TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

Two Ra'lies Held on Sunday in Interests of Scott Act Ticket.

The closing meetings in connection with the civic campaign were held at the Opera house on Sunday afternoon and evening. The afternoon meeting was for men only, and was attended by between two and three hundred electors. Mr. George S. Inch was chairman, and Rev. Dr. Kierstead, professor of economics at the U. N. B., was the principal speaker. He delivered an able and scholarly address, which was followed by the audience with great interest. He referred to the Scott Act victory of last April, and declared it to be the duty of the council to carry out the expressed will of the people, no matter what interests were affected. He declared that the proper men to enforce the law were those who believed in it, and for that reason the good government candidates for the city council should have the support of the citizens. No man, he said, could be a good citizen, who after being elected as a representative of the people, used his influence to thwart law enforcement. It was plain to him that certain men were seeking to make the Scott Act inefficient, and three years from now they would be seeking its repeal because it is inefficient. He closed with a strong appeal to the electors to do their duty at the polls on Monday.

Chancellor Jones presided at the evening meeting, and the speaker was Rev. Dr. McLeod, who delivered a stirring address before an audience which filled the Opera house. He praised the police commission, and vigorously scored members of the council who endeavored to balk its work. He declared that Aids. Farrell, Kitchen and Winslow had been disappointed, owing to their failure to secure appointment on the commission, and had since done everything in their power to hamper and obstruct it. The liquor interests of the city, he said, were allied with the so-called citizen's ticket, and for this reason the electors should refrain from supporting it.

The doctor did not confine his remarks altogether to the moral issue of the campaign. He said that certain aldermen were great sticklers for economy when the question of policemen's salaries was under consideration, but they were not so particular at other times. He declared that Ald. Farrell, the chairman of the water committee, was responsible for a large waste of coal at the water works pumping station. Ald. Kitchen had sold a lot of land to the city for the extension of Wilmot Park, and Ald. Winslow had been instrumental in having a boulevard constructed in the lower part of the city. He closed with a strong appeal to the electors to emphasize their verdict of last spring.

BIG RACE MEET.

Park Directors Confident it Will Be the Greatest in City's History.

Entry blanks for the big race meeting to be pulled off here by the Fredericton Park Association, are now being sent out, and prompt responses are expected from horsemen in the Maritime Provinces and New England. A program of seven events has been prepared, and the purses total the magnificent sum of $2,500, which makes the proposition one of the most attractive ever offered to horsemen in the province. The program of events is as follows:

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30.
2.15 class, trot and pace, purse $300;	2.10 class, trot and pace, purse $300.
THURSDAY, JULY 1.
2.21 stake, trot and pace, purse $400;	2.27 stake, trot and pace, purse $400.
FRIDAY, JULY 2nd.
Free for all, trot and pace, purse $400;	2.17 class, trot and pace, purse $300;
2.21 stake, trot, purse $400.

It will be noticed that the 2.25 event has been dropped from the three days program, and a 2.24 event substituted. This change will let in a number of horses with records of 23 and a fraction.

Entries for the races close with the secretary, Mr. J. D. Black, on April 15th. One per cent of the entry fee is payable April 15th, two per cent on May 15th, and the balance on June 15th, making three payments instead of four as originally decided upon. Nominators may declare out if paid to date of written notice, but otherwise they will be held for the full five per cent. There will be no conditional entries.

Camp, camp, camp, the boys are camping.
Camping where the poison trailers climb,
And they'll all come back to town
Unset peppered, blistered brown,
But there's naught like camping in the good old summer time.

Links With the Past.

Two archaeologists of Coventry, England, who have visited the site of the proposed new local technical institute, have made a curious discovery. On part of the land, which lies at the back of some tenement property in Little Park street, at present used as a garden, they report finding several quaint but finely executed, stone carvings of bears, an elephant, and a boar; also a small building, lately used as a summer-house, the details of which they pronounce to be in the 14th century style of architecture. They believe that the ground was formerly part of the garden of the Palace Yard, an old mansion celebrated in the annals of the city, but now divided up into workshops and offices. It was to the Palace Yard that the Princess Elizabeth, daughter of James I., was brought for safety on the discovery of the Gunpowder plot. James II. held a court there in 1687, and other royal visitors were entertained there at later dates. It is supposed that the summer-house was removed from the garden of one of the local monasteries destroyed at the Dissolution.

"Song and Story."

The announcement that Mme. Emma Eames, the well-known prima donna, is about to retire from the operatic stage, recalls a rather amusing story. Mme. Eames married Julian Story, the well-known artist, and it was shortly after the marriage that the late Sir Arthur Sullivan was asked to write something in the singer's autograph book. In his quick, nervous way he turned over the leaves, and when he came to the desired page, inscribed her name "Emma Eames," with the addition, "Renowned in Song and Story." In spite of the great success she has won, Mme. Eames has her regrets. "I have never done anything in my life but work," she once remarked. "I cared for other pleasures just as any girl does, but I have always foregone them." She was born in Shanghai, where her father was one of the judges of the International Court, and she lived there for the first five years of her life.

A Newspaper Peer.

The recent death of Lord Glenesk, proprietor of The Morning Post, recalls the fact that he was the pioneer of the satirical journalism of to-day by founding The Owl some forty years ago, a journal which gave away many political secrets and generally helped to wake up people in a surprising fashion. One feature of The Owl was to announce engagements which it knew on good authority were likely to take place, but which had not been formally made public. So popular was this proceeding among the young ladies of the day that they frequently would not say "Yes" to a suitor until they had seen their name coupled with his in The Owl.

As the Twig Is Bent.

"I hope you were a good little boy while at you aunt's and didn't tell any stories," said his mother.
"Only the one you put me up to, ma," replied her young hopeful.
"Why, what do you mean, child?"
"When she asked me if I'd like to have a second piece of cake I said, 'No, thank you; I've had enough!'"

FONDLES HOT IRON.
Irishman Does Some Remarkable Things With Hot Metals.
The recent discovery of an American salamander has been duplicated in Anthony Ryder of Londonderry, Ireland. While Ryder is unable to dematerialize himself like his American rival, he grasps incandescent iron without injury. When interviewed, Ryder was found seated in front of a blazing fire, cheerfully juggling blazing coals.
"Medical men have taken the greatest interest in my case," said Ryder, employing a blazing torch to the bare soles of his feet, "but they can't explain why I'm unaffected by heat. I was born that way. I take this red-hot steel bar from the fire," he continued, drawing a poker from the coals, "and you see I draw it across my tongue, but I feel nothing unusual."
"Now I draw my hands tightly clenched, along the bar, and nothing happens—the palms of my hands are not even scorched by this steel bar, which is so hot that few men could even hold its cold end." The doctors who have examined me say that my ability in withstanding such astonishing degrees of heat is not fraudulent and is not due to any known medical condition."

No Sympathy Wanted.
There is a Manchester man, a member of a well-known club, who, his friends aver, is one of the most unreasonable grumblers in Lancashire. Not long ago he had a slight attack of rheumatism, during which he was carefully and skillfully nursed by his wife.
One day the good woman was so moved by the sufferings of her spouse that she burst into tears as she sat by his bedside. This occurred several times, much to the disgust and annoyance of the husband.
"How are you getting on?" asked a friend who had dropped in to see the sufferer.
"Very badly indeed," was the reply. "And it's all my wife's fault."
"What?" demanded the friend, astonished.
"Yes; the doctor said humidity was bad for me, and yet she sits there and weeps and weeps."
