FUTURE OF QUEEN'S

Presbyterians Vigorously Debate
Freeing of University.

OLD GUARD IS OPPOSED

Principal Gordon Champions the Release of the University From Denominational Trammels While
Rev. Dr. Campbell Leads the Group Who Want to Retain It For Training of Ministers.

Hamilton, June 4.—Before it had time to settle down properly to work the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church yesterday found itself plunged into the heat of a controversy which aroused the fighting blood of the old guard of the Church, and recalled some of the assembly battles of former times. The relationship of Queen's University to the Presbyterian Church was the issue thus early forced upon the attention of the fathers and brethren, and, as was expected, it gave rise to a debate that was vigorous throughout and at times warm. In their report the trustees of the university submitted a resolution requesting the assembly to assent to the removal from the charter of such denominational restrictions as might impede the development of the university, and to appoint a commission to co-operate with the board of trustees in regard to such changes.

It fell to Principal D. M. Gordon to present the resolution, and in a speech of marked ability and moderation he almost succeeded in persuading the assembly to accept, without further consideration, its proposals. With a lucidity and sequence which compelled the attention of a crowded and expectant house he traced the evolution of Queen's University from its nakedly denominational position to the status of a national institution.

Such was the effect of the principal's speech that for a few moments it seemed as if the assembly would accept it. Rev. Dr. Campbell, the clerk, however, sounded the first note of opposition. He regarded the proposals as the first step towards the separation of the church from the university, and in this view he was supported by, among others, Rev. Dr. Armstrong, Ottawa; Mr. G. M. Macdonnell, K.C., who made a vigorous protest against what he conceived to be an attempt to interfere with the church's control over the training of men for the ministry. As an amendment, he moved that, while reaffirming the resolutions of 1904 and 1908, the assembly appoint a commission to consider the advisability of limiting the relationship between the church and the university to the departments of arts and theology. To these two faculties, he maintained, the church must hold firmly. Among those who supported the resolution were Prof. Jordan, Mr. J. K. Macdonald, Toronto, and two other elders. The debate will be resumed to-day. The evening session was devoted to home missions. Keen disappointment was expressed at the inadequacy of the church's support, but inspiring speeches by Revs. Dr. E. R. MacFarlane, giving accounts of the splendid work being accomplished in the home mission fields, supplied a note of relief.

REFUSE UNSATISFACTORY IMITATIONS

ENTERTAINING THE BRIDE.

Some Information Sure to be of Value this Month.

When one member of a group of girl friends takes the thrilling step of becoming engaged it is doubtless her solemn duty so soon as practicable to impart the news to the others of the circle. If she be the first to leave maidenhood she will certainly be the centre of a great deal of excitement, but in any case she may be prepared to be made the occasion of much girlish fun and frolic. Supposing she has imparted the great news to her dearest friend and the latter authorized to announce it to the rest of the circle, a convenient occasion for doing so. An amusing way is to have a loud ring at the door bell just before the last course is served; then let the maid enter with a telegram for the girl hostess, who asks permission to read it, upon which it is found to contain the important communication.

Or a plate of walnuts may be passed containing a number of nuts which have been carefully "stuffed" beforehand with slips of paper bearing the announcement and some suitable quotation. The chair of the prospective bride is, of course, a temptation for special decoration. A crown of white roses suspended above it or white ribbon decorations on the back will almost be sufficient intimation in themselves of the raison d'être of the party.

Later on comes the useful bridal shower. Linen, book, stocking, handkerchief and kitchen showers, as well as many others, are in order. If the shower takes place at a luncheon and the gifts are small in size, like handkerchiefs, they may be wrapped in tissue paper and heaped in a pretty basket as a centrepiece, with a number of favors for the other guests, each attached to a ribbon leading to its owner's place. Ingenious but rather embarrassing to the guest of honor would be the method of hiding the parcels while she searched for them, aided by music, which was loud when the recipient was "hot" and softer when she was farther away.

If there are not too many parcels each could be heralded by a loud ringing at the door bell, the maid immediately after entering with a parcel for the bride until one after another had been received and opened. A miscellaneous shower of useful objects, such as packets of tacks, balls of twine, corkscrew and kitchen utensils, could be delivered at the bride's feet in a well cleaned flour sack, with the invitation to look inside for anything she had not or could not find.

If the party is given on the lawn, the shower to be in the house, the bride to be might be approached by some member of the family when the time for presentation arrived, and unconsciously induced to go where it was desired she should by a tactful suggestion, introduced casually, that "Kate's latest collection of curios is in the library; won't you come and see it?" It is that "There is some one I particularly want you to meet in the library." If the latter form is used a comic figure festooned with the gifts should meet her as she enters the library followed at a little distance by the rest of the guests. This figure may be made by a small boy holding a tall pole on which is placed a bonnet and veil, long cloak and skirt. The cloak may be padded out with crushed paper. If such articles as shopping bag, handkerchief and umbrella are given let the figure carry them and let other articles be fastened to the outside of her cloak. A large sign, "The Bride," may be pinned to her breast.

OVERTAXED NERVES

A DISTRESS SIGNAL

The Trouble Can Only be Cured by Enriching the Blood Supply.

When your nervous system is exhausted the trouble makes itself evident in many ways. You feel always fatigued and unfit for work. Severe headaches distract you, your back is weak; you sleep badly; your appetite is uncertain; you are nervous and irritable and after any exercise you tremble and perspire excessively. If the trouble is not checked your case goes from bad to worse until you feel that your condition is hopeless and that insanity is threatened.

Your nerves are calling for help. They are starved because they demand from the blood more nourishment than it can supply. New rich blood is the secret of nerve strength and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cure nervous disorders because they feed the weak, exhausted nerves with rich, red blood.

The case of Mrs. Emma Hall, of Hamilton, Ont., furnishes proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure even the most stubborn cases of nerve exhaustion. Mrs. Hall was left a widow and was forced to work in a mill to maintain herself and her two children. She bravely faced the battle of life though she never had to conform to such conditions before. Notwithstanding the splendid spirit she displayed the work played havoc with her delicate constitution and some years ago Mrs. Hall noticed signs in herself of a nervous collapse. She consulted a doctor who gave her some medicine and told her she "would be all right in a few days." But relief did not come and it was finally a daily occurrence for her to faint at her work. These fainting spells quickly developed into pronounced hysteria and chronic irritability and Mrs. Hall says that death would have been a relief. She consulted several doctors but got no trip, and she felt that she was almost bordering on insanity. In this condition she was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Grasping at even the possibility of help she decided to do so. After taking three boxes she actually found some improvement and from that time on this improvement was steady and increasing daily until after a few months she felt the cure was complete. She says:

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done what doctors failed to do and what I myself thought was impossible. They have freed me from the terrible trouble I suffered and my old joy in life has been renewed."

When Mrs. Hall began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills she weighed only one hundred pounds while under her renewed health her weight has increased to one hundred and thirty pounds.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be had from any dealer in medicines or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
