UTTERANCES OF MONARCHS.

It is characteristic of King Edward the Peacemaker, that just when there is talk in the British Isles of a possible German invasion, and none too favorable feeling in Germany towards Britain, he should make a friendly visit to Berlin, and exhibit to the people of the German Empire his desire for continued peace and good fellowship between the two great nations.

The meeting of the monarchs of the two greatest nations on earth, and their public utterances, attract the attention of the whole world, and if one can judge from the sentiments expressed by King and Kaiser, there is no immediate prospect of trouble between their respective countries.

It is gratifying to the British to hear that King Edward was most enthusiastically received by the Berlin populace as he rode through the streets of the German capital, and the welcome accorded him seems to have deeply touched His Majesty.

At the State banquet also King Edward was warmly greeted. Emperor William in toasting His Britannic Majesty's health after welcoming him to Germany, assured him "that my capital and the whole German empire see in your presence a token of the friendly feelings and sentiments which induced your Majesties to pay this visit. The German people greet the ruler of the mighty British world-empire with the respect due him and perceives in this visit a new pledge of future peaceful and friendly development in the relations between our two countries."

"I know how much our wishes for the preservation and the strengthening of peace are in accord, and can offer no better welcome than an expression of the firm conviction that your Majesty's visit will contribute to the realization of these, our wishes. In giving voice to the hope that the vast empire over which your Majesty rules may continue to prosper and flourish, I pledge this glass to the health of Your Majesty and the Queen."

King Edward replied in German, first expressing thanks on behalf of the Queen and himself for the welcome accorded them in Berlin. He mentioned pleasant recollections of previous visits to Kiel, Wilhelmshave and Cronberg. Then after reference to the emperor's visit to Windsor, he continued: "With regard to the aim and desired result of my visit, your Majesty has given eloquent expression to my own feelings and I can therefore only repeat that our coming is for the purpose not only of recalling before the world the close ties of relationship between our two houses, but also aims at strengthening the friendly relations between our countries, and thus at the preservation of a general peace, towards which all my efforts are directed."

The King concluded with warmly expressed wishes for the prosperity of the German empire and proposed the health of the Emperor and Empress.

A WONDERFUL BODY.

The Conservative association of Albert met on Tuesday, and the result of its deliberations will be received with considerable incredulity and amazement.

For one thing the convention expressed satisfaction with Messrs Dickson and Prescott, their representatives, commending them for the manner in which they had attended to their duties. These gentlemen sat through one session of the legislature, or at least they were present in the House part of the time, but history fails to record anything they effected in the way of legislation, or any influence they exerted in the transaction of the business of the country.

It is true the Albert representatives have given much attention to the attempted displacement of Liberal officials in their county, with results not altogether satisfactory, but as for rendering faithful service in their capacity as members of the legislature, the record is against them.

The convention also voted confidence in Mr. Geo. W. Fowler, ex-M.P., who as a political factor in this country, was extinguished by the vote of his constituency on Oct. 26th, adding another peculiar chapter to the Albert gathering for the wonderment of the people.

CURRENT COMMENT

Newspaper reports indicate that some people in the diocese of Toronto are casting longing eyes in the direction of Bishop Richardson to fill the vacant bishopric there. They can't have him. He has important work to do here, and is giving evidence that he is doing it well.

Col. Sam Hughes, Conservative M.P., thinks the federal government should go ahead and make heavy expenditures in spite of the curtailment of revenue, while his leaders have been attacking the ministry for alleged prodigality in providing for the public services. These gentlemen are hard to please.

The Waterways treaty, arranged by the Canadian and American governments, is being sharply criticized in the American congress, its opponents claiming that Canada has got the best of the bargain. Well if that is true it may even up somewhat on the sharp bargain the United States drove with us in the matter of the Alaskan boundary.

ALL THE WAY ROUND.

An Odd Sort of Dinner and the Reason of It.

Lord Polkemmet, a Scottish lord of session, usually retired to his country residence during the part of the year when the court does no business. John Hagart, the Scottish advocate, equally idle from a similar cause, went to shoot, and, happening to pass Lord P.'s property, he met his lordship, who politely invited John to take, or, as he said, to 'tak', a family dinner with himself, his wife and daughter.

John accepted the invitation, and they all assembled at the hour of dinner. There was a joint of roasted veal at the head of the table and stewed veal at the bottom, veal soup in the middle, calf's head on one side of the soup and veal cutlets on the other, calf's foot jelly between the soup and roast veal and calf's brains between the stewed veal and the soup.

"Neo," said his lordship in his own blunt way, "Mr. Hagart, you may very likely think this an odd sort of dinner, but ye'll no wonder when you hear the cause of it. We keep nae company, Mr. Hagart, and my daughter here caters for our table. The way we do is just this: We kill a beast, as it were, today, and we just begin to cook it at one side of the head, travel down that side, turn the tail and just gang back again by the other side to where we began."

The Year Without a Summer.

The year 1816 has a remarkable cold weather record and is known as "the year without a summer." In that year there was a sharp frost in every month, and the people all over the world began to believe that some great and definite change in the earth was taking place. The farmers used to refer to it as "eighteen hundred and starve to death." Frost, ice and snow were common in June. Almost every green thing was killed, and the fruit was nearly all destroyed. During the month snow fell to the depth of three inches in New York and Massachusetts and ten inches in Maine. There were frost and ice in July in New York, New England and Pennsylvania, and corn was nearly all destroyed in certain sections. Ice half an inch thick formed in August. A cold north wind prevailed all summer.

Taking a Mean Advantage.

Once a thrifty Scotch physician was called to a case where a woman had dislocated her jaw. He very soon put her right. The woman asked how much was to pay. The doctor named his fee. The patient thought it too much. He, however, would not take less, and as the woman refused to give him the fee he began to yawn. Yawning, as every one knows, is infectious. The young woman in turn yawned. Her jaw again went out of joint, and the doctor triumphantly said, "Now, until you hand me over my fee your jaw can remain as it is." Needless to say, the money was promptly paid.

An Easy Problem.

Prove that 9 taken from 6 and 10 taken from 9 and 50 taken from 40 when all added together is only 6. Easy when you know how. Take IX (9) from SIX and you have 8 left; take X (10) from IX (9) and you have 1 left; take L (50) from XL (40) and you have X left, and when you add 8 and 1 and X together you have SIX. haven't you?—Pathfinder.

She Knew Them.

Miss Dubley—She was braggin' about how successful her dinner party was. She said it wound up "with great eclaw." What's "eclaw" anyway? Miss Mugley—Why, I guess that was the dessert. Didn't you never eat a chocolate eclaw?

Ill Bred Scenery.

"Mamma, the scenery abroad must be very ill bred."
"Scenery ill bred, child! What do you mean?"
"This book on Alpine climbing says, 'A terrible abyss yawned before them!'"

Thimbles made of lava are used by women in Naples.

Keen on the Main Chance.

He was gazing with dreamy eyes into the distance.

"Ah, my darling," he murmured, "what matters it that sorrow and trouble must of necessity be lurking in the unknown future? While I am with you I think of naught but the present—the beautiful, superb present."

"So do I, dearest," she replied, "but you'll take me with you when you buy it, won't you? Men have such queer tastes in rings."

A Difficult Feat.

Have you ever tried to stand upright on a log perhaps a foot across the butt out in an open lake, keeping your balance to every roll and dip of the log? Well, if you had you would realize better the marvelous balance of the man who not only has to do this, but also maneuver other logs down the current with a long pike pole, chain booms together with numbed fingers, and, in fact, do the whole of his day's work while balancing on a twirling, twisting, half submerged tree trunk.

We make the claim to be the best dry cleaners in town—and dry cleaning is now the correct way to clean garments without doing them the slightest injury. We are patronized by the most particular people, who have found to their satisfaction that our work is all we claim it to be and that we are prompt and thorough in executing orders, and very reasonable in our prices. Hence our popularity.

Furs of all kinds cleaned by this process.
