LONDON WORKHOUSES FULL.

Many Infirm Paupers Boarding at Sanitariums at the Seaside.

Enquiries throughout Great Britain show that lack of employment is responsible for acute distress in many towns, the trades most affected being building, engineering and shipbuilding.

Owing, apparently, to the slackness of trade, the forty workhouses of Greater London are filled to overflowing. The latest returns show that in these workhouses there are 80,133 boarders, and that 45,821 people are receiving outdoor relief. This gives a ratio of 26.5 paupers to the thousand of the population.

It is impossible to grant all the applications for admittance to these institutions, and the authorities, in their efforts to grapple with the situation, have resorted to the novel plan of accepting the help of professional boarding house keepers. The management of seaside sanitariums have sent circulars to the workhouse authorities which say in effect: "Our staffs are idle; yours are overworked. Can we help each other?"

The offers have been accepted in several instances and many infirm paupers have been sent to fashionable resorts to be nursed back to health amid surroundings luxurious beyond their dreams. And, unlikely though it may seem, the workhouse authorities in adopting this solution of the difficulty are actually saving money. It costs 20 shillings a head a week for infirm inmates in poorhouses, whereas the sanitariums are taking boarders at the reduced terms of 13 shillings a week.

The poverty in the Hackney district of London is such that its workhouse is not only accommodating 200 persons more than it is certified for, but paupers from that district are boarding out in eighty-five different institutions, not including lunatics in asylums. Even the chapel connected with Hackney workhouse is being used as a dormitory for some of life's failures.

Among the 1,601 paupers in this institution there are some who have been inmates for between thirty and forty years. Seven of the inmates say they fought for their country in the Crimea. Several whole families are in the house, and their furniture is stored in the outbuildings until such time as the men can make a fresh start.

Many families are utterly undeserving of admittance to these pauper refuges. It has been shown over and over again that when once a family has been helped by the workhouse authorities it acquires the workhouse habit and again flies to them at the first sign of trouble.

In course of time, the habit becomes a family tradition, an instance of which is provided by Hackney. There died there a few days ago an old woman whose family was represented in the workhouse by four generations. The woman's daughter and her husband, her grandchildren and great-grandchildren were likewise in the workhouse.

West Ham, in the east end of London, has the doubtful honor of owning the largest workhouse in England. It is like a small walled city and contains 2,000 paupers, which is 800 more than it is supposed to be able to accommodate.

Four branch workhouses give shelter to another 900, and fifty women are sleeping in a schoolroom whence teachers and pupils have been evicted. Seven hundred children are being boarded out with foster mothers scattered over the district.

West Ham's difficulties are to a certain extent due to the crowds of able-bodied who have developed the workhouse habit. There are 200 able-bodied women in the prime of life, in the workhouse, and over a hundred able-bodied men between the ages of 16 and 30.

The latter are strong young fellows, most of whom made their acquaintance with the interior of the workhouse in their childhood. By going out in the morning after breakfast and picking up a dinner where they can they are able to escape the labor, such as wood chopping, stone breaking or corn-grinding, which would be their lot if they remained inside all day.

West Ham has the best district of any workhouse in the Kingdom. Breakfast consists of four ounces of bread and a pint and a half of porridge. Dinner may be four and a half ounces of meat with twelve ounces of peas pudding or the same amount of meat with two vegetables. For supper, eight ounces of bread and one pint of broth are given out.

Infirm men live better. They have a lunch between breakfast and dinner, consisting of bread and butter, and a piece of plum cake. They are allowed tobacco, and in the evening can play draughts, beetle or dominoes. No task is set them.

THE QUEBEC HORROR.

Thirty-three Persons Known to Have Lost Their Lives in Sunday Morning's Disaster.

MONTREAL, April 28.—The village of Notre Dame De Sallette presents a scene of desolation and sadness. Where the comfortable homes stood are nothing but broken timbers, twisted irons, broken furniture and clothing. In the school house the scene is pathetically sad. In ten coffins, side by side, are the bodies of fifteen victims whose remains have been found, two coffins each contain a mother and her babe. Three other bodies have been recovered but they are not yet in the school house. The dead and all the people accounted for number thirty-three.

A few of the men who survive say that they cannot bear to talk of their experience during the terrible moments when they were facing death. It all came with such irresistible force and such suddenness that they were dazed by the astounding character of the catastrophe, and some of them are quite incapable of giving anything like a coherent account of what they passed through. Others state that the noise was simply deafening for a little while, and that the roar of the waters was the worst ever heard here before. The condition of the river gives a vivid indication of the sweeping nature of the catastrophe. Usually at this time of year it is clear water, though always a torrent stream. Today it is a dull yellow colored raging water, masses of debris here and there across it, and seething between the all too narrow confines of its precipitous and crumbling banks. The debris is enormous and suggests that a great volume of matter has been swept away. It has become backed up against great rocks here and there throughout the course of the river from La Sallette downwards, and everywhere there are unquestionable signs that an appalling catastrophe has taken place.

Apart from the loss of life, the loss to the survivors is exceedingly severe. Mr. Paul Despardines alone has lost property valued at a conservative estimate at over twenty-five thousand dollars. He kept the large general store in the village, a hotel, and the local post office. Others have lost in smaller amounts, but in correspondingly severe manner. The loss is absolutely irreparable and in almost every case there was practically no insurance.

THE GREAT SLAVE LAKE.

Mr. Ernest Thompson-Seton's Lecture at Ottawa.

Ottawa, April 26.—Mr. Ernest Thompson-Seton addressed a large gathering of the Ottawa Canadian Club at luncheon on Saturday on the subject of his trip last summer into the unknown lands of the Great Slave Lake district. Mr. Seton gave a number of interesting incidents connected with the hazards of his journey into the so-called "barren lands," noting the fact that he had discovered two new rivers, which he had named Laurier and Grey, and had found caribou roaming the country in great bands. On one occasion he had seen a herd of fully one thousand caribou.

The name "barren lands" as applied to the vast district extending for many hundreds of miles north and northeast of Edmonton was, he said, a complete misnomer. A great empire of the most fertile land lay there ready for exploiting. Timber wealth of incalculable value was seen. The great spruce belt which stretched for 3,500 miles across northern Canada from the Alaska boundary to the Atlantic Ocean formed the greatest area of virgin forest to be found anywhere in the world. At the narrowest point this spruce forest was 400 miles wide, and in places it stretched north and south for 1,000 miles. Everywhere in these "barren lands" he found a riot of glorious color in flowers and vegetation of every kind. Nature has painted the landscape with a full palette.

In regard to the buffalo herds of the far north, Mr. Seton said that hundreds of buffalo were still to be found, and if the present plans of the Government to protect them against hunters and herd them into a national park were carried out the herds would rapidly increase.

The Poisoned Spring.—As in nature so in man, pollute the spring and disease and waste are bound to follow—the stomach and nerves out of Filter means poison in the spring. South American Nerveine is a great purifier, cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and tones up the nerves. The best evidence of its efficacy is the unsolicited testimony of thousands of cured ones.—Sold by Arthur J. Ryan, Central Pharmacy, Fredericton, N. B.

Hotel Clerk—What's the reason that you're going to leave us, Miss de Swille? Are you dissatisfied with the service here?

Miss de Swille—Oh, not at all; but the stationery at the Smith House has such a beautiful crest on it and looks so much more genteel than yours that I've taken rooms there.

A story is related of a young man who was recently married to the daughter of a wealthy merchant, says The Tatler. The groom did not have a penny but he was honest. He was so honest that he would not even renege in the marriage ceremony. He was repeating what the minister said:

"With all my worldly goods I thee endow," read the minister.

"With all thy worldly goods I thee endow," repeated the groom.

This was real honesty.

"Tommy, when I tell you something is wrong you do not do it?"

"No, sir."

"But when your conscience tells you a thing is wrong you keep right on and do it?"

"Yes, sir."

"But doesn't your conscience hurt you when you do something wrong?"

"Yes, sir; but not in the same way you do."—Houston Post.

"It is a little rift within the lute which ever widening, makes the music mute." It is just a little rift in the health of a woman often, which gradually takes the spring from her step, the light from her eyes, the rose from her cheek and the music from her voice. Perhaps the bugbear which has frightened the woman from the timely help needed at the beginning has been the dreaded question, the obnoxious explanation, the local treatments, of the home physician. There is no need for these. Nor is there need for continued suffering. Dr. Firoze's Favorite Prescription can be relied on by every woman suffering from what are called "female troubles" to renew the health and cure the disease. Women are astonished at the results of the use of this medicine. It not only makes weak women "robust and ruddy checked," but it gives them back the vigor and vitality of youth. This is not a "patent medicine" but a prescription of known composition in which pure, triple-refined glycerine is used instead of alcohol. Each bottle-wrappers bears a full list of ingredients upon it.

A precocious little girl living on one of the crowded thoroughfares of the city was in the habit of gazing out of the window at the busy street below for hours at a time. "What is it Gladys, that you find so constantly interesting in the street?" asked her mother one day. "Oh," came the wise rejoinder, "just watching the cars go pro and con."

Low Spring Fever

Doctors Report Many Cases.

Same thing happens every year. At winter's close the body is weak and run down. Damp spring weather brings out rheumatic tendencies, exhausts vitality, and simply demands everyone to use a bracing, strengthening tonic.

Time won't help matters grow worse instead of better if your system isn't rid of its poisonous burden. Your blood is not only thin, but is contaminated with a whole winter's accumulation of wastes.

A stimulating blood tonic is required.

What's it going to be? Not Litters or alcoholic dope, but concentrated cure in the form of "Ferrozone" which is known as the best of all spring rejuvenators.

It creates keen appetite.

Converts food into nourishment.

Produces prodigious digestion.

Gives richness and vitality to the blood.

Makes strong nerves and hardy muscles.

Ferrozone possesses power that can't be doubted. It will do for you what it did for Walter Wood, of Beaufort, Car Co., N. B., who writes: "I can say that Ferrozone has given me a new lease of life. A year ago I suffered much from nervous weakness. I was really scarcely able to drag myself around. My appetite was gone, I had no color or ambition and felt generally used up. The first box of Ferrozone started me back to health. I took a number of boxes, but it was worth while as my health was completely restored."

Get back to health with Ferrozone, six boxes for $2.50, or 50c. per box at all dealers.

WHEN YOUR BACK HURTS.

Of course it's hard to work. Stoop ing over hurts lifting is tedious and you wonder what to do. Ever try Nervine? Nothing like it for weak or lame back. It penetrates to the core, eases from the first application, brings cure that defies a relapse. No liniment is so clean, so soothing, so certain to kill muscular rheumatic or sciatic pains. Your dealer sells Polson's Nervine in large 25c. bottles. Why not try it?
