

FEARFUL TORNADO.

Lasted Less Than Fifteen Minutes

BUT WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR ELEVEN DEATHS AT BALTIMORE.

Considerable Destruction to Property.

Baltimore, July 21.—A fierce tornado characterized by a wind storm of extraordinary velocity, thunder, vivid lightning and a heavy rain, burst upon Baltimore at 1.30 p. m. yesterday. Eleven persons lost their lives, hundreds of houses were unroofed, trees in the public parks and streets were torn up by the roots, many buildings damaged and several people injured. The storm exhausted its fury in less than 15 minutes. The damage done was in the residence portions of the city, along the river front and in the harbor.

Nine were drowned in the harbor from open boats, one was killed by a falling tree and one by a live wire.

The first three victims on this list were in a rowboat on the river with three other companions. The boat capsized, three being drowned and three being rescued by a tug. The boy killed by a live wire had, in company with two other boys, gone into a shed for protection when the shed blew down and the wire fell on him.

Michael Schuler, with his wife and three children, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Joseph Cooper, and his wife, had gone on the harbor for a sail in a boat. A sudden gust capsized the boat, throwing Schuler, Cooper and Mrs. Cooper into the water, leaving Mrs. Schuler and her children pinned in the cabin. Cooper saved himself and his wife by hanging to the bottom of the overturned boat and Schuler saved himself in the same way, after making frantic efforts to get at his imprisoned wife and children. A crew from the schooner Edward M. Hunt rescued Schuler and Cooper and wife and towed the capsized vessel to the wharf, where it was righted and the dead bodies of Mrs. Schuler and her children taken from the cabin.

Thomas Carroll, with four other young men, was on the harbor in a rowboat, which was capsized. Carroll was drowned while his four companions clung to the rudder of the Merchants' and Miners' steamship Chatham. They were rescued by a tug.

A colored camp meeting near Powhatan had just been dismissed when the storm broke. A huge oak tree fell upon the tent in which the service had been held. Several worshippers were caught beneath it. The tree had to be sawed into pieces before they could be released. Wm. Cornish was crushed to death.

A hole several feet in diameter was blown in the wall of St Mary's Star of the Sea Catholic church in South Baltimore. A portion of the stone cornice weighing more than a ton fell to the street.

At the foot of Concord street the Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Company's warehouse was unroofed with small damage to the building but the rain poured on the valuable cargo stored therein, doing damage estimated at from $100,000 to $300,000.

DEATH OF BONANZA MACKAY.

One of the Pioneer American Millionaires Passes Away in London.

London, July 21.—John W. Mackay, of San Francisco, who had been suffering from heat prostration since Tuesday, died at his residence on Carlton House Terrace at 6.30 o'clock last evening.

Mr. Mackay's condition Saturday had improved, but the patient had a bad night and next morning a consultation was held by the physicians. Mr. Mackay grew worse as the day progressed; he was unconscious most of the time and died very peacefully. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. The right lung was found to be congested and the symptoms indicated pneumonia.

Mrs. Mackay, her mother and Countess Telfaner were present when Mr. Mackay died and Princess Galatio Colonna arrived from Paris a half hour after her step father's death.

[John W. Mackay was one of the original and pioneer millionaires of the United States, acquiring his fame and fortune in company with Flood & Fair in the mines of Nevada. An Irishman who landed in the United States penniless, the story of his success has often been told in picturesque fashion, as well as that of his wife and daughter, the latter of whom, bar-footed, assisted her mother at the wash-tub in the early days, and eventually married a prince. Mackay is reputed to have been very generous to his friends and his name will live in connection with the Mackay-Bennett cable, which he principally financed in construction].
