO.

29 Dock St., St. John, N. B.

PURSUED BYSUFFERING

BY MARY JANE HOLMES.

(Continued.)

"I am not certain that a high dress is worse than bones," Bell retorted, playfully touching Juno's neck, which though white and gracefully formed, was shockingly girdled with flesh. There was an angry reply, and then, wrapping her cloak about her, Juno went out to their carriage, and was ere long one of the gay crowd thronging Sybil Grandon's parlors. Helen had not yet arrived, and Juno was hoping she would not come, when there was a stir at the door and Mrs. Banker appeared, and with her Helen Lennox, but so transformed that Juno hardly knew her, looking twice ere she sure that the beautiful young lady, so wholly self-possessed, was the country girl she affected to despise.

"Who is she?" was asked by many, who at once acknowledged her claims to their attention, and as soon as practically sought her acquaintance, so that Helen suddenly found herself the centre of a little court of which she was the queen and Mark her sworn knight.

Presuming upon his mother's chaperone, he claimed the right of attending her, and Juno's glory waned as effectually as it had done when Katy was the leading star to which New York paid homage.

Juno had been annoyed then, but now fierce jealousy took possession of her heart as she watched the girl whom all seemed to admire, even Wilford feeling a thrill of pride that the possession of so attractive a sister-in-law reflected credit upon himself.

He was not ashamed of her now, nor did he retain a single thought of the house or Uncle Ephraim as he made his way to her side, standing protectingly at her left, just as Mark was standing at her right, and at last asking her to dance.

With a heightened color Helen declined, saying frankly: "I have never learned."

"You miss a great deal," Wilford rejoined, appealing to Mark for a confirmation of his words.

But Mark did not heartily respond. He, too, had solicited Helen as a partner when the dancing first commenced, and her quiet refusal had disappointed him a little, for Mark was fond of dancing, and though as a general thing he disapproved of waltzes and polkas when he was the leader-on, he felt that there would be something vastly agreeable and exhilarating in clasping Helen in his arm and whirling her about the room just as Juno was being whirled by a young cadet, a friend of Lieutenant Bob's.

But when he reflected that not his arm alone would encircle her waist, or his breath touch her neck, he was glad she did not dance, and professing a weariness he did not feel, he declined to join the dancers on the floor, but kept with Helen, enjoying what she enjoyed, and putting her so perfectly at her ease that no one would ever have dreamed of the curdy cheeses she had made, or the pounds of butter she had churned.

But Mark thought of it as he secretly admired the neck and arms, seen once before, on that memorable day when he assisted Helen in the labors of the dairy. If nothing else had done so, the lily in her hair would have brought that morning to his mind, and once as they walked up and down the hall he spoke of the ornament she had chosen, and how well it became her.

"Tend lilies are my pets," he said, "and I have kept one of those I gathered when at Silverton. Do you remember them?" and his eyes rested upon Helen with a look which made her blush as she answered yes; but she did not tell him of the little box at home, made of cones and acorns, where was hidden a withered water lily, which she could not throw away even after its beauty and fragrance had departed.

Had she told him this, it might have put to flight the doubts troubling Mark so much, and making him wonder if Dr. Grant had really a claim upon the girl stealing his heart so fast.

"I mean to sound her," he thought, and as Lieutenant Bob passed by, making some jocose remark about his offending all the fair ones by the course he was taking, Mark said to Helen, who suggested returning to the parlor:

"As you like, though it cannot matter, a person known to be engaged is above Bab Reynold's jokes."

Quick as thought the blood stained Helen's face and neck, for Mark had made a most egregious blunder, giving her the impression that he was the engaged one referred to, not herself, and for a moment she forgot the gay scene around her in the sharpness of the pang with which she recognized all that Mark Ray was and had been, sooner, she thought, and then with a bitter feeling of shame, she wondered how much he had guessed of her real feelings, and who the betrothed one was. "Not Juno Cameron," she hoped, as after a few moments Mrs. Cameron came up, and adroitly detaching Mark from her side, took his place, while he sauntered to a group of ladies, and was ere long dancing merrily with Juno.

"They are a well-matched pair," Mrs. Cameron said, assuming a very confidential manner towards Helen, who assented to the remark, while the lady continued: "There is but one thing wrong with Mark Ray. He is a most unscrupulous flirt, pleased with every new face, and this of course annoys Juno."

"Are they engaged?" came involuntarily from Helen's lips, while Mrs. Cameron's foot beat the carpet with a very becoming hesitancy, as she replied: "That was settled in our family a long time ago, Wilford and Mark have always been like brothers in that blue silk. With the long sleeves and high neck, looking like a Dutch doll," she said to Bell, as she shook back the folds of her rich crimson, and turned her head to see the effect of her wide braids of hair.

"I am not certain that a high dress is worse than bones," Bell retorted, playfully touching Juno's neck, which though white and gracefully formed, was shockingly girdled with flesh.

There was an angry reply, and then, wrapping her cloak about her, Juno went out to their carriage, and was ere long one of the gay crowd thronging Sybil Grandon's parlors. Helen had not yet arrived, and Juno was hoping she would not come, when there was a stir at the door and Mrs. Banker appeared, and with her Helen Lennox, but so transformed that Juno hardly knew her, looking twice ere she sure that the beautiful young lady, so wholly self-possessed, was the country girl she affected to despise.

"Who is she?" was asked by many, who at once acknowledged her claims to their attention, and as soon as practically sought her acquaintance, so that Helen suddenly found herself the centre of a little court of which she was the queen and Mark her sworn knight.

Presuming upon his mother's chaperone, he claimed the right of attending her, and Juno's glory waned as effectually as it had done when Katy was the leading star to which New York paid homage.

Juno had been annoyed then, but now fierce jealousy took possession of her heart as she watched the girl whom all seemed to admire, even Wilford feeling a thrill of pride that the possession of so attractive a sister-in-law reflected credit upon himself.

He was not ashamed of her now, nor did he retain a single thought of the house or Uncle Ephraim as he made his way to her side, standing protectingly at her left, just as Mark was standing at her right, and at last asking her to dance.

With a heightened color Helen declined, saying frankly: "I have never learned."

"You miss a great deal," Wilford rejoined, appealing to Mark for a confirmation of his words.

But Mark did not heartily respond. He, too, had solicited Helen as a partner when the dancing first commenced, and her quiet refusal had disappointed him a little, for Mark was fond of dancing, and though as a general thing he disapproved of waltzes and polkas when he was the leader-on, he felt that there would be something vastly agreeable and exhilarating in clasping Helen in his arm and whirling her about the room just as Juno was being whirled by a young cadet, a friend of Lieutenant Bob's.

But when he reflected that not his arm alone would encircle her waist, or his breath touch her neck, he was glad she did not dance, and professing a weariness he did not feel, he declined to join the dancers on the floor, but kept with Helen, enjoying what she enjoyed, and putting her so perfectly at her ease that no one would ever have dreamed of the curdy cheeses she had made, or the pounds of butter she had churned.

But Mark thought of it as he secretly admired the neck and arms, seen once before, on that memorable day when he assisted Helen in the labors of the dairy. If nothing else had done so, the lily in her hair would have brought that morning to his mind, and once as they walked up and down the hall he spoke of the ornament she had chosen, and how well it became her.

"Tend lilies are my pets," he said, "and I have kept one of those I gathered when at Silverton. Do you remember them?" and his eyes rested upon Helen with a look which made her blush as she answered yes; but she did not tell him of the little box at home, made of cones and acorns, where was hidden a withered water lily, which she could not throw away even after its beauty and fragrance had departed.

Had she told him this, it might have put to flight the doubts troubling Mark so much, and making him wonder if Dr. Grant had really a claim upon the girl stealing his heart so fast.

"I mean to sound her," he thought, and as Lieutenant Bob passed by, making some jocose remark about his offending all the fair ones by the course he was taking, Mark said to Helen, who suggested returning to the parlor:

"As you like, though it cannot matter, a person known to be engaged is above Bab Reynold's jokes."

Quick as thought the blood stained Helen's face and neck, for Mark had made a most egregious blunder, giving her the impression that he was the engaged one referred to, not herself, and for a moment she forgot the gay scene around her in the sharpness of the pang with which she recognized all that Mark Ray was and had been, sooner, she thought, and then with a bitter feeling of shame, she wondered how much he had guessed of her real feelings, and who the betrothed one was. "Not Juno Cameron," she hoped, as after a few moments Mrs. Cameron came up, and adroitly detaching Mark from her side, took his place, while he sauntered to a group of ladies, and was ere long dancing merrily with Juno.

"They are a well-matched pair," Mrs. Cameron said, assuming a very confidential manner towards Helen, who assented to the remark, while the lady continued: "There is but one thing wrong with Mark Ray. He is a most unscrupulous flirt, pleased with every new face, and this of course annoys Juno."

"Are they engaged?" came involuntarily from Helen's lips, while Mrs. Cameron's foot beat the carpet with a very becoming hesitancy, as she replied: "That was settled in our family a long time ago, Wilford and Mark have always been like brothers in that blue silk. With the long sleeves and high neck, looking like a Dutch doll," she said to Bell, as she shook back the folds of her rich crimson, and turned her head to see the effect of her wide braids of hair.

"I am not certain that a high dress is worse than bones," Bell retorted, playfully touching Juno's neck, which though white and gracefully formed, was shockingly girdled with flesh.

There was an angry reply, and then, wrapping her cloak about her, Juno went out to their carriage, and was ere long one of the gay crowd thronging Sybil Grandon's parlors. Helen had not yet arrived, and Juno was hoping she would not come, when there was a stir at the door and Mrs. Banker appeared, and with her Helen Lennox, but so transformed that Juno hardly knew her, looking twice ere she sure that the beautiful young lady, so wholly self-possessed, was the country girl she affected to despise.

"Who is she?" was asked by many, who at once acknowledged her claims to their attention, and as soon as practically sought her acquaintance, so that Helen suddenly found herself the centre of a little court of which she was the queen and Mark her sworn knight.

Presuming upon his mother's chaperone, he claimed the right of attending her, and Juno's glory waned as effectually as it had done when Katy was the leading star to which New York paid homage.

Juno had been annoyed then, but now fierce jealousy took possession of her heart as she watched the girl whom all seemed to admire, even Wilford feeling a thrill of pride that the possession of so attractive a sister-in-law reflected credit upon himself.

He was not ashamed of her now, nor did he retain a single thought of the house or Uncle Ephraim as he made his way to her side, standing protectingly at her left, just as Mark was standing at her right, and at last asking her to dance.

With a heightened color Helen declined, saying frankly: "I have never learned."

"You miss a great deal," Wilford rejoined, appealing to Mark for a confirmation of his words.

But Mark did not heartily respond. He, too, had solicited Helen as a partner when the dancing first commenced, and her quiet refusal had disappointed him a little, for Mark was fond of dancing, and though as a general thing he disapproved of waltzes and polkas when he was the leader-on, he felt that there would be something vastly agreeable and exhilarating in clasping Helen in his arm and whirling her about the room just as Juno was being whirled by a young cadet, a friend of Lieutenant Bob's.

But when he reflected that not his arm alone would encircle her waist, or his breath touch her neck, he was glad she did not dance, and professing a weariness he did not feel, he declined to join the dancers on the floor, but kept with Helen, enjoying what she enjoyed, and putting her so perfectly at her ease that no one would ever have dreamed of the curdy cheeses she had made, or the pounds of butter she had churned.

But Mark thought of it as he secretly admired the neck and arms, seen once before, on that memorable day when he assisted Helen in the labors of the dairy. If nothing else had done so, the lily in her hair would have brought that morning to his mind, and once as they walked up and down the hall he spoke of the ornament she had chosen, and how well it became her.

"Tend lilies are my pets," he said, "and I have kept one of those I gathered when at Silverton. Do you remember them?" and his eyes rested upon Helen with a look which made her blush as she answered yes; but she did not tell him of the little box at home, made of cones and acorns, where was hidden a withered water lily, which she could not throw away even after its beauty and fragrance had departed.

Had she told him this, it might have put to flight the doubts troubling Mark so much, and making him wonder if Dr. Grant had really a claim upon the girl stealing his heart so fast.

LIFE in Calgary.

In regard to the conditions of life in Calgary, the following is the opinion of a young bride who married in Montreal last fall and went to Calgary to take up her residence with her husband, who occupies a good position in the city.

Writing to an old friend, the lady states that there is great variety in the life of the progressive town. The social life is intimate, cordial, and a large feature of the place. Parties and dinners succeed each other rapidly, especially in the winter months, when life is largely indoors. One meets the captain and the colonel in familiar intercourse.

The biggest official is close and easy, and one is not awed by authority. In the streets you will see the remittance man, who drinks a great deal; the immigrants, with the soft cap and the turned-up trousers, looking for a job; the Indians, in their picturesque dress, loafing about, the women with the "paposes" on their backs; the ranchers, who "paint the town" when they come in; the "foreign elements" passing through. The fashionable lady rubs elbows with the Galician in sheepskin.

"One wonders, indeed," writes the lady, "whether it is worth while to dress as we did in the east, when you see such contrasts, but we do, just the same."

The lady who gives a reception will have carriage and motor car at her door, and this seems a compensation for much that has been given up.

The flatness of the place has its effect, but, as the lady writes, there is a wonderful fascination about the environment, and this grows upon one.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Edmundston Breastwork Extension," N.B., will be received at this office until 4.30 p.m., on Thursday, May 7, 1908, for the construction of an extension to the Breastwork at Edmundston, Victoria County, N.B., according to a plan and specification to be seen at the offices of E. T. P. Sheven, Esq., Resident Engineer, St. John, N.B., Geoffrey Stead, Esq., Resident Engineer, Chatham, N.B., on application to the Postmaster at Edmundston, N.B., and at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of tenders.

An accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister of Public Works, for twelve hundred dollars ($2,000.00), must accompany each tender. The cheque will be forfeited if the person tendering declines the contract, and will be returned in case of non-acceptance of tender.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,

FRED. GELINAS,

Secretary.

Department of Public Works,

Ottawa, April 6, 1908.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

April 10, a31.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST*HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties, by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father or mother, (if the father is deceased), of a