

LORENZ ON HIS METHODS.

Famous Surgeon Says
Bloodless Operation is More Humane.

(New York Times.)

Dr. Adolf Lorenz yesterday performed four more operations for congenital hip dislocation, with the same successful results which have attended his efforts since his visit to New York. In fact, in one case of double dislocation of the hip bones he established a good record by reducing one of the deformed hips in one minute and twenty-five seconds.

The visiting surgeon operated first at the Bellevue Medical College before a large crowd of well-known surgeons. About 200 students at the college were present. He then visited the Vanderbilt Clinic at the College for Physicians and Surgeons, Fifty-ninth Street and Tenth Avenue, where he performed two more operations.

Dr. Lorenz, much to the disappointment of the staff of the Bellevue Medical College, did not operate for wry neck. He said that he was tired and did not have the time.

The first patient of the day was Jennie Zaccar, seven years old, of 72 Clinton St. Dr. Lorenz was assisted, as usual, by Dr. Muller. Dr. Reginald Sayre, who is in charge of the clinic, was present at the operating table and assisted. The operation took nearly half an hour. Dr. Lorenz explained that the case was a difficult one. It was in the second operation that he made such extraordinary time.

When Dr. Lorenz reached the College of Physicians and Surgeons a little child was led into the operating chamber, and exhibited before the crowd as one who had been wholly cured by his bloodless method. Dr. Lorenz took the child in his arms and caressed her, saying:

"I take a great deal of pride in my work, but I take more in seeing an operation performed by my method successfully by other doctors in this country."

The little girl, Jennie Sweeney walked across the room.

"You see," said Dr. Lorenz, "she does not show any sign of limping. Both her legs are of the same length, and you note she walks naturally."

Dr. Virgil P. Gibney had performed the operation more than a year ago. Dr. Lorenz turned to him and said:

"You may be gratified over this result, but I want to say that I am more so."

Another case was shown where the patient had been operated upon only a short time before. She could not walk, but from all appearances her leg had been straightened. Dr. Lorenz affectionately picked the child in his arms and showed her to the many doctors and students present.

In the afternoon Dr. Lorenz went riding in an automobile and visited many places in New York as the guest of Dr. Gibney. With him were Dr. Gibney, Dr. Sayre, and Dr. Mueller. They viewed again the downtown part of New York, going to the Stock Exchange and the Battery.

Dr. Lorenz said that the skyscrapers were among the most wonderful things he had ever seen. "They are simply marvellous!" he exclaimed.

"What are your impressions of the Stock Exchange?" he was asked.

"Oh, it is all a great rush, like the rest of New York," he answered. "It is terrible. I do not see how the men stand it. They must die young."

Last night Dr. Lorenz went to the Academy of Medicine and lectured before the orthopaedic branch of this institution. In his lecture he defended his method as compared with the bloody one, and said it was more humane by far. He expressed ed his gratitude that so many of the noted orthopaedic surgeons had adopted his method.

He described the method of treating tubercular hip-joint disease, which he said differed greatly from the American method of treatment.

"In America," he said, "you treat the hip dislocation and the hip disease by extension and traction in two directions, and you resort more to the splint. It is my object to obtain a movable hip. This avoids the wasting of the muscles or soft tissues and it prevents the imperfect development of the leg, which occurs when the splint treatment is used. It is more apt to cause or produce bony ankylosis."

Dr. Lorenz said that in the treatment for deformity of the legs, connections must always be made at the angle of the deformity. If made at other points, he continued, compensation instead of perfect correction would follow, thereby causing a shortening of the limb.

A hearty appetite does not always indicate a healthy condition. It is not the quantity of food which is eaten but the quantity which is assimilated, which determines the actual value of the food consumed. If the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition cannot convert the food into nourishment and into blood, then the food is an injury instead of a benefit. For all disorders of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition, there is a certain remedy in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes clogging obstructions. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves, enriches the blood and builds up the body. It is a flesh-forming, muscle making preparation, making firm flesh instead of flabby fat. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or intoxicant of any kind, and is equally free from opium, cocaine and all narcotics.
