

THE NEWFOUNDLAND ELECTIONS.

Returns to Hand Seem to Indicate a Victory For Morris.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 10.—Returns from Saturday's parliamentary elections were still very meagre and indecisive tonight, showing only thus far that eight of the thirty-six seats have been won by the adherents of the acting premier, Sir Edward Morris, and two by the supporters of Sir Robert Bond.

There are no political changes in any of the districts reporting today, though in Burin, where the Bondites retain two seats, the election was very close, the second seat being carried by a majority of one vote only.

It was an equally small margin in the Harbor Grace vote at the election last November that brought about the parliamentary deadlock in which each party had eighteen seats.

Today's returns from Harbor Main show that the Morrisites have re-elected Mr. Woodford, the Minister of Public Works, and his colleague by largely increased majorities.

The announcement today of the defeat of the two Bond candidates at Bay Deverde served to recall a recent campaign experience of Sir Robert Bond at that port. The former premier was pushed off the wharf into the harbor when he was about to land, and was compelled to abandon his effort to address the constituency.

HALIFAX, May 10.—Election returns from Newfoundland show gains by Sir Edward Morris as compared with the returns at the last general election seven months ago.

Sunday's returns showed a gain of one member from Carbonear for Morris, and those of today show that Morris will have two members from Ferryland instead of one, as at the election in November.

Partial returns from Harbor Grace indicate that Morris will have three members. At the previous election Bond got one of the three representatives from that district.

In Burin partial returns show a lead for the Morris candidates. Previously this district was represented by Bond men. It would seem pretty sure now that the Morris administration will be sustained. The completed returns so far are as follows:

	Morris. Bond.
Port De Grave	1 0
Carbonear	1 0
Bay De Verde	2 0
Ferryland	2 0
Harbor Main	2 0

A bulletin at midnight from St. John's (Nfld.), says Morris has carried twelve seats and Bond two, the latter with a very narrow majority.

SUCCESSFULLY RESCUED

Mr. Gibson, of Kingston, was rescued from an enemy that had relentlessly pursued him for years.

Mr. Gibson was born and brought up in Kingston. By profession he is a school teacher. He received his training in Queen's University, where he took a course in arts and medicine that well befits him to talk on almost any subject.

The enemy that for 25 years relentlessly pursued Mr. Gibson is a menace to our entire population—it is the demon, Catarrh.

Mr. Gibson says: "For years I was never free from Catarrh of the nose and throat. It bothered me winter and summer and kept me so continually coughing and hawking that I found it a great impediment to the proper performance of my duties at school. I used every available means of obtaining a cure, took bottle after bottle of medicine prescribed by local doctors, but never got more than temporary relief. I consulted a well-known specialist in the States, but after spending a considerable amount of money with him to no advantage, was forced to look elsewhere for relief, which I first received from Catarrhazone."

I consider Catarrhazone a genuine cure for Catarrh. It drove that loathsome disease completely out of my system, and today I am as well as if I never knew what the word Catarrh implied."

A straightforward proof of cure, coming from a well-known gentleman like Mr. Gibson carries conviction of the fact with it that Catarrhazone does all that is claimed for it. As a cure for Catarrh and Bronchitis it positively has no equal. All druggists, price $1.00; small size, 50c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

German English.

Judge quotes this sample of "English as she is wrote" by a German firm which wishes to tell Americans how to use a new mechanical saltcellar:

"It is necessary that is emloid only a salt table very fine milled and very dried. Another salt is to pound and to dry previously than in this case it is forming masses (crumbs). It is necessary that the saltcellar is not placed humid and is not touched with hands wet. By a good and rational use the cellar is functioning blameless and is of an unlimited durability. The cellar is the best."

Searchlights.

Metallic mirrors for searchlights may supersede those made of glass. The metallic mirror has a surface composed of alternate bands or rings of gold and white reflecting surfaces. It is claimed that this mirror gives a more penetrating beam of light both at night and in foggy weather and that the intensity of the light is so great that it is impossible to aim accurately at the projector. Another advantage claimed is that they are not fractured by concussion and that even when penetrated by bullets the area of distortion is very small.

DO YOUR EARS RING?

This is the beginning of Chronic Catarrh. If not checked, the result is deafness. A simple remedy that many physicians advise is to slowly inhale "Catarrhazone" a few minutes Catarrhazone cures the Catarrhal each day. The soothing vapor of condition and hearing improves at once. Head noises, buzzing ears are probably no remedy so efficient

FOURTEEN POUNDS IN TWO MONTHS

Remarkable Gain Made by Terra Nova, Cape Breton, Woman

"Father Morrissey's No. 10" (Lung Tonic) has wrought some wonderful cures. Here is a typical case, as described by the patient herself:

"During the Fall of 1906 I contracted a severe cold, which settled upon my lungs. After being treated by two physicians of high standing my condition was not any better, but in fact getting worse. My friends began to have serious doubts about my recovery. I had heard of Father Morrissey's remarkable career as a medical adviser, and wrote to him explaining my case. In a few days I received an encouraging letter from him, and some of his 'Lung Tonic,' and immediately I began to improve, gaining fourteen pounds in two months."

I strongly recommend his 'Lung Tonic' for Colds and any form of Lung Disease."

Yours sincerely,
ANNIE McDONALD.

A SUBMARINE GARDEN.

Gorgeous and Cruel Living Flowers of the Tropical Seas.

In the world's vast submarine garden, especially in the tropics, are thousands of organisms which the botanist would naturally call plants. The tulip has been reproduced by what the naturalist says is the hydroid polyp, an ugly name for one of the most exquisite things to which the sea has given birth. Like the tulip, it is found in clusters. The lily of the valley has life in the ocean's depths, where its delicate stem also buds with the weight of the snowy bells.

Besides the microscopic forms, however, are others which are huge in contrast to them because they may be large enough to catch the eye. In the flower garden of the ocean the Nememone is even more artistic in shape and gorgeous in coloring than its namesake so familiar in the doorway. This living flower of the sea has been found in scores of shapes. At times it is a pedestal of pure white or of a creamy tint, bearing a wonderful resemblance to a marble coltural vase. It shapes itself into the rose, ready to hold the plant or blossom. Like a bell, it hangs suspended in the waters or again takes a fancy to become the modest but succulent tomato, not only in form, but in color, while the anemone as a salad has indeed an appetizing appearance.

Looking at the various models of this mysterious creation of nature, only the man of science would believe it to be a thing of life. It is a voracious animal, too, for those beautiful fringes and edgings with which it is adorned are tentacles and stringers, with which it captures the unlucky prey that comes within reach. Its ornate coloring, yellow, purple, pink, green, sometimes a harmonious blend of several tints, is merely a device to lure its victims to destruction. It is a very cruel specimen of sea flower. There are giants in the family also, some of which are as wide as a man's hand. These devour shrimp and small fish.

Emperor William's Appetite.

The Emperor, William I., was a fine looking man notwithstanding his age, and he had that old world manner which is as attractive as it is rare. He was full of gaiety and chaffed some of the young people present. It was a mystery to me how he survived what he ate and drank, although he was doing a cure. He began with poached eggs and went on to poached meats and various strange German dishes, added many cups of strong tea, and ended with strawberries, ices and sweet, tepid champagne. We talked banalities. It was not very exciting—Lady Randolph Churchill's Reminiscences.

The Register of the Voice.

The register of the voice is sometimes confused with the range. There are two registers to the voice, whatever its quality. These are termed the register of the chest and the register of the head. The chest notes are given in full, even tones and with the natural voice. The tones may be either open or closed. They are given from the chest and the back of the nose. Head tones come from the bridge of the nose and if untrained are apt to develop an unpleasant shrillness. In a trained voice it is impossible to detect where the chest register ends.

Father's Insane Rage.

Brantford, May 10.—The drug store of Cameron & Higginbotham was robbed Friday night, and the detention of a 14-year-old boy employee followed. His father, a respectable resident, was summoned to the police station and became so enraged that he lost his mental balance and it required the efforts of three policemen to remove him from the police cells, where he wanted to kill his son.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of many cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures. If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Woman's World

ONE WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

Mrs. Balis' Way of Helping Along "the City Beautiful" Idea.

What a busy homekeeper can do to help in making "the city beautiful" is shown in the case of Mrs. Sylvia Chapin Balis of Belleville, Ont., who is an earnest worker for civic improvement.

The work began in a small way. Having neighbors with children who loved flowers, she first drew the little ones into a combination "or the beautifying of the rear yards in the block. Unsightly litter was all removed. Vines and blooming flowers were planted along the fences, and the former unsightly and untidy alley was made to blossom as the rose. It became a veritable little park.

The influence extended throughout the entire neighborhood, which entered into a fascinating contest for beautifying. A civic improvement society was formed to do for the whole town what the little group of neighbors had done for their own immediate environs.

Mrs. Balis was formerly active in work for the deaf, being located at the School for the Deaf, Trenton, N. J. She has written a helpful text book which is much in vogue among this class. Last summer at the annual convention of American Instructors of the Deaf held at Morgantown, N. C., she was chosen as a member of the board of executive directors, being the first and only woman to be accorded this honor.

For Round Shoulders.

The fact that round shoulders are generally caused by an unsatisfactory physical condition was for a long time overlooked. Yet the truth of this theory may easily be proved by a mental summary of those whose shoulders are bent. You will find that not one on the list is a person of abundant vitality.

Indeed, so generally recognized is the part which organic causes have to do with this deformity that the very first thing recommended by a physician appealed to in such a case is to take some invigorating tonic, such as quinine and iron. As a supplement to this prescription the patient is recommended to take as much outdoor exercise as possible—to do anything, in fact, which shall get the blood into circulation.

Among the very best outdoor exercises to take in treating oneself for round shoulders is walking. This should be done with head and shoulders thrown back, and a constant effort should be made to breathe deeply. A good plan to acquire the deep breathing habit while walking is to count six while you inhale and six while you expand the breath. If this is done regularly when walking the habit of expanding the chest and lungs becomes fixed. Horseback riding is another excellent means by which to correct this defect.

But all this will be of no avail if the patient persists in her inclination to bend over during the course of household pursuits. To effect a rapid cure the back must be held perfectly erect while reading, sewing or eating. One indulgence of the old easy habit of slouching over makes it all the harder to reform. When sleeping a hard mattress should be used by the woman with bowed shoulders, and at the most one pillow may be allowed. The cure will be much hastened, however, if no pillows are used.

UNREST IN INDIA.

London Paper Says Ungloved Hand Is Needed to Avoid Trouble.

Every morning the papers give fresh evidence that nowhere in the world is there freedom from trouble or the apprehension of trouble. Nation is stirring against nation; creed against creed; class against class. No longer do we hear, even from our sentimental rulers, the confident assertion that the day of the sword is past, and that reason will henceforth rule the world. Unhappily, the signs of lawlessness and of coming danger are nowhere more apparent than in India. Fifty years ago, after the Mutiny had been suppressed with a sternness which was the truest mercy, the responsibility for the Government of that great congeries of tribes and tongues was assumed by the British Crown. For fifty years the devoted servants of the Sirkar have driven the road and bridged the ford; fought plague and famine; worked and died for the people, with the result that the shrewdest, but, happily, the least virile, race among them, encouraged by sentimentalists, and swollen with the pride of ill-digested learning, are asserting, with every form of dastard violence, equality with their white rulers.

Meanwhile, the talking political parrots at home ignore the fact that India was won by the sword, and must be held by the sword in the future. Lord Morley, to his credit be it said, has, on several occasions, shown an admirable firmness. But how far the hands of the men on the spot are tied by sentimental squeamishness it is impossible to tell. At any rate, a lamentable hesitation is being shown in grappling with the state of rebellion, scarcely veiled, which exists in Bengal. An English lady blown to pieces in her carriage; four attempts made on the life of the Lieutenant-governor; police agents shot down in the open street and in broad daylight; an informer killed actually in a Government prison; these are some of the events of the past twelve months which are causing grave searchings of heart among all who know the conditions of which British rule in India is staked. And, in face of this, the Government commit the phenomenal blunder of handing the body of an executed criminal over to his relations, and permitting his funeral to be made the occasion of a political demonstration, and an instrument to violence. Have they never read Mark Antony's speech over the body of Caesar?

In the commander-in-chief we have, fortunately, a strong, stern man, and were the preservation of peace handed over to the military arm we should feel confidence. But it is, unfortunately, not realized as yet that the charming qualities which make a man an acceptable and successful figurehead in Canada are not those which avail to rule over races of another color and another mind, who own no argument but force and mistake leniency for weakness. Lord Minto is an amiable man, and has proved himself a gallant soldier. But he is an ordinary man, and it is the exceptional man of clear sight and firm purpose whom India needs as her ruler to-day. It is an ungrateful task to criticize any man who is at the post of danger; but the interests of British rule in India and of India herself must be set before those of any individual, and criticism has become a public duty.—The London Graphic.

Italians Honor Victoria.

A movement has just been set on foot by The Petit Nicos, of Nice, Italy, for the erection of a monument to the late Queen Victoria. It will be remembered that her late Majesty was associated in a special sense during her lifetime with the Riviera, wintering there year after year until she became a familiar figure to the native population.

The Petit Nicos therefore, voicing the sentiments of the French population, is appealing for subscriptions to this monument to the memory of the Queen whose presence did so much to render the Riviera known to English people. While the initiative of the movement is entirely and suitably French, the Paris Daily Mail is associating itself with The Petit Nicos in the expectation that many English people in the habit of visiting the Riviera may desire to contribute to the monument fund.

Struck With Pickaxe.

Sarnia, May 10.—An Indian, David Jacobs a railway navvy, suddenly stooped to pick up some spikes beside the track, was accidentally struck on the head with a pick-axe wielded by an elder brother, who was loosening the ties. He will probably die.
