COMMON COUNCIL

Decline to Reappoint R. H. Cushing at an Increased Salary---The Position is Now Regarded as Vacant.

The common council last night refused to re-appoint Richmond H. Cushing director of public works at a salary of $1,800 a year. His position is now regarded as vacant, and the board of works will make arrangements for temporary supply pending a regular appointment.

A committee consisting of the chairman of the boards with Ald. Baxter and Pickett was appointed to bring in a recommendation as to amalgamating one or more of the offices of heads of departments with a view to greater efficiency and economy. The mayor was requested to cable Chester Martin the city's congratulations on his securing the Gladstone memorial prize at Oxford University. His worship was appointed a committee to confer with the Loyalist Society with a view to the improvement and preservation of the old burial ground.

Mayor Sears occupied the chair and all the members of the council were present with the common clerk. Marshall Coughlan was in attendance.

The report of the treasury board being taken up, Ald. Bullock, in moving the adoption, referred to the recommendation to appoint additional temporary assistance in the chamberlain's office. He said such help would be of little use and the public might as well know that a permanent increase in the staff was needed. The chamberlain had informed him that he did not think he could obtain the efficient services he would require for less than $45 a month.

It was decided to take up the report section by section.

On the motion to appoint Edward S. Dibblee, a constable, Ald. McGoldrick moved the section be referred back. He understood Mr. Dibblee was in business and could not devote the necessary time to the work.

Ald. Lockhart considered him a most suitable man.

After further discussion the section was referred back.

The section to secure additional help in the chamberlain's department was passed, and the report adopted as a whole.

The report of the board of public works was taken up section by section. Ald. Hamm objected to the way in which the tenders for paving blocks had been awarded.

Ald. McGoldrick said the alderman referred to the tender of Randolph & Baker, which was accepted at 51 cents a yard, against 50 cents offered by others. He thought there was a big difference between delivering the blocks when required as Randolph & Baker offered to do and the other tenderers who supplied them in the slip.

After further discussion the section was adopted.

On the section recommending the reappointment of Director Cushing at the increased salary of $1,800, Ald. McGoldrick, as chairman of the board formally moved its adoption, adding that he was not obliged to vote for it.

Ald. Lockhart said he hardly considered it fair to make any increase at the present time. The total amount now paid to the heads of departments was $55,000, which was a very large sum. He felt that as good or better results could be obtained by reduction in the number of officials and moved an amendment that a committee be appointed to consider the amalgamation of one or more of the offices of director of public works, director of water and sewerage, director of public safety and city engineer with a view to more economy and efficiency.

Ald. Hamm—"All the appointments are for a year. You can't do it."

Ald. Lantalum said he was opposed to the increase and would oppose all such attacks on the city treasury. They must see if they expended a dollar that they received a dollar's worth. There were already heavy expenditures in connection with the water extension and harbor improvements and the condition of the streets, which was disgraceful, would call for a large sum of money. Other employes were entitled to increased salaries, such as the police, the firemen and the men on the roads. He felt that the latter were getting starvation wages and he for one would sooner vote for higher pay in these directions. He was not in favor of the amendment in connection with this matter and had come to the conclusion that the director, who was receiving nearly $5 a day for working days, was fairly well paid.

Ald. Bullock did not think the amendment had been introduced in the right place and suggested it should be moved when the question as to the director had been settled. Mr. Cushing would be qualified to take up one of the positions under the amalgamation. The alderman spoke strongly in favor of the director and said that the last council had already set aside $400 in the assessments, part of which was specially intended to be applied to the increase in the director's salary. He regretted the chairman of the board had not stated his views.

Ald. McGoldrick said he noticed Ald. Bullock was anxious to grant an increase to the director but there were many others wanting it at the same time. He was not personally opposed to Mr. Cushing but the taxes were already too heavy and apart from that he did not think a certified engineer was necessary to the department at all. It had not been so in the past. "If," he concluded, "Mr. Cushing were a poor man it would be another matter, but he is in pretty good circumstances and its only child's play for him to come over to the city every day and go up to his office. I think $1,500 are the best terms we could offer him."

Ald. Lockhart said he did not intend to cast any reflection on Mr. Cushing in his amendment. He hoped if the amendment was carried that the director would remain until the committee made their report. He could not, however, vote for the increase.

The mayor said he endorsed all that Ald. Lockhart had said and agreed with the chairman of the board of works that the present state of the city's finances would not admit granting any increase.

Ald. Lewis considered the amendment out of order and urged the aldermen to vote a straight aye or nay on the question. He thought the city would be in a pretty mess if they were without a head to the department at this time of the year.

The amendment was then put and lost by five votes to ten. Ald. Lockhart, McGoldrick, Sproul, Holder and Vanwart voted aye; Ald. Christie, Pickett, Baxter, Tilley, Rowan, Lantalum, Willet, Lewis, Bullock and Hamm, nay.

The original motion to reappoint Mr. Cushing at $1800 a year was called and declared carried by the chair. On the question being challenged the motion was lost by eight votes to seven. Ald. Bullock, Christie, Willet, Hamm, Lewis, Rowan and Tilley voted aye; Ald. Baxter, McGoldrick, Vanwart, Lantalum, Holder, Pickett, Sproul and Lockhart, nay.

Ald. Willet asked what position the council now stood in with reference to Mr. Cushing.

The mayor said he understood that Mr. Cushing had intimated he would retire if he did not receive the increase he asked for, and it would therefore appear that he himself had solved any difficulty.

Ald. Baxter mentioned that the office of director became vacant May 1 but that Mr. Cushing had courteously continued doing the work. He believed that Mr. Cushing might be found willing to continue at $1,500 but that was a matter to be determined later.

The report was then adopted.

The report of the water and sewerage board was taken up section by section. Section three recommended an extension, on the application of Mrs. Julia A. McManus, for a sewer in Victoria street west at a cost of $210. This was referred back for the chairman to see if some better arrangement could be made.

The remainder of the report was adopted.

The report of the board of safety was taken up section by section. Section three referred to a lot of land in Lancaster which Randolph & Baker asked to be included in one lease with an adjoining lot.

After some discussion the matter was referred back for better arrangements as to improvements.

Section four, with reference to granting the use of the lower rooms in Carleton City Hall to Rev. Mr. Sampson for recreation purposes, was referred back for the chairman, with power to act, to arrange for the boys' brigade to pay a proportion of the rental.

Section five recommended repairs to the exhibition building to the extent of $300 or $400.

Ald. Tilley and Ald. Holder reported that it would be necessary to place a new roof on part of the main building. The section was referred back for the committee to call for tenders and with power to act.

The report was then adopted.

The report of the appeals and ferry committee were adopted.

The annual report of the director of safety was referred to the board.

Communications were referred to the boards. John Lee, the owner of the house which was in a dangerous condition in Union street, Carleton, and was removed by him, claimed $46 for the spiling on which the house was built.

N. A. Belcourt, M. P., wrote from Ottawa asking the council to endorse by resolution the action taken by parliament on his motion to invite the king and queen to visit Canada this year.

It was decided that a suitable resolution should be prepared.

The street railway asked permission to lay a single track of rails through Pond street in view of the difficulty of tracking Paradise Row.

On motion of Ald. Baxter, the claims committee were authorized to deal with claims arising out of the west side water system.

Ald. Lockhart formally moved the resolution to appoint a committee to consider the amalgamation of the heads of departments.

Ald. Pickett moved an amendment that in the meantime the mayor and chairman of the board of works notify Director Cushing that the council could not increase his salary and would wish him to remain at $1,500.

Ald. Baxter said in voting against the increase he had not been altogether influenced by the amount. If it became necessary to vote on Ald. Pickett's amendment he would have to plainly state his views. He thought the course suggested was derogatory to the council. If Mr. Cushing changed his mind he could come to them.

Ald. Lockhart's motion was carried without amendment.

Ald. Rowan moved that Mr. Cushing be retained at $1,650 a year.

A. W. Tilley, in seconding the motion, referred to the amount of work that required attention and thought it the best thing the council could do.

Ald. Baxter—"Can you give any assurance that he will accept less than $1,800?"

Ald. Tilley—"If he won't the matter will be settled."

The mayor—"If he does it will be derogatory to the council and if he doesn't the council will be in a bad position."

Ald. Holder—"He won't accept."

Ald. Hamm—"He said he would."

Ald. Holder—"Then what's he doing; playing a game of bluff?"

Ald. Baxter moved an amendment that the board of works be authorized to make temporary arrangements pending a permanent appointment.

Ald. Bullock said he would like to hear from the chairman how he proposed to run matters without a director.

Ald. McGoldrick said he considered a meeting of the board was the proper place to settle such questions. Ald. Rowan appeared by his motion to be trying to coax Mr. Cushing back. The director, however, was not the only man who could do the work. "Just give the board of works a chance," continued the alderman, "and see if they can't run the department. If Mr. Cushing wants to come back at $1,500 it's up to him. When the vote was taken that settled it. It is now for the board of works to decide as to a temporary appointment or retaining Mr. Cushing. He's out and must make his application in the ordinary way."

Ald. Baxter's amendment was carried.

On motion of Ald. Bullock the mayor was appointed to confer with the Loyalist Society and ascertain what expenditure would be required to put the stones and epitaphs in the Old Burial Ground in proper condition.

Ald. Baxter referred to the success of Chester Martin in winning the Gladstone memorial prize at Oxford and spoke eloquently of the honors he had secured for his native city and province. He moved that the mayor cable to Mr. Martin the city's congratulations on his success and that a letter should be sent him embodying more fully the appreciation of his effort.

The mayor expressed the pleasure he would have in carrying out such a resolution. The motion was carried unanimously.

At the request of the mayor, a motion was passed that the meeting time of the council should be withdrawn from the motion which originally fixed the meetings as evening sessions.

In reply to Ald. Willet, the mayor said he would call the committee on his inaugural address next week.

The council then adjourned.

At the conclusion of the meeting the mayor appointed Ald. Lockhart, McGoldrick, Vanwart and Bullock, who are the chairmen of the boards, with Ald. Baxter and Pickett as the committee to consider the question of amalgamating one or more of the offices of directors of the boards and also that of the city engineer.

CHIEF SARK OF P. E. I. MICMACS TAKING IN SIGHTS OF ST. JOHN

CHIEF JOHN SARK OF P. E. ISLAND

"With the odors of the forest,
With the dew and damp of meadows,
With the curling smoke of wigwams,
With the rushing of great rivers."

You could not help dwelling upon such pleasing and wholesome fancies, when Chief John Sark, of the Prince Edward Island redmen, strode mightily into the Telegraph office yesterday afternoon. Here was no pampered child of stifling cities. His majestic presence savored of the chase, of dim forest aisles, of sparkling lakes, of remote council fires.

The crown of his black felt hat was encircled with feathers of lurid tint. Beads glinted upon his chieftian's coat, a crimson sash was around his waist, and upon his bulky bosom hung medals from renowned sovereigns.

A few of the more timid souls in the office were unprepared for the sudden and informal appearance of the distinguished Indian. Some fell to speculating whether it would ever again be necessary to use a comb and brush. But the chief's mission was one of peace. His smile was most winning, and his words were the words of greeting and good fellowship.

He was just travelling back by easy stages to his own people across the straits, he said, after visiting the lodges of other tribes as far away as Quebec, and he had paused in St. John to grasp the hands of his white brethern, and incidentally honor the newspaper men with a call in person.

He carried a dress suit case, which he placed beneath a reporter's desk, and then with kingly mien surveyed the office interior.

Everybody maintained a discreet silence. It was not meet to disturb the tranquility of his scrutiny. People passing the windows, halted and peered at the sublimity of the tableaux. There was nothing of arrogance or of conscious might about the chief for he was born to rule, and supreme authority became him quite as much as his cloak of vivid contrasts. Six feet tall and weighing 230 pounds he is a striking figure.

Anon, he spoke, and his voice was musical and low, like the ripple of a shadow flecked brook over golden pebbles. He smiled, and the staff basked in its radiance; a gentle, an amiable chief, surely?

He thrust out a good right hand, everybody shook it, and the ice had not only been shattered, but was melting with surpassing rapidity.

Chief Sark can trace his lineage back to a time far previous to the days when French and English warred for the mastery of Acadia. He is of the proud blood of the Micmacs, and his forbears were the lords of the maritime provinces before the magic name of the new continent had cast its spell over the adventurers of the old.

The chief is 48 years of age, and has been at the head of the Island Indians for just a decade. He was born on St. Patrick's Day, and when one referred to the significance attached to such a date, his portly body quivered with mirth, and he said there were men sufficiently courageous to call him a smoked Irishman.

Has Been on Visiting Tour.

It was about a month ago that he concluded the time had come for him to lay aside for a season the onerous duties of chieftianship. He would seek a change, and return to his people, refreshed in body and mind. There were other chiefs and other tribes, and why not visit them? He felt assured that wherever he wandered he would be made welcome, and subsequent developments but served to verify this impression.

At Dartmouth he inhaled the smoke of the peace pipe, and swore abiding friendship with Chief Peter Paul, who was elected to office this spring. At Truro he was welcomed, the smoke of the pipe again ascended and Chief Jake Brooks, like his fellow ruler in Dartmouth, felt his heart warm within him when told that all was well with the Micmacs of the island to the eastward.

Chief Sark was pressed to tarry, and tarry he did for a few days, but there were more lodges that he felt he could not overlook, so one bright morning he bore away for Dorchester, the God speed of Truro warriors echoing in his ears.

At Dorchester, Chief Douney Paul (for six years a ruler), greeted him with fitting ceremony. The braves were summoned, likewise the maids and squaws, and the stranger from the gulf was made to feel that his presence was an event from which future reckoning would date. The parting between the two monarchs was not without its pathetic side, but by the time Chief Sark reached the Kingdom of Chief Peter Sewell in the fastnesses of the Restigouche, the strong emotion that had threatened to unman him had passed away and he was quite himself again.

Yet once more was it his fortune to be showered with kindnesses, for Chief Sewell was not one whit behind Chief Douney Paul, when it came to a question of entertaining a stranger of rank. There was wassail without ceasing, and the friendship of the peoples represented by the two chiefs was cemented for numberless moons.

The braves dwelling about Rimouski and Lauriet (Que.), were found to be honorable and of undisputed bravery; the maids were winsome and of great numbers. The metropolis of Montreal was seen, after which Chief Sark rested in the village of Canohnauaga (Que.), and was accorded by Chief Martin 2 Axe, of Iroquois descent, hospitality, both stately and unstinted. The parish priest interested himself, and on Sunday Chief Sark was invited to occupy a special seat in the chapel.

From Quebec, he turned to the South and last Thursday was in Jubilee, when the heavens lowered and he was drenched by a pitiless storm.

His Medals.

Chief Sark takes a proper and a becoming pride in the possession of his medals. One is a precious heirloom. The chief says that it is of pure silver, and that it was given to one of his ancestors by the French 191 years ago. It is glossy and bright; on one side is stamped the head of Louis, and on the other two figures with clasped hands, surrounded by a Latin inscription: "Honor and Virtue." The second adornment was presented by the Earl of Aberdeen during the late Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, and the third is the medal of Pope Pius, presented by the Archbishop of Montreal; unique and valuable possessions all, and no one knows it better than the bearer.

Chief Sark will linger in the city until tomorrow, when he will sail for Fredericton and Woodstock. Today he proposes to pay his respects to Mayor Sears. In his striking garb the chief attracted much attention on the streets yesterday.

STOPPED MONTREAL WRESTLING BOUT AND FREE FIGHT ENSUED

Montreal, May 14—(Special)—Inspector Lamouche stopped a wrestling bout at Sohmer Park tonight, and as a result there were several free fights among the excited spectators. Frank Gotch, American champion, and Pietro, the Frenchman, were billed for the best two-out-of-three Graeco-Roman style. About 3,500 spectators were present.

There seemed to be bad blood between the wrestlers and after they had struggled for about forty minutes, Gotch, seemingly getting the better of it, Pietro claimed a foul, and said that Gotch was goughing him. Inspector Lamouche then stepped into the ring and ended the sport.

FREDERICTON NEWS

Fredericton, N. B., May 14—(Special)—Cornelius Kelly was elected alderman for St. Ann's ward today by a majority of 17 votes over Judson Barker. The election was one of the quietest in the history of the city, little more than one-third of the qualified voters taking the trouble to go to the polls. Mr. Kelly has been twice defeated and many voted for him out of sympathy. The members of the council took no part in the contest although it is known that a majority of them were in sympathy of Barker. The vote stood:

Kelly—City hall, 97; court house, 129; total, 226.

Barker—City hall, 150; court house, 59; total, 209.

Majority for Kelly, 17.

Montreal, May 14—(Special)—C. A. Brown, former United States customs officer at New York, who was arrested here last January at the instance of the United States government and charged with conspiracy to defraud, was liberated today.

Judge Choquette had granted an order for extradition, but Justice Lavergne today quashed it on the ground that conspiracy was not an extraditable offence. He held that in order to be extraditable actual fraud would have to be established. In the case of Gaynor and Greene there was both conspiracy and fraud.

CAMP SUSSEX

The annual encampment at Sussex will begin on June 26 and conclude July 7, and so far as is known at present there will just be the ordinary routine.

Col. White, D. O. C., told a Telegraph reporter Monday that the estimated strength of the camp is 2,500, but it is at present difficult to tell whether or not the camp will be up to full strength.

There appears to be some uncertainty respecting the presence of the 19th Field Battery, now being formed here. It is understood that the total strength of the battery has not yet been recruited, and before going to camp it will at least be necessary to put in some preparatory drill.

The routine at camp will include the regular infantry and cavalry drill, tactical and field days. It is yet too early to tell positively what officers will visit the camp. Usually it is not known until a week before they come. It is practically certain, however, that General Lake will be there and it is thought that the inspection will be by Lord Aylmer, who was in the city last summer when he inspected the 62nd Regiment.

In last evening's Star appeared a story to the effect that in all probability a drill hall would be built on or near the Shamrock grounds, North End. Complete surveys had been made, it was said, forwarded to Ottawa, and that the plans for the new building had been received and called for a fine stone structure, very similar in appearance to the Halifax armory, and that the department of militia was prepared to grant an amount up to $250,000.

Col. White, D. O. C., was asked Monday evening if he was in a position to confirm the report. He said he knew nothing whatever about the matter, and that there appeared justification for believing the story to be untrue.

The question of a new drill hall has been agitating the military element in this city for some time, and last year, when Lord Aylmer was here, he said he would give the matter his personal attention. There has been, in the opinion of some, far too much difference of opinion here respecting the location of a hall and that discussion was harmful instead of beneficial.
