

RUSSIANS INVADE PERSIA.

Infantry, Cavalry and Artiller
Marching on Tabriz.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—A cable despatch to the Sun from Constantinople says: News has been received here that six Russian Infantry battalions, artillery and cavalry, crossed the Persian frontier today into the province of Azerbaijan with the intention of occupying the distracted city of Tabriz. A great panic exists at Tabriz where the Russians are expected at any moment.

A recent despatch from St. Petersburg said that the Russian Government contemplated taking such measures as were necessary for the protection of the Russian subjects and Russian trade in Persia and to this end it purposed strengthening the guard at the Consulates in northern Persia and was about to send one hundred infantrymen to Tabriz.

The great and growing popularity of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due both to the scientific compounding and to the actual medicinal value of its ingredients. The publication of the names of the ingredients on the wrapper of every bottle sold, gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an unknown or secret remedy. It is not a patent medicine nor a secret one either. This fact puts it in a class all by itself, bearing as it does upon every bottle wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in the full list of its ingredients. Many years of active practice convinced Dr. Pierce of the value many native roots as medicinal agents and he went to great expense both in time and money, to perfect his own peculiar processes to rendering them both efficient and safe for tonic, alterative and rebuilding agents.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures weak stomach, indigestion or dyspepsia, torpid liver and biliousness, ulceration of stomach and bowels and all catarrhal affections no matter what parts or organs may be affected with it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills, first put up forty years ago. They regulate and invigorate, stomach, liver and bowels. Much imitated but never equalled. Sugar coated and easy to take as candy. One to three a dose.

Two Scotch travellers, a merchant and a farmer, were discussing political economy in a railway carriage.

After a while the merchant filled his pipe, lit it, and settled back for a comfortable smoke. The farmer took his pipe from his pocket, and, after gazing longingly at his empty bowl, asked his companion for a match. The merchant selected one from a large boxful and handed it over.

Said the farmer:
I am afraid I've come away without my 'baccy pouch.
Well, said the merchant, holding out his hand, then you'll be in need of that match.

New Cure For Diphtheria.

Dr. Ernest Jentsch of Chicago declares he has found a new and efficient cure for diphtheria in lobelia injected hypodermically. He proved his faith in the new treatment by treating his son when he was sick with diphtheria a year ago. The son recovered, and since then, he says, he has cured 150 cases of the disease with the remedy.

This is the beginning of Chronic Catarrh. If not checked, the result is deafness. A simple remedy that many physicians advise is to slowly inhale "Catarrhazone" a few minutes each day. The soothing vapor of condition and hearing improves at once. Head noises, buzzing ears are

STORY OF THE FLOOD

One of the Strange Legends of the Yuma Indians.

CAUSE OF THE GREAT STORM.

The Tipping Up of the Earth Caused the Deluge Which Engulfed the World—The Mysterious Ark and the Escape of the Chosen Few.

To this day the great deluge recorded in the Bible is a mystery to the North American Indian. He will not be led to believe that the flood was brought about by the sins of man. He is equally unwilling to believe that it was the work of an angry God, as he could not see how the Almighty should be so unjust as to punish the Indians of America for the naughty things of a race of people across the ocean. Another reason which makes it still more difficult for the Indian to believe that the flood was a punishment to the world is the fact that with him there is no sin. In his language there is no such word, nor does he expect to be punished for any of his acts.

But though there is no equivalent to the word sin in the Indian language (nor in the Indian mind until the Christians came), the Indians have their philosophy in regard to what is commonly so termed. Some of their teachers (most of whom claimed to have been taught the philosophy of life and its laws directly by disembodied spirits or by ethereal beings from other planets) taught that as man lives here so is his life hereafter. If he is quarrelsome or warlike here, so he will be in the more spiritual life. If he is serene and contented here, so he will be there, etc.

The deluge, as described by the few who were miraculously saved, was the more grandly terrible in that it came on suddenly. From the highlands occupied by the Indians they saw the waves of the sea sweep in upon the land and recede, only to advance with immensely increased volume and stupendously huge breakers. Then there came a terrific storm that seemed to blow from all and in all directions. The storm caused huge waterspouts which appeared over the wild ocean as far as the eye could see. The terrified people fled to the mountains, but these were all soon to be submerged, with the exception of one. This mountain which alone remained uncovered by the flood is called Awee-hellah (Mountain of the Moon), yet today it is not a very high mountain.

For awhile before the mountains became submerged there was a great calm, and a dense fog covered the earth. Then suddenly a mighty boat appeared to the awed view of the Indians. It approached and stopped at the several mountains still uncovered by the waters, and at each point where it touched, as if guided by invisible intelligence, the Indians, as if obeying an unspoken but potent command, entered the boat.

The boat rested first at a place called Avee-quah-lul (mountain peak), now Pilot Knob, on the border of Mexico. There was a mesa on the top of this mountain, though at this day it does not exist, and on this mesa the Indians first celebrated their delivery. This they did by playing sacred games, chanting sacred songs, etc. On rocks at the foot of this peak there are hieroglyphics in an unknown language, which some of the Indians believe were made by those who survived the flood.

Petrified driftwood is still to be seen two-thirds the distance up the sides of Avee-hellah, which drift, the Indians say, was deposited by the waves of the great flood.

The Indians, having rested for a time on the mountain peak, again entered the boat and were carried eastward, eventually to a small valley. Here they again rested, and then, leaving the boat, they wandered from one place to another, after a time returning to the valley. To their surprise, the boat was gone. It could not have floated away, for the land was dry whereon they had left it, the flood having subsided after a great calm of its waters. The boat could not have crumbled to pieces, for there had not been time for its decay. They could only conclude that the mysterious boat, having fulfilled its mission of preserving a few of their race, had disappeared as miraculously as it had appeared.

The spot where the mysterious boat, or ark, had rested was marked by the Indians placing there a huge log. They called the place Qual-jo-para (boat's resting place). This spot is held sacred by the Indians, who will seldom point it out to strangers. Not many hundred years ago, it is said, some Indian warriors were passing the spot, and one of them to show his skepticism shot an arrow into the side of the great log. Immediately a stream of blood gushed from the spot pierced, and the skeptic fell dead. The story of the event was carried to all the near tribes, and since then Indians passing the place fear to even look leisurely at the log.

A reason given by the Indians as the probable cause of the flood was that there was a tribe of Indians who, like Columbus, believed that the earth was not flat, but round, and to prove whether this theory were true thousands from the different tribes banded together and started out on a journey to find the edge of the earth if it was flat. The flood occurred soon after the Indians started on this journey, so that they really believed that those adventurers had reached the edge of the earth and their weight had tipped the earth to such an extent as to cause the water to rush in on the land.—Los Angeles Times.

Arrived at Wrong Port.

An incident, probably unique, occurred a few days ago when the Norwegian bark Atlantic sailed up the bay and anchored at Partridge Island. off St. John, N. B. The Atlantic was several hundred miles out of her course, as she is bound to Carleton, Que. This latter port is situated in the county of Bonaventure on the north shore of Chaleur's Bay. A tug spoke the Atlantic, and upon exchange of the customary questions Capt. Livingstone of the tug surmised that there was some mistake. The captain of the bark was dumbfounded to learn of the predicament into which he had blundered. He explained that the mistake was due to lack of knowledge on the part of his brokers in New York, upon whom he had depended for information, and who had told him that the only place named Carleton in these parts was situated at the mouth of the St. John. With his course laid out according to their instructions, the Atlantic steamed for this port. She remained only a few hours, setting sail again early in the afternoon.

A Practical Rotation.

"I suppose you follow a system of rotation in your agricultural operations," casually observed the high browed graduate of the modern agricultural college.

"Follow what kind of a system?" inquired honest, hard handed Uncle Ezra.

"A scheme of rotation. That is, take that large field there. You put that to one purpose one year, another purpose the next year and still different the third year, and so on."

"Oh, yes, I see your meaning." Well, sir, last year we used the proceeds of that field to give Elizabeth her musical education; this year the proceeds went to pay boot in a horse trade that I had the honor of engineering, and next year I intend that field shall give me a trip down to the city and build a new concrete smokehouse. After that I'm countin' on lettin' the youngest boy, Henry Absalom, farm the field on shares to kinder get his hands into the work."

Schooling Railroad Men.

A school car fitted with signaling apparatus has been in use for a short time on the Union and Southern Pacific lines for the instruction of employees, and in order to ascertain just what amount of benefit had been derived by the men they were subjected to a series of surprise tests. Eighteen kinds of regular signals were employed, besides some specials, including torpedoes, fuses, stop flags, reversed lights, extinguished lights, semaphore arms at danger and lantern and hand signals. Twelve hundred and fifty-eight tests were made, and the engine men showed an efficiency of nearly 99 per cent. Of the small number of violations none was of a character to have caused any serious accident.

BULWER LYTTON.

He Was a Grotesque Figure According to This Picture.

The late Dr. Edward Vaughan Keenly, who appeared as counsel for the Tichborne claimant, was well acquainted with many of the celebrities of his time. In the memoirs which his daughter has published there are some piquant passages. Here is what he had to say in his diary about Bulwer Lytton:

"Dined tonight with the lord chief justice, Lord Houghton, Bulwer Lytton and other senators and ladies. Bulwer Lytton is a clown. He was shabbily dressed and sidled into the room with slouching air and gait. He held his hat in his hand as though about to drop it and looked as though he did not know what to do with his legs. He gaped, his eye was lacklustered, and he said nothing. It is almost impossible to believe he wrote the works which pass under his name. His wife says he did not write them. He has a great nose like Fitzball or Bardoiph, but not so red as the latter's. He has cut off his beard, and the hairs are scanty and scrubby down his lank Don Quixote jaws. I expected a fine gentleman, perhaps a fop like his own Devereux or like Bolingbroke, and I saw a crapulous fossil. He took Mrs. Round down to dinner, but never spoke a word to her, remaining silent or mumbling to himself. I think Cockburn was ashamed of him, and, although he asked him especially to meet me, he did not venture to solicit my opinion of him. But I told it to him. And he was ashamed of his guest."

He Asked.

He had been courting a girl for a long time. It happened on Sunday night after church. They were sitting on the sofa, and she looked with ineffable tenderness into his noble blue eyes.

"Tom," she murmured, with a tremor in her voice, "didn't you tell me once you would be willing to do any act of heroism for my sake?"

"Yes, Mary, and I gladly reiterate that statement now," he replied in confidence.

"Well, Tom, I want you to do something really heroic for me."

"Speak, darling! What is it?"
"Ask me to be your wife. We've been fooling long enough."
