

POLICE CHAUFFEURS.

King Edward Is Well Guarded Wherever He May Travel.

If there is any man in the United Kingdom concerning whose personal health and safety there should be no anxiety, that man is King Edward VII. This is no disloyal statement; it is merely a tribute to the marvelous skill of the physicians attendant on His Majesty, and the remarkable precautions taken by authorities wherever he goes.

When King Edward travels on his royal yacht, a crew of specially selected men from the Royal Navy carry on the ordinary operations of the ship. In the case of a royal special train, the most experienced engine-driver is selected to handle the regulator. Again, when he travels by motor-car—he is, by the way, the only person within these realms who is legally entitled to exceed the speed-limit—his chauffeur is always a policeman, trained at Scotland Yard. With the chauffeur, however, is an expert mechanic, whose duty it is to attend to all breakdowns.

In case of accidents, a handsome "first-aid" case, specially made for His Majesty by a well-known firm of surgical instrument manufacturers, is carried in the royal motor-car. "A Friend in Need is a Friend Indeed," surmounted by a crown, is inscribed upon the front of the silver box, which holds the outfit and this box, which contains eight numbered compartments, is carried in a case of royal-blue morocco, and on the lid detailed directions, corresponding with the numbers, are fixed.

Although the whole outfit weighs only 534 pounds, the contents include an indiarubber tourniquet to stop bleeding, several pairs of forceps and scissors, a variety of pastes and powders for dressing, and a bottle for brandy.—London Answers.

THRIFTY HINDUS.

They Are Prosperous In Guiana Says Agent-General.

The Immigration Agent-General for British Guiana (Hon. R. Duff) points out in his annual report that the East Indians, originally introduced into British Guiana to satisfy the requirements of the sugar planters, have, with their descendants, gradually spread themselves over the country, reclaiming places formerly lying waste and opening new tracts of land on the creeks and rivers.

"With their thrifty habits and unfaltering perseverance in the face of loss by drought and flood," he states, "they form the ideal settlers for a tropical country like this." Numbering over 132,000 souls, they form a larger proportion of the population than any other race. They have, however, left politics severely alone, and are content so long as they are not overburdened with direct taxation to plod on in their rice fields and provision farms and to bring their children up to follow in their footsteps.

Under the terms of their indentures they are entitled to be sent back to India at the end of ten years, but of late years there seems to have been a growing disinclination to return, and many have preferred to acquire property and settle down in the colony. Thus at the present time East Indians in British Guiana possess property assessed for local taxation to the value of $340,000. Last year grants of crown land aggregating 1,376 acres were issued to them as compared with 453 acres in 1906-7. The chief occupation among the unindentured immigrants is rice cultivation, and it is principally to their efforts that the cultivation of the cereal has grown from 16,670 acres in 1903-4 to 29,715 acres in 1907-8.

Through a Bridge.

Guelph, June 23.—Only a collision with a telegraph post prevented W. H. Beattie, druggist of this city, from being hurled by a runaway horse over the C.P.R. trestle bridge near the depot into the river below. Freed from the buggy in the collision, the frightened animal, owned by Mr. La Fontaine, bolted on the bridge. Its hoofs became lodged in the trestle work, and it rolled over into the river about 25 feet below. Mr. Beattie, who was thrown out unhurt, waded into the water, about four feet deep, but the animal could not be made to budge. Thinking that its back or neck was broken, it was finally decided to let the animal drown, but no sooner did it get its head under water than it revived and struggled out, little worse for the experience. Mr. Beattie was unhurt, and only the buggy suffered damage.

Must Change Attitude.

Ottawa, June 23.—At the opening of the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of Ottawa yesterday, the Lord Archbishop of Ottawa said that three most important changes in Christian attitude were needed.

The false idea that the church officers were to be the only workers must be dropped.

Our ideas as to the value of the ministerial life should be amplified. Only then would the young be attracted to a life which must always be a life of self-denial.

There must be a greater use made of lay help. The clergy and the laity must go hand in hand in attacking the forces of modern indifference. Every brotherhood should be encouraged and steps should be taken to form guilds of church workers.

A Canadian Navy.

Montreal, June 23.—Montreal is to be sacrificed to Quebec as a port.

In Montreal to the Chambre de Commerce Hon. Mr. Brodeur said that there was a question whether the drydock should be at Montreal or Quebec. The majority of the accidents were at Quebec or below it, and ship owners thought that was the place for it.

At Quebec, Hon. Mr. Pugsley said the Government would take up the development of the port of Quebec as the summer port of Canada.

Mr. Brodeur also announced, for the first time, that the Government's policy is to construct a Canadian navy.

"This policy," he said, "should not strike anyone as surprising. It is quite natural. States of South America, such as Colombia and Paraguay, have their own navy. The Canadian Government wishes to participate in the defence of the Empire, but at the same time to safeguard its autonomy and the control of its contributions."

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted.

Or again, you have, a sinking sensation, a feeling you are going to die; or perhaps, you wake in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and rest leaves you for the night. If you allow these conditions to continue for a short period even, you will begin to feel your health declining. It is the nerves and heart not acting rightly, and they can only be set right by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action.

Mrs. E. Nutt, St. Mary's, Ont., writes:—"I can gladly recommend your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as I was greatly troubled with my nerves. I was so bad I could not sleep at night without the lamp burning, but after taking four boxes of the pills I became all right again."

NOT A GAMBLING HOUSE.

Case Against Forty Four Bookmakers Dismissed.

(Toronto Globe.)

"This case, at all events, will show where the onus lies to put this matter right," said Mr. Kingsford in the police court yesterday, in dismissing the charge against Jake Saunders and forty-four other bookmakers for carrying on betting at the Woodbine during the recent race meeting.

"The law courts have gone as far as they can in these cases," resumed the Magistrate, "but they are powerless under the law to prevent these men from coming here for betting purposes. The trouble is that it is legalized by statute while racing is going on. If the legislature wants to stop betting it can do so. Alpresent the courts are powerless."

At the commencement of the hearing a number of facts were admitted by Mr. T. C. Robinette, K.C., on behalf of the defendants, in order to expedite the hearing and get to the vital point of issue.

"The whole thing comes down to the legal definition of the word 'place,'" said Crown Attorney Corley to the Magistrate.

"I am prepared to show," he said, "that there was about an acre of land of the Woodbine set apart for betting purposes, and that this constitutes a place within the meaning of the act."

"We admit there was a place reserved, but it was not enclosed, and does not constitute a place," replied Mr. Robinette. Over this point both lawyers argued, each producing authorities, but the Magistrate said he was unable to accept Mr. Corley's argument, that the way a place is used rather than the way it is constructed interprets its character.

"If you worship cannot accept that, it is no use burdening the case with the evidence," replied the Crown Attorney.

"It would be a straining of the law. I am bound by the authorities as well as by common-sense," said the Magistrate.

"But if I can show that Saunders and his assistants each day occupied the same space in the betting pit, wouldn't that influence your judgment?" persisted Mr. Corley.

"I should still feel compelled to adopt the view in the Kempton Park judgment, where, although the betting was conducted inside an iron-railed enclosure, the courts held that it was not a place," replied Mr. Kingsford.

"Your Worship holds, then, that something structural is required to make it a place?"

"I do," said the Magistrate. Then he added: "I cannot understand why, if the Jockey Club fines off a place and practically hires these men to conduct the betting, they are not prosecuted for keeping a betting house. I would be quite prepared to hear a charge against the Jockey Club, for the case is different, as it applies to them, but I cannot hear the charges as against these individual bookmakers."

Cane Can Choose.

Quebec, June 23.—In the Bulmer habeas corpus proceedings yesterday, Sir Francis Langille, quashed the writ without costs, giving the ten-year-old daughter of the parties into the custody of the mother. The judge said that the object of the writ should not be to enforce paternal authority, but to permit freedom of action, and as the child was of an age to be able to decide for herself, and had declared she would prefer the custody of her mother, the court would so decide. The Bulmers were married in Montreal in 1893. Three years later Mrs. Bulmer left her husband and in 1905 took an action against him for separation. This she lost, the court awarding the father custody of the child. This order was never obeyed.

Bees Swarm on Baby.

Detroit, June 23.—A Holland, Mich., special last night says: The fifteen-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Van Deewen of this place, is lying at the point of death, swelled out of all semblance to a human being as the result of being stung by hundreds of bees. The child was playing in the yard of her home, where the bees are kept, when they swarmed on her. When discovered by her mother the little one was completely covered by bees. Her father and a farm hand, summoned by the mother's screams, managed to drive the bees away, but not before the child had been terribly stung. Physicians say the child cannot recover.

Accident Near Glanworth.

London, Ont., June 23.—An accident occurred yesterday afternoon on the Pere Marquette line near Glanworth that came near proving serious. A train was returning from Port Stanley, where it had landed a great crowd, who attended the St. George's and Sons of England picnic, when a journal on the engine broke and a car was thrown from the track. The coach was pitched clear of the rails and the track ripped up for some distance. Fortunately the cars were empty, so no one was hurt. The line was blocked for some time, and lake-bound trains were delayed.

NO ROOM FOR FOSTER.

Professor Voted Out of Baptist Minister's Conference.

CHICAGO, June 21.—By a vote of 39 to 9, Prof. G. B. Foster was dropped from the roll of membership of the Baptist Ministers' Conference, this afternoon. Hot words were exchanged at the meeting, and the crowded hall was a scene of tumult. The Chairman's efforts to keep order were as effective as a whisper to a gale. Personalities were exchanged and cries of "Order, order," "Sit down," could not restrict certain members from making the sparks fly. One minister accused two others of deliberate misrepresentation. The heat of the meeting was declared to be without parallel in the history of the Church.

Prof. Foster was from 1892 to 1895, professor of philosophy at McMaster University, Toronto. His "modernist" views as expressed in some recent books of his, are the cause of his unpopularity among the Baptist ministers of Chicago.

BRITAIN'S TRIBUTE.

She Draws £140,000,000 Annually From Abroad.

LONDON, June 21.—Interesting figures showing the amount of British capital invested abroad have been collected by George Paish, editor of the Statist, and set before the Royal Statistical Society last week.

Mr. Paish said that the incomes which British investors drew from holdings in Indian, colonial, and foreign Governments' bonds amounted to £10,000,000. Russell Sage foundation, to a total of £31,039,038. The income from U.S. source had rapidly expanded in recent years in consequence mainly of new loans to the colonies and Japan.

The income British investors derived from Indian, colonial, and foreign societies from coupons and from railways of the United Kingdom was £18,521,900, which, with the income from Government loans, made a total of £79,560,983, as compared with the income of £44,518,000 received from similar sources twenty years ago.

Additional income was derived from investments in a vast number of miscellaneous undertakings. He had ascertained the income from 2,172 companies for which Great Britain had provided capital and found that the amount reached £58,000,000.

If it were possible to bring together all the income of companies trading abroad and distributing interests and profits in this country the total would be about £140,000,000. This great sum did not include the interest upon money deposited in Indian, colonial and foreign banks by persons residing in this country, nor the large amount of income derived from capital privately placed abroad. On the other hand, it was essential to recollect that foreign investors drew a good deal of income from capital placed with British companies. To obtain the income from abroad of nearly £140,000,000 per annum Great Britain had invested £2,700,000,000, and was obtaining all around a return of 5.2 per cent.

AN EDITOR IN JAIL.

Germanstown Man Sentenced For Criminal Libel.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—David Pascoe, editor of the Germanstown Telegraph, entered the county prison at Holmesburg Friday afternoon, to serve a sentence of six months imposed upon him by Judge Magill, of Quarter Sessions Court No. 2, following conviction of a charge of criminal libel brought against him by former Sheriff Wilson H. Brown. Every effort was made by Pascoe and his friends to have the sentence set aside, and it was only when the State Board refused to pardon and the last hopes of the editor were gone that he surrendered himself. The editorial on which the libel action was based was published on Feb. 7, 1908. It compared Sheriff Brown to Benedict Arnold, and in plain words called him a traitor to his party, to the reform cause, and to himself. "He has gone," it said, "boots, saddle and bundle into the camp of the bosses. The pledges that he made have been broken, the regard of his friends is shattered and his own self-respect must be groveling in the dust. Cold and inscrutable, even his best friends cannot explain his course, and have no apologies for it. Sniveling at the feet of the now dominant bosses he asks admittance to their councils."

A STRANGE ANIMAL.

Some Species of Gallywog Lives in a Swamp Near Woodstock, Ont.

WOODSTOCK, June 22.—A few miles south of Woodstock is a large swamp in which there is living some large animal of unknown species that is causing residents of the vicinity a good deal of alarm. For two or three weeks farmers have noticed large, strange tracks in the soft earth in the swamp and neighboring field unlike anything seen around here before. The tracks are as large as footprints of a child of seven or eight years of age, according to perfectly reliable authorities, and one farmer who saw the animal described it as a large beast, grayish brown in color. The footprints show the impression of long sharp claws. The skeletons and remains of scores of ground hogs have been found in the vicinity and the remains of one young cow were also found, the animal having fallen victim to the hunger of the stranger in the swamp.

Today a large posse of men and dogs is being formed and this afternoon a determined effort will be made to exterminate the beast be it a bear, lion or something less dangerous.

A HELPLESS CHILD.

A weak and puny child is badly handicapped in the battle of life. It is isolated from the healthy enjoyments of its little fellow-beings. It cannot partake either of their play or their sturdy work and progress in the world; its whole life is embittered by incapacity and weakness.

Any woman who expects to become a mother ought to know what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will do both for her own health and safety during her time of trial and also to insure her in bequeathing a fair measure of health and strength to the prospective little one.

GIVES AWAY $25,000 A DAY.

Mrs. Russell Sage Rapidly Diminishing Fortune Left Her.

NEW YORK, June 16.—In less than three years Mrs. Russell Sage has spent more than $25,000,000 for public purposes and the benefit of mankind. The recent investigation abroad of the question of workingmen's insurance and the establishment of a gigantic employment bureau call attention anew to her prolific bounty.

It took Russell Sage fifty years to get $65,000,000. This great sum represents the pinching and scraping together of what amounted to $3,500 a day for the lifetime of the astute financier.

Mrs. Sage is now giving away the fortune at the rate of $25,000 a day. If the widow continues her charities at the pace she has set, all will be gone in five years. Comparison of the financier's power to make money with Mrs. Sage's faculty of giving it away, shows that the widow is giving away $2 in the same time that it took Mr. Sage to accumulate the proverbial "thirty cents."

"Large as Mrs. Russell Sage's fortune is it would hardly cover the cost of insuring all of the workingmen in America," said John M. Gann, secretary and director of the $10,000,000 Russell Sage foundation, when asked about the rumor that the widow of the great financier contemplated endowing a great insurance for American workingmen. "But with funds from the Sage foundation we have conducted a careful study of workingmen's insurance at home and abroad," he added, "and will shortly have the report."

An express train running 60 miles an hour without stopping for 25 hours would just travel the distance covered by the packets (placed end to end) sold in one year of "Salada" Tea. Annual sale exceeds eighteen million packets.
