

THE ENGLISH UNEMPLOYED.

Treasure-Hunting Is Suggested as a Possible Remedy.

To solve the unemployment problem in England the curious suggestion is made to organize a big scheme for the recovery of the treasure lost by the English King John Lackland of Magna Charta fame in the Lincolnshire quicksands nearly 700 years ago.

On Oct. 11, 1216, King John, after raging furiously up and down England in his interminable quarrels with his barons, marched out of King's Lynn, Norfolk, where the townsmen had prostrated him with rich gifts.

This baggage train was to take a short cut across the Well Stream, which was fordable at low tide and provided a path five miles long over unstable sand to Long Sutton, where John with his horsemen would await its arrival.

What was quicksand in 1216 is firm ground in 1905, reclaimed by diking and draining. In the wagons was the plunder of half a kingdom and the royal treasure of a king. It is certainly worth recovering.

FOOD FOR THE SEINE.

An Incident of Whistler's Student Days in Paris.

The early scenes in "Trilby" have shown us the hilarious squalor of the student life in Paris when Whistler joined the studio that Gleyre carried on in succession to Delacroix. It was the Bohemia, barely modernized, of Murger's novel, and the shifts to which these raw recruits in art descended furnished Whistler for life with some of his raciest stories.

On the Pont des Arts they lifted the huge canvas. "Un," they said, with a great swing, "deux, trois—vlan!" and over it went into the water with a splash. Sergeants de ville came running, omnibuses stopped, and boats pushed out on the river.

Cuba's Ingratitude to Spain.

Madrid, June 21.—The news that Cuba has officially declined to consider Spain's debt claim has caused a stir in official circles.

Senor Besada, the Minister of Finance, expected the claim would be settled, as he considered the 300,000,000 pesetas ($60,000,000), but a slight return for the enormous sacrifices made by Spain for Cuba's prosperity.

RACE TRACK RIOTS

Great Parisian Sporting Event Spoiled by Strikers.

BOYS SEIZE THE HORSES

Contesting Animals Are Ambushed and Driven Back to the Stables by Striking Stable Boys—Crowds in Frenzy Attack the Riders and Try to Burn Down the Stands —The Police Restored Order.

Paris, June 21.—An occurrence unprecedented in the history of the French turf almost prevented the running of the grand steeplechase of Paris yesterday, at the Anteuil course. The meeting was disorganized and a serious riot took place, in which several persons were injured and many arrests were made.

Inspired and aided, it is stated, by Pataud and other revolutionary labor leaders, 40 militant members of the Stable Boys' Union, which was organized at the time of the postal strike, armed with revolvers, ambushed the vans conveying the horses from Maisons Lafitte, their training quarters, cut the traces and forced them back to the stables.

In the meantime, owing to the delay in calling on the events, the greatest confusion prevailed at the race-track. It was a long time before the cause of the non-appearance of the horses became known, but finally a magistrate and a force of police set off on automobiles to the scene of the trouble, where they succeeded in putting the stable boys to flight and rescuing the racers.

It seemed at first as though the meeting would have to be abandoned and President Fallieres, who is always present on the occasion of the grand steeplechase, was advised by telephone not to come to the track. Eventually, however, the call was given for the first race. This was more than two hours after the scheduled time and the crowds, already exasperated from waiting, became violent when a single horse presented itself for a walkover in the first event.

Jockey and horse were forced to beat a hasty retreat to the paddock, as the crowd swarmed on the track and refused to permit the jockey to take his mount over the course.

The second event was for army officers, riding their own horses. For some reason or other, the crowds became frenzied when several officers centered out for the start. The officers were pelted with missiles of various kinds and two were quite severely injured. The barriers guarding the course were broken down and hundreds of men invaded the track, several of them being ridden down and injured by the wildly excited horses.

About the same time the booths and stands were set on fire, but fortunately reinforcements of police, troops and firemen, who had been hastily summoned, arrived in time to clear the track and extinguish the flames. The police made a large number of arrests, and the remainder of the program was carried out in comparative quiet.

Arrested for Contempt.

Winnipeg, June 21.—Louis James, husband of the woman murdered on Arlington street some weeks ago, was arrested Saturday, on a bench warrant, charging him with contempt of court in not answering questions put to him in the witness box last Wednesday during the hearing of the case against the denegated young Barnardo lad who, though innocent, had confessed to the murder.

OTTAWA LETTER.

WAS THIS A GRAFT?

Mr. Pringle says men who mis-handle public funds should go to the penitentiary. Very good, read what follows:

"On January 15, 1904, an advance was made to Mr. Pringle at his own request of $200 on account of his sessional indemnity for 1904, the council not having then been convened for that year. Mr. Pringle never attended any meetings of the council in 1904, not being in the territory, and was not entitled under the law to any indemnity. The comptroller (Mr. Lithgow) from whom Pringle got the money, wrote him on June 6, 1905, and again on June 20, 1905, for a return of the money, stating that he could not make his returns until this money was refunded, and reminding Mr. Pringle of his promise to repay it. Up to July 31, 08, this money had not been repaid."

Not content with this he canvassed members of the council to pay him $1,000 more, although he was entitled to nothing.

This is money belonging to the people wrongly secured by Mr. Pringle in the first instance and dishonestly retained afterwards, in the face of repeated applications for payment. What has Mr. Pringle to say about this? This needs no comment, it explains itself. Had an official done this, Pringle would have described it as a graft.

LEFT YUKON.

In 1908, Mr. Pringle's career in Yukon came to an inglorious end, and to use his expression as applied to Mr. Congdon, "the people spued him out of their mouths." Mr. Congdon then elected to represent them in parliament. Before leaving Yukon, Mr. Pringle threatened to take the stump in the Conservative interests during the approaching elections.

RECOMMENCED SCURRILLOUS ATTACK.

Upon arriving in the north-west on his way out from Yukon, Mr. Pringle gave full scope to his intemperate form of speech, and the Tory papers were not slow in publishing his scandalous utterances. Speaking in Edmonton he said: "The worst disgrace of all was that Commissioner Henderson of Yukon, the night of his arrival in Dawson passed the evening in a dance hall in company with another official." Mr. Henderson was shown this statement, and under date 13th August, 1908, says: "This statement is absolutely untrue. I have never been in a dance hall in Dawson or any other place."

WAS PUBLICLY CHALLENGED.

Pringle's statements were always under conditions precluding a reply, either in church houses or under church auspices, therefore on June 24, 1908, he was publicly challenged by one quite competent to deal with him, and notified that if he, Pringle, dared take the public platform, as he threatened to do, his challenger would meet him and discredit him before the public. This challenge was extensively printed throughout the country, but Pringle failed to come to the scratch.

GLIMPSE AT HIS PAST.

Now this man has broken out again with insults to men whose names he is unworthy to mention, and he insults every man in Nova Scotia, by saying they would sell their vote for $5. Pringle is a man with no sense of personal responsibility. His evangelistic efforts in Yukon met with no success. He pledged himself if elected to the Yukon council to rid official life of men he said had disgraced it. After his election he hobnobbed with these same men, accepting the patronage at their hands and declared himself mistaken when criticizing their administration. He sacrificed his principles, such as they were, for the fruits of office. He betrayed those who trusted him. He sowed the wind, he reaped the whirl-wind. While enjoying patronage as member of the council, his letters ceased. Did all crime cease during these years? He wrote letters in secret, condemned men privately, but lacked the courage to charge them face to face. Had not the moral courage to accept the challenge upon a political platform extended to him by the editor of Dawson newspapers in June 1908 Pringle regarded discretion as the better part of valor.

He left Yukon a soured disappointed, discredited politician, an unsuccessful prospector, an unwelcome and ejected aspirant to a pastorate.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.

This is the man who criticizes those called to exalted position, insults the doctors of Nova Scotia, returns to his exploded Yukon charges "as a dog to his vomit." He says the moral atmosphere of Dawson offends people's wives and families. Mr. Pringle was not accompanied by his wife and family while in the north, why was this? The reasons may be good, but under the circumstances the public should know the reasons inasmuch as Pringle poses as a moral reformer.

If Mr. Pringle declined to appear upon a political platform in Nova Scotia, he must either have been insincere in his threat to take the platform or he feared meeting the gentleman who notified him that he would be present in such event.

PEOPLE WILL JUDGE HIM.

The people of Canada are entitled to know something of those who attack their public men, as Sir Frederick Borden truly said, "the ravings of such a person are not entitled to much notice." Pringle raved in Yukon to such an extent that he disgusted even those people who were inclined to sympathize with him. His political ambitions, utterly incapable of realization, obscured his moral vision and embittered his temperament, the end of it all was that he left the country and no person regretted his departure. From that time his hand appears to be turned against every man, and no person and no community is exempt from his scandalous attacks.

Concluding his remarks before the Assembly at Hamilton, Pringle quoted the Psalmist as saying—"When wicked men are exalted the vile walk abroad on either side." When Pringle was exalted to a seat on the Yukon council and threw in his lot with the men he had previously denounced, the vile, if there were any such, had an uninterrupted opportunity to walk abroad without let or hindrance from him.

YOUR NERVES ARE WEAK.

You sleep badly, appetite is variable. You eat but gain no strength. Morning tiredness makes you wish it was night. When night comes refreshing sleep is hard to obtain. To Sell the Hope Diamond.

Paris, June 21.—The most important diamond sale this city has seen in many decades will take place next Thursday at the Hotel Drouot, when the famous Habib collection will be offered to amateurs and dealers. The collection was brought together by Selim Habib, a Turkish collector and merchant. The collection consists of only eight stones, but it is anticipated that the sale will realize several million francs, for it is intimated that seven of the stones formerly belonged to various crown collections of jewels, while the eighth is the celebrated Hope diamond, which he bought for $400,000 and values at twice that sum.

Wife Refused to Be Dead.

Cmnden, N.J., June 21.—Charles Bradley was arrested last night on a charge of giving false information to newspapers.

Bradley loved Miss Nellie Simmons of Millville, but he had a wife, from whom he was estranged, though there was no divorce. Notices of his wife's death were inserted in several Philadelphia papers. He showed them to Miss Simmons and the ceremony was to be performed Sunday after his wife's funeral.

Unfortunately for Bradley, Mrs. Bradley saw the notices, declined to be buried and caused his arrest.
