THE CEREMONY.

Description of the Observances at the Coronation of King Edward at Westminster Abbey.

Canon Armitage Robinson, at Westminster Abbey, thus described the ceremony that will be observed at the Coronation of King Edward. He said:

In the centre of the cross will be set the Royal Throne, and in the sanctuary, for the King's anointing, King Edward's chair, which contains the fateful stone of Scone. The Dean and Chapter of Westminster, having first brought the regalia, which have been deposited in their charge the

EDWARD THE CONFESSOR'S SHRINE IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

Note.—King's coronation chair to the left night before, and delivered them to the nobles appointed to carry them, will, with the choir, receive the King and Queen at the west end of the nave. Then, from the four sides of the theatre, the Archbishop will present the King four times to his faithful subjects, and receive their assent to his Coronation. The Litany will be sung by two Bishops vested in their copes, and this will be followed by the first part of the Communion Service and the sermon, which is to be "short and suitable to the great occasion." The preacher, as has already been announced, will be the Bishop of London. Then, when the oath has been taken by the King, the presence of the Holy Spirit will be invoked in the ancient hymn "Veni Creator." After a short prayer, in the course of which the Archbishop will lay his hand on the vessel containing the sacred oil, the anointing of the King is made, "Zadok, the Priest," being sung. Then, in turn, each with a short prayer or address, the Royal ornaments are delivered— the spurs, the sword—that being at once laid by the King on the altar. To be redeemed at a price by one of his nobles who carries it—the spurs, the sword, the robes, are placed on the King by the Dean of Westminster, and then are delivered the ring, the sceptres, and last of all the Crown. Then there follows a new ceremony—for in a service like this we must call that new which is little more than two centuries old. A Bible will be presented with the words, "Our gracious King, we present you with this Book, the most valuable thing that the world affords." Then the Archbishop blesses the King, each blessing being followed with a loud Amen. After the Te Deum has been sung, the King is lifted into his chair by the Archbishop and Bishops and other peers of the realm. The Archbishop first does his homage and receives the kiss of the King. The Bishops and other peers do their homage through the representatives of their orders. The Queen's anointing and crowning then follows, and this, by the consent of the Archbishop of Canterbury and the King, will be performed by the Archbishop of York, a happy precedent thus being set. The King will then solemnly offer the bread and wine which are to be used for Communion. The King and Queen will make their oblations or gifts to the Church, and the Communion service will proceed, the Archbishop, the Dean, certain Bishops, and the King and Queen joining in Communion. At the close of the service the King will pass through the altar screen and lay certain of the Royal ornaments upon the altar of St. Edward, and then return and proceed out of the church.

The Ideal Farm Laborer.

The hired man who will look after the interests of his employer, who will feed all the stock carefully and economically, who will be on hand to do the chores Sunday and every other day, can milk cows, should be well paid for his labor. Such men are too scarce. They soon get a farm of their own and go to work for themselves. What a contrast between a man of that kind and a hobo that passes along the highways looking after back-door handouts.

A Few Points.

You can't be both truthful and popular.

When a fellow has no bank account to draw on it doesn't do him much good to draw on his imagination. "It's all well enough to have an iron will," says the Manayunk Philosopher, "provided it isn't a pig iron one."

A Centenarian Voter.

Mr. Thomas Russell, the Alton centenarian, despite the weight of the hundred years which he attained on May 16, went out on Thursday, 29th May, and voted at Cataract Station. He has been voting steadily in Caledon Township, since 1835.

Man Proposes.

Jack—And what answer did you get? Reggie—Well, she said she had not as yet questioned her heart. I must wait. Jack—And what did you say to that? Reggie—I haven't the least idea. But, say, I'd be awfully glad if you would be my best man.—Brooklyn Life.

Some Scotch Prayers.

The chief of the Leslies is said to have prayed before a battle: "Lord, be on our side! An' gin ye canna be on our side, aye lay low a bit, an' ye'll see thae carles get a hidin' that must please ye." An old Covenant-er, who ruled his household with a rod of iron, is said to have prayed in all sincerity at family worship: "Oh Lord, hae a care o' Rab; for he is on the great deep, an' Thou hold-est it in the hollow o' Thy hand. An' hae a care o' Jamie, for he has gone to fight the enemies o' his country, an' the outcome o' the battle is wi' Thee. But ye needna fash Yersel' wi' wee Wully, for I hae him here, an' I am awcawable o' lookin' after him mysel'."

The Light on the Isle of Pharos.

The most famous lighthouse of antiquity stood on the isle of Pharos, off the city of Alexandria, in Egypt. It was one of the seven wonders of the world and was put up during the reign of Ptolemy Philadelphus. After standing up 1,600 years it was destroyed by an earthquake. It is understood to have been over 500 feet high.

An Imperfect One.

Stinger—Oh, well, I suppose you regard me as a perfect fool?

Beck—My dear fellow, I have long ago given up looking for perfection in this imperfect world.—Boston Transcript.

Perpetual Motion.

When George Stephenson was asked, "Do you believe in perpetual motion?" he replied, "Yes, if you lift yourself by the waist-band of the trousers, and carry yourself three times round the room."

Just so, and a woman would just as soon believe that she has not to pay dearly for common premium soaps, in the low quality of soap, in ruined hands and clothes. She would be kept in perpetual motion trying to do with common soap what she could so easily do with Sunlight Soap—Octagon Bar. 215
