

No! No! No! No!

This word is used four times by Prof. W. Hodgson Ellis, Official Analyst to the Dominion Government, in reporting the result of his analyses of Sunlight Soap.

"No unsaponified fat"; that means no waste.

"No free alkali"; that means no damage to clothes or hands.

"No loading mixture"; that means every atom is pure soap.

"No adulteration whatever"; that means pure ingredients.

Try Sunlight Soap—Octagon Bar—and you will see Prof. Ellis is right. He should know.

BRITISH DINNER TABLE.

Food Imports Into Britain Last Year—Some Lines in Which It May Be Indefinitely Expanded.

An English correspondent writes: England is the Canadian farmers' most profitable market. Cater for it, and not New York, Chicago and other points in the United States.

Of the 5,376,000,000 pounds of meat consumed in Great Britain last year no less than 2,123,000,000 pounds weight were imported in one form or another. Ireland, with a population of 4,500,000, or a little over one-eighth of Great Britain, exported 640,000 head of cattle and 641,000 sheep. What will Canada do in the next decade?

Value of British Imports in 1901.

Live and dead meat ... $225,500,000
Wheat and wheat flour ... 170,000,000
Bacon and hams ... 89,000,000
Cheese ... 31,000,000
Butter ... 88,000,000
Eggs ... 30,000,000
Vegetables ... 16,500,000
Condensed Milk in tins ... 6,000,000

The value of the imports of live stock and the produce thereof was nearly $580,000,000, of wheat, wheat flour, corn, grain and feeding stuffs, only $296,000,000.

Of the $16,500,000 sent abroad for vegetables, nearly half was paid for potatoes, and almost $4,000,000 for onions.

The trade in condensed milk, which could be conducted better from Canada than from any other country, is increasing both in volume and favor. Nearly one-half of the total world's production is still made in England and Ireland, notwithstanding that milk is dear and taxes are very high.

Sir Thomas Cleve & Co., Limerick, Ireland, manufacture one-third of the condensed milk used in the world. Sir Thomas and his brothers, who are interested with him in this wonderful trade, were born in the Eastern Townships, Quebec.

A large trade in poultry is conducted from the continent, principally in turkeys and geese at Christmas. Russia has, however, made a bid for the London market, more especially for chickens, of which half a million are used annually in the metropolis.

The Canadian trade in poultry with the old country was started so long ago as 1874, and is now sure to assume large proportions. Many Canadians would, however, be surprised to find that poultry is still a luxury and not an ordinary article of diet in this country; it is rarely found on the tables of the working or, indeed, of the middle classes. Canada can remedy this, and with great advantage to her farmers, consequently the following may be of interest:

There was a splendid supply of Canadian turkeys in the London markets at Christmas, prices being 12½c to 14½c per pound in the feather. French are very good, 12½c to 14c for hens and 27c for cocks. Irish show an improvement, but the English birds, of wonderful size (40 pounds) and quality, fetched fancy prices, $10 to $15 each, and smaller Norfolk bred birds 25c to 27½c per pound at the Smithfield market.

English bred chickens (capons) weighing 20 pounds were offered at Leadenhall market, and smaller birds, smooth-skinned, with good color and quality were procurable at $2.50 a pair. The ordinary retail prices for chickens is $1.25 to $1.75 a pair, and none too good at that.

It will be seen that there is still room for improvement in Canadian turkeys and chickens. The Britishers who can afford to eat poultry at the present prohibitive cost to the poor man will have none but the best, and he will pay the highest price for it; but what is more, the Englishman can also raise them, but not in sufficient quantity.

At the shows of poultry in 1901 a decided improvement was visible, and large sums were given for breeding stock. At a sale in July last, owing to the death of a noted exhibitor, the prices were very high, notably for Orpingtons. One black Orpington at this sale made $750, another cock of the same breed $100, a hen $105 and $90 for another hen of this highly prized variety. Again, $50 to $60 were frequently paid for Orpingtons at the Crystal Palace and other shows.

The Buff Orpington with white legs are the birds for table, and, as one of the leading London journals says, "they are extra good for crossing purposes, lay large brown eggs, are good table birds and undoubtedly hardy." Dorkings continue to hold their own. The Dorking-Indian game crosses exhibited at the dead poultry shows were perfection. In any other class the chief prizes were won with Buff Orpingtons.

Canadians should make a note of this and keep their eyes on London, Liverpool and Glasgow, the best markets for all kinds of food produced in the Dominion. The general desire now expressed is that Canada should receive a greater proportion of the enormous sums now expended by Britain for food. It was at Ottawa that the great trade in live cattle, dead meat and poultry was first started in 1874, and it is this branch of agriculture that the Dominion should strain every effort to develop and capture.

The only chance Canada has of successfully competing with foreigners, who are fully alive to the requirements of the British markets, is to improve the quality of the cattle, sheep, pigs and poultry in the Dominion, and at once. Englishmen, even on the score of loyalty to the Empire, cannot be expected to buy Canadian edibles of inferior quality if they can get better elsewhere at the same price; indeed, why should Canadians themselves continue to eat beef or other food of bad description?

Remember that there are 6½ million more British mouths to feed here than there were twenty years ago and the annual increase in population bids fair to continue.

Reversed.
