SELECT STORY.

A Bag of Gold.

"Are you engaged, coachman?"

I had stopped at that moment to water my horses and quench my own thirst in a saloon near by. I had scarcely reached my horses' heads when I heard the above question, and saw, as I turned around, a young lady standing by the side of my cab.

Without delay I answered, and opening the carriage door, I helped the lady in. Her face had a certain hesitating, timid expression, which made me judge that my fare was not an independent lady, but a housekeeper or governess.

She wore a black silk dress and a woolen shawl. Her hands and feet were small, but it did not escape me that her gloves were very much worn.

I asked her where she wished to be carried. She named a locality not of the best fame, and with a trembling voice, as if ashamed of it. I climbed on the box and whipped up. Although it was nothing to me where my fare wished to go, I felt a sort of curiosity as to who and what the lady might be.

I had observed that she seemed to have a pretty face, although the veil that she wore over it did not let me see her plainly. During the trip I was driven by my curiosity to peep through the carriage window behind me, and saw that she had put up her veil. She looked frightfully pale and thin. Her skin was like wax, and one did not need to be a doctor to know that she was consumptive.

She held in her hands something on which her eyes were fixed, and there came over her face an expression of thankfulness and satisfaction. What the object was I could not tell exactly. I saw that it was light colored, and had no decided shape. I had only two seconds of time for observation. I had to see to my horses in the crowded street.

I gave them a lash with the whip, and at a quick trot we soon arrived at the part of the city indicated. As soon as I found the number which the lady had given me I stopped, got off the box and opened the door to help her out. She appeared to be in great agitation, as if an unpleasant interview was before her. I received from her over the price of the fare, which she evidently knew, a little drink money, thanked her, and she turned away, while I turned my carriage toward a neighboring saloon to invest the drink money immediately in a glass of beer.

But before I went I straightened the carriage cushions and saw that all was right inside. As soon as I opened the door again I saw some object lying on the seat. It was a small linen sack—without doubt what the lady held in her lap. I lifted it and its weight astonished me.
With much curiosity I looked at it again and again, and then tried to open it. It was easily done, for the bag was fastened only by a piece of string.

One can imagine my surprise when I found that it was filled with gold pieces!
I dared not look at them further in this place as a policeman might possibly notice, and ask how I came by the gold.
Meanwhile I tied the sack again, and put it in the wide pocket of my coat. Instead of indulging myself in a glass of beer, I drove to the nearest hack-stand and took my place in the rear of the line of carriages, so that I could be sure of not being
