Executions Revive Massacres.
Berlin, June 10.—The Tagblatt's Aleppo correspondent states that the Turkish authorities last week executed twelve of the ringleaders, including six Armenians, concerned in the Adana massacres.

The energetic course of the Government, the correspondent adds, caused the populace in the region between Alexandretta and the mountains to start a new massacre, in which about 100 persons were slain.

INDIANS NOW WEALTHY.

Dokis Tribe Get Money For Land and Squaws Are Very Popular.

The distribution of the first installment of the million dollars which the Dokis Indian tribe are to receive for their famous pine limit took place at Sturgeon Falls a few days ago, and was exceedingly interesting.

The first Indian to get his share was the young chief, Alex. Dokis, whose late father, the old chief, during his lifetime refused to sell the limit.

Romance pictures the young chief taking up his father's policy at the grave of the aged chieftain and resolutely fighting the battles of the dead to the brink of his own last resting place, with a fine scorn refusing to look upon the plunder gouged from the slaughter of the forests, but stern fact shows the son of his father eagerly advancing to the lodge of Indian Agent Cockburn and cheerfully accepting the share of his family, amounting to $5,625 on the first payment.

The sum of $52,000 was paid the band, which represents a part payment only of the ten per cent. allowed them according to the terms of the surrender of the pine timber on the reserve. Another distribution will be made of the cash payment to the band after the limits are paid for in full by the purchasers. The first payment was at the rate of $625 per head. Chief Dokis, with a family of nine, received $5,625, while Henry Dokis, whose family roll call numbers ten, received $6,250.

The distribution was made at Sturgeon Falls by Indian Agent Cockburn and the tribe was fully represented by heads of the following families: Dokis, Restoule, Metegomuns, Kisco, and Ennewich, to the number of 84 men, women and children, who will draw interest on the capital amount, which will mean to some families $3,000 per year.

The Indians listened stolidly to the explanations of the Indian agent that the piece of paper each received meant that a large sum of money was in the Quebec Bank to their credit, which could be obtained when required. A short lecture on banking and the beauties of the savings department followed, after which the Government checks marched solemnly to the bank in the firm grasp of the Indian recipients, and each one drew the face value of the check, and, burdened with wealth, returned to the presence of the Indian agent, where each Indian piled his money up on the table and joyfully regarded the stacks of greenbacks.

One Indian insisted on having his money translated into bills of small denomination, and was loaded up with a mountain of greenbacks, five dollars and under. With a Longboat grin he staggered into the office of the Indian agent, money bulging out of every pocket. Slowly unpacking himself, he piled his treasure on the table, making a bigger display than any of his red brothers, which afforded him the greatest satisfaction.

The braves could hardly be persuaded to refrain from their determination to pack the money back to the reserve, twenty miles across Lake Nipissing, but finally, after making generous purchases and paying their bills, nearly all deposited their wealth in the bank.

The timber was sold for $771,000. The dues on saw logs is $2 per thousand feet, and on square and waney timber $50 per thousand cubic feet. After deducting the 10 per cent. cash payment to the Indians, the bonus and the dues on the timber after it is all cut will give the band a capital of about one million dollars, which they will draw interest upon.

An interesting result of the sudden acquisition of wealth by the Dokis band has been the frequent and prolonged visits of young bucks from other tribes, who are finding new attractions among the maidens of the Dokis families, and the matrimonial market has taken quite a boom. One wedding has already taken place, and indications are favorable for many more in the immediate future, as every Dokis maiden represents a cash value of about $1,000 and a yearly income of $300.

Work on G.T.P.
Although it seems only the other day since Messrs. Foley, Welch and Stewart were given the contract for the first hundred miles of the Grand Trunk Pacific east of Prince Rupert on the Pacific coast, Mr. Stewart, who was in Montreal recently, announces officially that the contract will be fully completed by September and that track laying will be started from the harbor of Prince Rupert early in June next.

Ninety per cent. of the work was rock, and while 3,500 men have been constantly at work, not a single Asiatic has been engaged.

Mr. Stewart is looking after the second hundred mile contract, but tenders have not yet been asked.

The same firm have also completed a section extending from the City of Edmonton 125 miles westward, bringing the G.T.P. right up into the foothills of the Rockies. He says that the road will open up the finest spruce belt in the world.

King Edward's Pet Dog.
The wire-haired fox-terrier Caesar, which accompanies King Edward on nearly all his travels, and whose collar in graven words proclaims: "I am Caesar. I belong to the King," joined His Majesty's entourage five years ago, on the death of his predecessor, Jack. He had hardly been a week in the Royal Household when he received a drubbing from an irritable old lady in Paris, where the King was visiting. Caesar, while passing the Tuilleries Gardens, "went for" the old lady's French poodle, whose owner sharply retaliated with her umbrella. "It is the King's dog!" exclaimed a horrified official. "The King's dog, is it?" retorted the poodle's owner, flourishing her weapon more furiously than ever. "Then so much the worse for the King!"

SLIPS OF THE TONGUE.

Even the Dignified English Butler Can Go Astray at Times.

A little story which has just found its way across the Atlantic from an English country house tells of the recent slip made by a new and nervous butler in serving his master, a duke, at the luncheon table. Quiet, respectful and assiduous, he proffered a dish with the insinuating query: "Cold grace, your grace?"

The ship is so obviously a natural one that doubtless the tale is true. Thus far it is also unchallenged as new, although probably by the time it has made the full round of the press somebody will discover that in its original form it was an Athenian "chestnut" in the days of Socrates.

An anecdote which at least belongs to the same family used to be laughed over in early Victorian drawing rooms.

Among the royalties, great and little, who came to London for the young Queen's coronation there was a certain small, dried up, gray haired, bright eyed, brisk little old reigning prince of a tiny principality. He was faraway cousin to an Irish duke, whose estates in Ireland he visited before returning. For his entertainment a village celebration was arranged, with games and dances, and especially Irish jigs and clog dances.

The gay old prince was delighted. He came himself of a race famous for its dancing. He still possessed a good eye, a quick ear and a light foot. That same evening in the great hall of the castle, to the whistling of his host's son, he endeavored to emulate some of the feats he had seen.

The duke's solemn English butler was present, and his horror at such unroyal antics was reflected in his eyes. The prince perceived it and, shooting a sudden forefinger at him, demanded imperiously: "Eh! Tell me, then, what you think of my dancing?" Discreet and dignified, but flustered inwardly, the butler's manner was perfect, but his tongue betrayed him. He answered:

"Your royal spryness is certainly high."

There was a shout of laughter, and the duke, with assumed anger, cried sternly: "What! Do you dare to insinuate that the prince is elevated—that his vivacity is due to any other good spirits than his own?"

Before such an accusation the poor butler's last remnant of composure vanished, and, turning wildly, with clasped hands, he protested earnestly: "No, I never, sir, your royal grayness; no, I never, sir, your ice!"

Cracks Eggs All Day.

For more than a week the man had been out of work. One Monday night, however, when he came back to the lodging-house he reported "good luck."

"What are you going to do?" asked his friend. "Break eggs," was the reply. "I've got a position in a cake and biscuit factory. They have people in those concerns who do nothing but crack eggs. They begin it at eight o'clock in the morning and keep it up till six at night. In that time, they tell me, a man who has become an expert can crack 9,000 eggs, or an average of 1,000 an hour. And he doesn't smash them all at one clip, either. He tackles them singly and disposes of them in groups of five. That is, in order to avoid any accident with over-ripe eggs, five of them are broken into a bowl and then added to the general stock."

"Great heavens!" ejaculated his friend. "What a monotonous grind! How much do you get for it?" "Five bob a day to start with," said the lucky man. "When I get up to the thousand-an-hour mark I'll get half a dollar more."

Some Irish Bulls.
At a convention of the Irish race recently in Dublin, two speakers, who had come from the United States, contributed the following sentences to the course of their speeches.

One of them, in giving some details of personal history, informed his hearers that "He had left Ireland 53 years before, a naked little boy, without a dollar in his pocket." Said the other, "Until last week, I had never set foot in the land of my birth."
