A DOGS' CLUB.

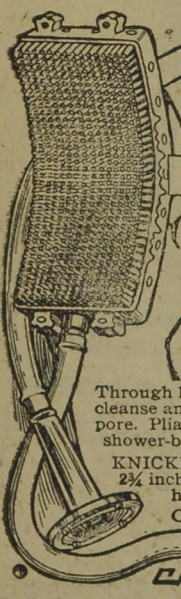

London's Luxurious Resort For Aristocratic Canine Pets.

London is the only city in the world boasting a dogs' club. The club is in a pleasant suit of rooms near the Trocadero and close to Regent street. Hand-some rugs cover the floors, the windows are velled in lace and silk, and luxurious sofas are ranged against the walls, while a profusion of soft pillows are scattered about for the comfort of aristocratic dogs who prefer the floor for a nap. Dainty satin lined wicker baskets are provided for the smaller pets. The membership fee is half a sovereign, but this does not include meals, baths or tips to the attendants.

Ladies going shopping or to the theater leave their pugs and poodles at the club and give the attendant in charge at the time a few shillings for looking after it, but if the dog is fed half a crown is charged. This pays for a nutron chop and milk. A whole crown provides the little animal with minced chicken. For a half sovereign Fido is bathed, brushed and perfumed, and if he is a French poodle his hair is carefully curled. A veterinary is attached to the club to see that only dogs in perfect health are admitted, all sick members being quarantined in a separate room. Blankets, boots, collars, harness, soaps and brushes and all the accessories of a fashionable dog's toilet as well as dog medicines are sold at the club.—New York Press.

A Klondike Pioneer.

Alexander McDonald, once one of the richest men in the Klondike, dropped dead recently at Dawson. He was dredging property near Clear Creek in the Stewart river country. The temperature was 50 degrees below zero when he went out to split wood for his cabin fire. While getting the wood he died of heart failure. McDonald went to the Klondike during the first rush. He quickly acquired many claims, securing several of the best groups in the camp. A London syndicate offered $11,000,000 but McDonald held his claims at $30,000,000. After encountering many mining reverses he lost most of his property. His latest venture in dredging property in the Stewart district has not as yet amounted to much. He hoped to realize good returns.

MEREDITH IS DEAD

Great English Novelist Is Victim of Heart Failure.

LAST OF THE VICTORIANS

Famous Author Was Only Ill a Few Days as Result of Chill Contracted While Driving — Heart Disease Resulted — Was Eighty-One Years of Age — Attended by the King's Own Physician.

London, May 18.—George Meredith, the English novelist, died at 3.35 this morning.

The immediate cause of death was heart failure, following grave symptoms that developed early in the evening. Mr. Meredith's illness began on May 15, and he steadily declined since that time. So serious was his condition Sunday night that the attending physician remained constantly at his bedside.

Mr. Meredith was out for his daily drive at his Boxhill retreat on Saturday in a little donkey chaise. He seemed then to be in his usual health. A keen east wind was blowing, and it appears to have given him a chill. He returned home in a state of collapse, with serious attacks of pain in the intestinal regions.

On Sunday the King's physicians, Sir Thomas Barlow, was called into consultation, and it was hoped that, despite his great age, the patient would rally, but internal inflammation developed rapidly. Mr. Meredith had been showing signs of weakness during the past week, having had periods of drowsiness, followed by marked signs of delirium.

Following so closely on the death of Swinburne, the passing of George Meredith removes the very last of the great band of Victorians that gave the literature of England in the 19th century a place with that of such great eras as the Elizabethan or the Augustan. With many peculiarities of style, regarded by many critics as degenerating into vicious faults, and an obscurity that frequently rivaled Browning at his worst, Meredith remains as one of the great prose writers of the period. No reader can ever forget such books as "The Order of Richard Fernald" or "Diana of the Crossways," and these are but two of a long list. As a poet Meredith also held a distinguished place, and his "Modern Love" touches very lofty heights.

George Meredith was born in Hampshire, Feb. 12, 1823. On the occasion of his 80th birthday he was showered with congratulations from all parts of the world and was waited on by a deputation headed by Anthony Hope and presented with an address signed by Algernon Charles Swinburne, Thos. Hardy, John Morley and more than a hundred leaders in art, letters and scholarship.

It is believed that he was held up by highwaymen, robbed and then thrown into the canal.

A DRINK OF GOLD WATER NEARLY CAUSED HIS DEATH

But Father Morrissey's Treatment Saved Francis Cassidy.

Here is his story:—
Burden, York Co., N.B., Dec. 3, 1903.
"At the age of 18, while haying on a very hot day, I got thirsty and took a drink from a spring. I was taken suddenly ill, and consulted a skilful doctor, who treated me for indigestion for four months. But I grew worse, got so weak I could not walk, had no appetite, could not digest anything, and lost 30 pounds. I was almost dead, but as a last hope went to Father Morrissey. He gave me two months' treatment, and from the first day I began to recover. Now I am 21 years old and a very strong, healthy man. Only for the Rev. Father Morrissey I would have been dead now."

To Be Dyspeptic Is To Be Miserable.

Dyspepsia is the prevailing malady of civilized life. It is largely due to gross errors in diet, over-eating, too free indulgence in stimulants and over-taxing the stomach with indigestible food, eating too rapidly without chewing the food sufficiently, indulging in hot biscuits, pastry, pickles, confectionery, etc.

Constipation, headache, heartburn, sour stomach, distress after eating, belching of wind, faintness, and fullness and distention of the stomach are a few of the many distressing symptoms of the poor, weary dyspeptic. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the stomach, stimulates the secretion of the saliva and gastric juice to facilitate digestion, removes acidity, purifies the blood, and tones up the system to full health and vigor, and thereby cures dyspepsia and all its tributary diseases.

Mr. Amos Sawyer, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect, I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

PRINCE RUPERT A BUSY TOWN.

Merchants Anticipate Frenzied Summer—Railway Work Preceding Apace.

(Victoria Colonist.)

Prince Rupert is busier now than it ever was, according to F. B. Casey, a surveyor who has been identified with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway company for two and a half years. He arrived from the north yesterday. He says that not only are things humming there at present but the prospects are that the forthcoming season will see the new Pacific coast transcontinental railway terminus a veritable hive of activity.

The preliminary work in connection with the establishment of what is expected to be one of the largest commercial centres of the coast, Mr. Casey says, is well underway. The townsite of Kalen Island is assuming some kind of shape. Hitherto it had been impossible for the casual visitor to understand how the company proposed converting that site into the beautiful city, the plans of which have been prepared and admired everywhere. Now they can obtain some idea of what the town is going to look like when the workmen are finished with the herculean task that has been initiated. Mr. Casey states that the sewerage system has been commenced, and that the place is rapidly beginning to assume the appearance of the modern up-to-date city that has been so carefully designed.

A GRAND HARBOR.

There is one point about the new townsite with which Mr. Casey is particularly impressed, and that is its harbor. For more than a year he was working on its survey and he has come to the conclusion that it is about the finest land-locked body of water that can be found anywhere in the world. He is convinced that it would be impossible to find any spot so spacious, so well calculated for the convenient handling of large amounts of shipping, and withal so remarkably easy of access. This, in Mr. Casey's opinion, is the great point in favor of the situation that has been selected by the G. T. P. for their coast terminus.

Mr. Casey thinks that the majority of people have a wrong idea of the city in embryo. They believe that it is going to be built on a bog. That is not so, asserts Mr. Casey. He says that the topographical feature of the Kalen Island are much similar to those at Seattle. It is made up of hills and valleys. The latter are not steep. The valleys, he admits, are a little bit damp. But they are, he avers, not bogs by any means. He does not think that the railway officials could have hit upon a point for a terminus on the coast better fitted for the establishment of another metropolis.

DIGBY ISLAND.

At present Mr. Casey says gangs of men are employed on Digby Island. Here there are some fifteen hundred or more acres, which property belonged to the Indians before the historic deal was entered into with them as a result of which the railway obtained possession of three-quarters of it. This land is going to be divided into twenty-acre plots and Mr. Casey is of the opinion, although he wishes it understood that he is not making the statement authoritatively, that it is to be utilized for bona fide settlers intending to enter upon agricultural pursuits.

The work of railway construction is proceeding apace. When Mr. Casey left the north the grading had been completed for over one hundred miles inland. He meant by this that practically all that had to be done had been finished, although there remained a few spots where the cutting was especially heavy, that had to be dealt with. That, however, would soon be disposed of as the working force was constantly being augmented.

While at Prince Rupert, Mr. Casey says, there were from thirty to fifty men arriving by every incoming steamer to take up employment with the railway company.

What with the Grand Trunk employees, the speculators, and those who will go into the interior to prospect along the route of the new line, Mr. Casey affirms that Prince Rupert's business men are looking forward to a frenzied boom of no small proportions and, accordingly, are making all necessary preparations that they may be able to cope with the situation.

Fire broke out in the Queen Hotel, Edmundston, owned by John Soucie at 9.45 p. m. on May 12, and within fifteen minutes the entire building was a mass of flames, some of the guests barely escaping with their lives. John Soucie was so badly burned about the hands and face as to necessitate his removal to the hospital at St. Basil. The loss is said to exceed twenty thousand dollars with very small insurance.

C. W. Conell, of Northampton, had his left leg broken between the ankle and the knee on Monday of last week. The accident was caused by a log rolling from a barge on which he was working.

WOLF HUNT IN CHICAGO.

Six Animals Escape from the Zoo and are Pursued.

CHICAGO, May 15.—The biggest animal hunt in the history of Lincoln Park was organized early yesterday, when it was discovered that six wolves had escaped from the zoo and were roaming at large. Cy Devery, head animal keeper, was notified, and the profit of a gold mine depends, only.

took charge of the hunt. He pressed into service all available park policemen and augmented his force with animal keepers armed with staves, pitchforks and ropes.

After searching for several hours the hunters succeeded in capturing two of the wolves and returned them to their den. The other four proved to be more fleet than their pursuers on bicycles and led the hunters a merry chase. Later two of the larger wolves were cornered near the northern entrance of the park and showed fight. After several attempts to rope them had failed it was found necessary to kill them.

As soon as the day force of policemen had reported they were organized into another hunting party and the park was closely guarded to keep the two wolves still at large from escaping. At intervals during the day the animals were seen running in the wooded parts of the park, and once they attempted to escape at Diversey Boulevard.

In the afternoon the hunt became serious, as the park was beginning to fill with children. The police were instructed to adopt drastic measures, but failed to get within shot of the wolves. Several times during the afternoon children were frightened by the appearance of the animals, but so far as known they did not make an attempt to attack any one. The two wolves are still at large.

not on the amount of rock crushed under the stamps but upon the amount of gold which can be extracted from the rock. In a similar way the value of food which is eaten does not depend on the quantity which is taken into the stomach but on the amount of nourishment extracted from it by the organs of nutrition and digestion. When these organs are diseased they fail to extract the nourishment in sufficient quantities to supply the needs of the several organs of the body, and these organs cannot work without nourishment. The result is heart "trouble," liver "trouble" and many another ailment. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, acting on every organ of the digestive and nutritive system, restores it to health and vigor, it cures diseases remote from the stomach through the stomach which they originated. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.
