PETER WEIR WAS LANCASTER VICTIM

Famous Bank Robbery Recalled by Identification of the Man Shot by Von Metzke.

TORONTO, July 18—Over a year afterward the man killed by the bank clerk at Lancaster while burglars were enagaged in a midnight raid on the vaults of the Merchant's Bank, has been identified the police say, as "Pete" Weir, formerly of a small hamlet near Oshawa. His pals, after the shooting, dragged the body to the railway station, and removing every trace of identification, made their escape, and were never recaptured. Some of the gang convicted here for the Toronto Carpet Works safe-blowing were engaged in the robbery with the man shot.

The attempted bank robbery at Lancaster occurred on the morning of April 26, 1905. The burglars broke into the rear of the Merchants Bank and clubbed the teller, Herman Von Metzke over the head. Von Metzke got hold of his revolver and shot one of the gang, whose body was afterwards fund on the platform of the G. T. R. depot.

The identity of the dead man was a mystery, and remained so. Money and papers were removed from his pockets. He was recognized as a man who stayed around the village for some days and had registered at Leduc's hotel as J. Dixon, St. John, N. B. It was generally regarded as an alias.

BEIT'S VAST ESTATE TO EDUCATION

Pretoria, July 19—It is stated here that the estate of Alfred Beit, who died in London yesterday, will be vested in the trustees of the estate of Cecil Rhodes and applied to similar purposes as the Rhodes estate. Special provision is made for endowing on a prodigal scale a university, a technical college, and a secondary school on the Sachenwald estate, between Pretoria and Johannesburg, which is bequeathed to the education department.

MR. A. BEIT
FROM THE KING

All the estimates of Mr. Beit's fortune are conjectural. Some of his friends here place it at from $125,000,000 to $130,000,000, while a despatch from Pretoria places it at $45,000,000. A definite statement actually based on his will is not to be expected yet.

POSTMASTER GENERAL AT HALIFAX

Halifax, July 19—Hon. George B. Cortelyou, postmaster general of the United States, is in Halifax with his family, on a vacation trip. He will spend a few days here, but for the future his plans are not definitely formed.

He said he did not wish to express any opinion on the question of a two-cent letter rate between the United States and England, but he thought it not unlikely that some day such an arrangement would be effected. The United States had, however, taken a step in the direction of greater international postal facilities by increasing the regulation weight of letters, thus rendering unnecessary the use of the thin, light paper, formerly exploited for foreign letter writing.

As an offset to the British Imperial two-cent rate that now prevails, Mr. Cortelyou mentioned the fact that a similar rate exists between the United States, the Philippines, and Porto Rico.

Mr. Cortelyou alluded to the fact that there had been some difficulty with the Canadian post office department regarding the transmission of United States magazines, and newspapers to this country, said there had been some friendly correspondence on this subject between the two governments, and he had no doubt the matter would soon be straightened out.

GENERAL SUMNER PLEASED

(Argonaut.)

A story is being told among the friends of General Samuel S. Sumner, U. S. A., retired, who was until recently the commanding officer of the Pacific division. General Sumner, who was in Oakland for a stay, left the city after the earthquake and went to San Rafael. There he was informed by one of the guiding spirits of the village that he must aid in patrolling and guarding against fires and unruly refugees. Something in General Sumner's bearing evidently impressed the man, for, after a moment's thought, he said: "I think I'll make you a second lieutenant."

"Thank you," answered General Sumner, "I don't think any rank ever conferred upon me ever pleased me more, unless it was when I was made a major-general in the regular army."

R. C. Ritchie, of Chipman, was registered at the Victoria yesterday.

A NEW EXPLOSIVE

Arrangements Being Made for its Manufacture in Canada—Factories in Ontario and Cape Breton.

(Montreal Witness).

Ammonal, a comparatively new explosive, possessing very powerful qualities, is about to be manufactured in Canada. The Harmsworths will be the promoters of the enterprise. The name of Harmsworth is now a household word in this country. Very soon it is to be presumed, the name of their new, high explosive — ammonal —will also be a household word and the material itself as familiar as dynamite, gunpowder, etc.

Harry E. Winter, of London, who represents the Harmsworths, is in Montreal. In the course of a most interesting conversation with a Witness representative on matters he explained something of the properties and uses of ammonal and the intentions of his firm regarding its manufacture and employment in this country. Mr. Winter is looking for suitable centres in which to establish factories for the manufacture of ammonal. It is destined, he says, to be a mighty factor both in peaceful pursuits and in war. It will blow up a ship, wreck a fortification, rend rocks asunder or hurl a cannon ball for miles, as no force hitherto known has been able to do. Mr. Winter is on the way to Parry Sound, which has been represented as probably offering suitable conditions for the establishment of the first factory in the dominion. He will also visit other Ontario towns, for it has been decided that the first factory shall be started in that province.

The industry will be wholly and distinctly Canadian; the raw material will be manufactured locally. Canada has lots of it. The chief ingredients used in the manufacture of this explosive are nitrate of ammonium and aluminium—this being the first high explosive in which aluminium has figured. Later on, factories will be erected in Cape Breton and British Columbia. At the Cape Breton factory the manufacture will be chiefly "ripping" ammonal, and other varieties used in coal mining.

"Ammonal" Mr. Winter explained, "is in various forms for use in blasting, for railway and public works, for mining, and especially for fiery and dusty coal mines. It has passed the highest tests of Woolwich arsenal for safety. Quite two-thirds of the English explosive business is in connection with collieries, and in three years they have not had an ignition of gas. Another point for all deep mining, is that there are no dangerous fumes as in dynamite. There is no delay in getting to work after a blast.

"The chief point as regards Canada is that this explosive does not freeze, and consequently, there is no delay in thawing, as almost always occurs in the employment of dynamite. We had a considerable trial of this explosive on the Canadian Northern and the Canadian Pacific railways. The rock there is of the hardest kind, and the contractors find that ammonal, the kind used for that class of work—does fifty per cent. more work than the 'forty per cent.' dynamite, and quite thirty-three per cent. more than the 'fifty per cent.' dynamite. It is impossible to explode it by friction or concussion. The only thing that will explode it is a detonator. Owing to its extreme safety, the railways of Europe carry it as ordinary merchandise. No doubt the Canadian railways also will soon satisfy themselves of its immunity from risk and will carry it at special rates.

"Ammonal for filling shells for use in warfare is destined to become the explosive of the future. It has enormous fragmentation and will tear up earthworks and masonry, and set wooden buildings on fire. Fired through a twelve-inch armor plate, the shell does not burst from impact, but from the usual detonation. So fired, two hundred and sixty fragments will break up and eighty per cent. of these fragments will be of serviceable quality; that is to say, they would kill or injure always. Several European governments have adopted ammonal for naval and military purposes, and others have its adoption under consideration."

A resident of Sheriff street requested the North End police last evening to caution a fifteen-year-old girl, a member of his household, who, he alleged, persists in remaining away from home until late at night.

J. S. Harquail and Master R. Harquail, of Dalhousie, are at the Royal.
