

MR. TARTE TALKS

Will Return to His Old Occupation of Journalist.

HAD NO PERSONAL QUARREL WITH HIS COLLEAGUES

And Wishes Them Goodspeed in Their Tasks.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Hon. Mr. Tarte was waited upon by the Sun's correspondent at his residence this evening. The ex-minister was as jaunty as ever. On being asked what he had to say, he remarked that there was a misunderstanding between Laurier and himself. On Sunday he had frankly explained his position to the prime minister, and told him he would write out his resignation then and there. Sir Wilfrid replied, "Do not jump to a conclusion too hastily." On Monday Mr. Tarte again made the offer to resign, but Laurier again asked him to wait. However, on his way to Toronto he wrote out his resignation and mailed it from there last night.

Proceeding, Tarte called attention to the premier's speech in Montreal in 1901, when he announced his determination to have a stronger Canadian policy. The premier had spoken in diplomatic language, but positively stated then that no more delegations would go to Washington. He had evidently made up his mind to have in future a policy that would protect Canadian interests. He (Tarte) had also spoken at that banquet and had declared his firm belief in protection for Canadian interests.

In his speeches this summer he had said nothing more than he did a year ago in Laurier's presence. Last session Mr. Fielding, in order to reassure the banks and manufacturers, had announced that a revision of the tariff would take place next year. That was the deliberate opinion of the government. He did not admit that he had made a constitutional mistake, but if he had he would submit cheerfully to punishment. He had no quarrel with any of his colleagues. As for himself he hoped in future to make a decent living out of newspaper work. "Did you have any personal quarrel with any of your colleagues?"

"Not by any means," replied Mr. Tarte. "I wish them all God-speed in their difficult task. They will have to recommence the strength of public opinion. They will have to increase the tariff. If my resignation is of a nature to help them, so much the better. Whether I am right or whether I am not, does not matter. What the country wants is that the national industries are defended and protected. I am free now. I shall not be accused any more of being the master of the administration. I shall not be accused of compromising my colleagues. I will go my own little way of protecting Canada for the Canadians. Tomorrow morning I will say good-bye to my old staff. I will go and shake hands with my colleagues, and then I will ask permission of his excellency Lord Minto to take leave of him. His kindness I shall never forget. Once more I am a newspaper man. It is, after all, perhaps the finest occupation for a man of active mind."

"Have you ever been asked either by Sir Wilfrid Laurier or the acting premier to cease talking tariff?"

"It was never mentioned to me that I should not have talked of the tariff. Sir Wilfrid could have been reached by cable easily, and one word from Sir Richard Cartwright, the acting prime minister, would have either stopped me or forced me to resign. Sir Wilfrid whilst here, had allowed me to remain as his colleague and talk high tariff. I have done the same thing in his absence. That is the story in a few words."

SANDYVILLE.

(Special correspondence to the Herald.)

Oct. 21.—On Wednesday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore was the scene of a brilliant and fashionable wedding, one in which a host of friends of the contracting parties were deeply interested, when their eldest daughter Ethel, was united in marriage to Mr. Norman Cochrane of this place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. Teasdale. The popularity of the young couple and the great esteem in which they were held was shown by the array of elegant and costly presents received by the bride, the groom's present being a handsome carmen bracelet, and from Mr. and Mrs. Finnamore, grandparents of the groom, an elegantly finished sideboard. The young couple were highly esteemed and have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Next week will see the nuptials of a very popular young couple, Miss Marjory Cameron, of this place and Mr. John Hanson, booked for Wednesday.

Mr. Isaac Moore is playing a very deep game at this place, and rumor has it that he will carry off first prize in the near future.

Miss Annie Gilmore who has been spending the last month in Boston, has returned home.

Business at the celebrated Bakery is still blooming under the management of Mr. C. McCaughey.

Winter is fast approaching, the trees have lost their beautiful colors and will stand waiting to be robed in white.

Mr. Carnegie's Return.

George Carnegie of New York, who has been spending the last ten days hunting big game on the Taxis River with William Griffin as guide, returned to the city this afternoon. He had a most enjoyable outing and secured a shot at a fine moose, but failed to get him. The animal was 300 yards away when he fired and the bullet struck the animal in the neck, but did not stop him. The blood trail was followed for some distance but without success. Coleman Carnegie, who accompanied his brother on the trip, shot a caribou last week and is remaining in the woods a few days longer with the hope of getting a moose. Mr. Carnegie has made up his mind to return next season. He is leaving for New York by this evening's train.

J Moore of Amherst, is a guest at the Queen.

George Carnegie of Pittsburg, Pa., a nephew of Andrew Carnegie, is a guest at the Queen.

Rev Mr Bedell has been appointed rector of Andover and is to leave for that place in a few days to take up his duties.

A Careful Old Lady.

An old lady applied at a registry office for a maid.

"I want a little girl, between eighteen and twenty-two years of age, who is fond of mushrooms."

"Fond of mushrooms?" inquired the agent. "That is something I never inquire about from my applicants. I don't understand."

"Well, I am very fond of mushrooms myself, and there are so many mistakes made. The idea came to me several years ago, and it was a dispensation of Providence that it did or I should have been killed. I make my maid eat a portion of all mushrooms brought to my house before any are served to me. I always require it," replied the old lady. "I have lost two excellent maids from foodstuffs during the last five years, and, of course, I could not think of taking the risk of eating mushrooms unless I had a maid to test them."—London Globe.
