BAR ROOM FIGHT
CASE IN COURTCase Against John Rhea for Allowing Disorderly Conduct in His Saloon Heard This Morning --- Witness Swears Rhea Ordered Door to be Held While Fight Went on.

The case against John Rhea, charged with allowing disorderly conduct in his bar on the night of June 28th, was resumed in the police court this morning.

Sergeant Campbell said that on that night between nine and ten o'clock he saw a large crowd in front of Rhea's bar. He went to the door and because of a noise he heard he went in. He found that three men had climbed and were pulling and dragging one another. The sergeant parted them. The defendant, Rhea, was bleeding freely from the face. William Green was there and had a black eye. Andrew Green, brother of William, had a cut on the nose. A man named Goodwin had a black eye and there was blood on the floor.

The sergeant said to the defendant: "Do you wish to give Goodwin in charge?" and Mr. Rhea replied "No, I don't wish to get mixed up in anything." He told the sergeant that he had held Goodwin on the floor as long as he could. He told him that he wanted him ejected. The sergeant got Officer McColm and went back again and said to Rhea a second time: "Do you want to give Goodwin in charge?" The defendant replied in the negative. The witness then got Goodwin's hat and coat for he was in his shirt sleeves. Goodwin had friends with him named Briggs and Moore and the former got his coat on and took him off. Andrew Green had his coat and hat off. William Green was in the office. The sergeant asked Andrew Green "What is the matter with Bill's eye?" He replied "I don't know." A man named McGill was bartender and he was on the outside of the counter. McGill, Andrew Green and Goodwin were doing the pulling and dragging.

When Sergeant Campbell went into the bar at first Rhea told him that Goodwin had struck him. Goodwin, both Greens and Rhea were all under the influence of liquor. Someone used profane language before the witness had entered the bar-room.

Officer McColm told about the same story as that stated by the previous witness.

Thomas Goodwin, called, said that he went into Rhea's bar with Briggs and Arthur Moore. The witness called for a drink and Green and a colored fellow were there. All three named by Goodwin entered into a conversation. Goodwin treated three and then Green treated the five. They had a few words and the bartender struck the witness on the side of the face over the counter. He then came from behind the counter and when Goodwin saw him coming he took off his coat. They exchanged blows. Rhea came out of the office and told Moore to hold the door. When Rhea came McGill and Green had the witness on the floor. Rhea said, "now that you have him down murder the fellow." Goodwin broke away and struck Rhea in the face and the ran in the office. McGill and Green grabbed him again and held him. Sergeant Campbell came in then.

James Briggs said Goodwin and McGill had some words and the latter struck Goodwin. He then told the story as stated by Goodwin except that he said that when Goodwin was on the floor Rhea ran over and struck him. The witness said that he ran over and got Goodwin up and he also told about the vile expression used by Rhea when Goodwin was on the floor. He also told them to kill Goodwin. The witness told Moore to hold the door and allow no one in the bar.

G. A. Henderson presented the formal charge which stated allowing disorderly conduct and J. R. Armstrong objected, saying "It is un-British to present information after the evidence is in."

Mr. Armstrong explained that he meant that it was contrary to British law. G. A. Henderson read the act which allowed him to present the charge at any stage.

Inspector Jones called by the defence said that he considered Rhea's saloon orderly.

Leo McGill, bartender for Rhea, said that Goodwin came into the bar and started giving dirty words. McGill told him it was against the rules of the house and he refused to do it. He then struck him. He came around the counter and then the mix-up started. Rhea came out and he was the first man hurt. He fell on the floor and his eye was cut. Green and the witness took Rhea into his office. McGill said that he did not hear Rhea say any such language as the prosecution witnesses attributed to him. The row started by Goodwin calling him an obscene name.

To Mr. Henderson McGill admitted that Goodwin was under the influence of liquor when he came into the bar. The witness swore that Rhea did not see Sergeant Campbell the first time he came in the bar. William Green had a black eye and Andy Green had a few scratches on his nose. They had a scrap before Goodwin came in at all. The witness could not say that the Greens were under the influence of liquor. He did not notice the eyes, but after that they had two more drinks. They remained in the bar until ten o'clock, and the witness could not remember whether they were served after the general mix-up.

To Mr. Armstrong the witness said that the rule about not giving liquor to intoxicated men was always strictly carried out. Adjournment was made until 2.30 this afternoon.

WOMAN'S WORK AT THE EXHIBITION

The Display will Be One of the Finest Features of the Whole Fair.

The announcement of a special woman's department at the big fair to be held here Sept. 1st to 8th, has aroused a good deal of interest among the ladies generally throughout the province of New Brunswick. It is a good many years since any exhibit of woman's work has been attempted in this province, and it is necessary, if this is to be a success that it deserves this year, that every lady who has any speciality in handicraft should be an exhibitor.

The Woman's Council, in conducting this department, are endeavoring to develop interest generally among the ladies in all lines of needle and fancy work, and all classes of woman's hand-work, in order to show that these eastern provinces are not behind the west in the ability of its women to produce artistic work of general usefulness. This is true not only in plain needlework and fancy work, but in the fine arts, such as painting in oil or water color, lace making, burnt work, and other classes of artistic work in which women especially excel.

The exhibition manager has issued a special prize list devoted to this department, and separate entries from the general prize list of the exhibition. This special prize list for women's work covers a vast field of art and labor, and is well worth inspection by women of taste. A postal card addressed to the manager of the exhibition, P. O. Box 411, will bring this prize list to anyone who sends for it.

It must be borne in mind by the ladies of this province that the Woman's Council, in conducting this department, are not doing it exclusively for their members, but for the general encouragement of what might be called the special lines of woman's industry, and it is open to every woman who has anything to send. The management report that they have enquiries from all parts of the provinces, and it is expected that this department will be one of the most interesting of any in the whole exhibition.

Miss Hannah G. Donovan, of north end, has gone on a visit to Boston, New York and Newport.

Barkentine St. Croix, of Windsor, N. S., Captain J. J. Warner, arrived at Boston last Wednesday from Rosario, with a cargo of wool worth $50,000.

The St. Peter's ball team will go to Amherst to play two games with the Ambassadors on Saturday. One game will be in the afternoon and the other in the evening. The North End boys will take their strongest line-up.

Steamship Angola, of the Elder-Dempster line, before reported ashore near Sydney, off East Barline, has been given up as a total loss.

INHUMAN SISTER PLOTS FOR BROTHER'S MURDER

SEATTLE, Wash., July 13. — Esther Mitchell, who shot and killed her brother, George Mitchell, in the Union Station yesterday, made public a statement last night, in which she describes the murder as deliberately planned. George Mitchell had recently been acquitted of the murder of Franz Edmund Creffield, a "Holy Roller" prophet, on the plea of insanity. He claimed that Creffield had wronged his sister, Esther, who was a "Holy Roller." Esther later planned her brother's death. In her statement she said: "Mrs. Creffield and I talked over the matter of killing George. The one that had the best chance was to do it. Mrs. Creffield bought the gun. This afternoon I thought I would have a better chance to do it than Mrs. Creffield, as my brother wanted to see me, and Mrs. Creffield gave me the gun. We agreed that it must be done as soon as possible. My brother, Fred, was up to my room today and said that Perry and George were going to Portland this evening. I went to the depot and saw Perry get his ticket.

"At last I saw George and I shook hands with him. He and Perry were walking in front and Fred and I were walking behind. I was walking to the door and George was in front of me. That was the chance I wanted and I shot him. My brother Fred grabbed me and I fell down on his lap and put my arms at his neck. I sat there and the officer came. I intended to follow him to Portland if I did not get a chance at him here.

"I am not sorry I did the shooting; I am glad of it." Mrs. Creffield, the widow of the dead prophet, was arrested last night and admitted having entered into a compact with Esther to kill the slayer of her husband.

ONE LIFE LOST AND MUCH DAMAGE DONE IN LAST NIGHT'S STORMLudlow Nase Killed by Lightning at Welsford While Attending Orange Dance---Several Others Dazed and Burned ---Property Damage Done at Hampton.

Last night's electric storm was responsible for at least one death and a number of serious accidents, besides destroying considerable property.

Ludlow Nase, of Nerepis station, was struck by the lightning while participating in the 12th. of July festivities, in the Orange Hall, at Welsford. Death was practically instantaneous as the unfortunate man was heard to groan three times after the shock and then was still for all time.

Frank Lingley, a baggageman on the C. P. R. suburban train was an eye-witness to the affair. Speaking to the Times he said he had never seen such a storm in his life. The peals of thunder were terrific and the lightning flashes almost continuous. Mr. Lingley with a friend entered the hall a few minutes before the accident, they having just left their train after the run from this city. Mr. Lingley was watching his hands when there came a fierce roar of thunder followed by a vivid flash of lightning and then the cries of the frightened people in the hall, as the bolt tore through the building and struck dead one of their number and dazed the others. Mr. Nase was seated in the ante-room of the hall, reaching on one arm when the fatal bolt came. It entered over the front door passed through an inner door and struck Mr. Nase in the breast, leaving a vivid mark. The stricken man was heard to moan slightly and then was still.

Within a short time after the accident the body had turned black, evidently being seared through.

The body was taken to Nerepis this morning, where Nase had lived with his aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nase. The blow came as a great shock to his parents, as he was their only son and supported the family, tending to the extensive farming operations in the district.

Mr. Nase was 29 years and 8 months old, and was a widower. His wife was a daughter of Leander Lingley and died shortly after they were married. T. W. C. Nase is an uncle, and D. H. Nase, of Indiantown is a distant connection.

Some Narrow Escapes

There were a number of narrow escapes of other people in the hall. A young lady who was standing about thirty feet away from the spot where Mr. Nase was sitting was partly paralyzed by the shock and had to be carried home.

A man named McDonald, who was standing near was knocked completely off his feet, and was dazed for a time. Another had been burned out of his trousers, while still another had the tails burned off of his coat.

When the lightning struck all the lights in the building were extinguished except the two train lanterns carried by the businessmen. The entire northern side of the building was wrecked, and it is a marvel that no one fatally occurred.

Mr. Lingley looks upon his escape as particularly lucky. This is the second narrow escape he has had at Welsford. Last winter he had just left an engine when it blew up.

It is reported that there was a fierce fire back of Sargents on the C. P. R., evidently started by the lightning. It burned brightly all night, despite the steady downpour of rain.

In Milford the residence of William South was struck by the lightning and quite badly damaged.

The street car service was somewhat demoralized as a result of the storm's pranks. Two of the Paradise Row line cars were put out of commission, and had to be towed to the shed, while three cars on the main line were also sent to the repair shop.

Osborne, an employee of Malcolm Mackay, said that there were ten pieces that he found at the foot of Simonds street, which were marked so that he recognized them as deals that he had ordered to be marked. THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

FORCE OF HABIT.

A St. John man who was in Montreal on Wednesday picked up the Star and his eye was caught by a headline in large type: "Must Improve Ferry Service."

"Hello!" he ejaculated. "Is the Omnibus sick, too?"

He had been so accustomed to ferry service sometimes at home that his mistake was quite natural, but the headline in the Star referred to a Montreal ferry.

DOUBTFUL ASSURANCE.

"Mr. Mayor," said an alderman this morning, "you are entirely wrong in thinking that we do not regard you with respect." We hold you in the highest esteem.

The alderman took the mayor by the shoulder, whirled him around and presented him with a swift kick. After which he proceeded on his way.

The mayor leaned against a post and reflected. He did not like to question the alderman's statement, but the kick was in evidence, and a doubt lingered in his mind. He rubbed himself thoughtfully and proceeded on his way.

Mrs. Birdie McWhit states that the Misses of Ontario, one of whom has recently been appointed a judge, are in branch of the original McWhit family, extremely vivid and almost continuous. The thunder was like the constant roll of a park of artillery. The long distance telephone service was put out of business and road damage was more or less in evidence. George Langsford's house on Cemetery road was badly shattered, apparently by two bolts, one taking effect on the rear and one on the front of the large two story wooden structure. The main chimney was shattered, shingles tipped off, facing boards splintered, interior plaster burst off from the walls, doors rent in pieces, and debris scattered about in almost every room. Picture frames were broken and blackened, glass shattered and the whole place is in a wrecked condition. Fortunately some of the family, consisting of the parents and three children were injured, although Mrs. Langsford was struck on the shoulder by a piece of two by three scantling driven through the walls of the room. Her husband and one child were in at the time. The amount of damage has not been made up but it will probably cost two or three hundred dollars to make good. The front of Barnes' Hall was also struck, tearing off shingles and sheathing and shattering a window sill.

Word came of a fire at Bloomfield where a barn was struck owned by Joseph Titus, and some twelve cords of wood set on fire, which was still burning this morning.

At Fredericton

FREDERICTON, N. B., July 13. (Special.)—A violent electrical storm, accompanied by copious showers of rain passed over the city at an early hour this morning. The weather cleared up about nine o'clock and turned very warm.

At Rexton

REXTON, N. B., July 13. (Special.)—An extremely severe electrical storm visited this section last night. The spire of the St. Louis R. C. church was very badly damaged and the house and store of Joseph Haire of the same place were burned to the ground.
