THE COUNCIL'S DUTY

It is very surprising that any member of the city council should plead ignorance and want time for enquiry concerning the need of compulsory attendance at the schools of St. John. Where has any such member been living during all these years past?

There must be no shirking of responsibility on the plea of incomplete financial or school room arrangements. These bridges can be crossed when they are reached. The compulsory attendance act is needed. It has been asked for many times, and at last the legislature has granted the request. The city council has the power to apply the act in St. John, and will be held strictly to account for any failure to do so.

The Times believes, in spite of the expressed doubts of one or two, that the council this afternoon will apply the act, and will further show a disposition to work in harmony and heartily with the school board to see that the law is properly observed.

THE RISE OF J. B. MORAN

District Attorney John B. Moran, of Boston, is becoming an interesting figure in Massachusetts politics. His election as district attorney was a surprise for his opponents regarded him as a somewhat spectacular candidate, whose profession of a determination to stand for law enforcement was not to be taken too seriously. But his was the popular policy. Since his election he has given proof of fighting ability and a desire for law enforcement, and he has been active in connection with the charges of bribery preferred against members of the legislature.

As a result, Mr. Moran is talked of as a candidate for governor. He told the Boston Journal this week that he expected to get the democratic nomination for governor with very little opposition, while the prohibitionists, though a small body, polling only 3,286 votes at the last election, but expecting to poll very many more at the next one, are declared to be desirous of throwing their influence in Mr. Moran's favor. Last year's nominee of this party, Mr. Willard O. Wylie, supports Mr. Moran, and the permanent chairman of their convention said:—

"The Prohibition party recognizes the fact that it is useless to have a prohibition law on the statute books unless it be enforced. Our platform shall be based mainly on law enforcement, and we have every reason to believe that Mr. Moran will enforce all laws impartially, and I know that the leaders of the party are satisfied that he will do so. There is a tidal wave over the country demanding purity in politics, and Mr. Moran stands for this, and, in so doing, is our logical candidate, and I believe that he will put our platform into effect. We believe as he has kept the pledges he made to the people last year so he will keep the pledges now made."

Commenting on the situation, the Journal says:—"Although Mr. Moran will accept the nomination of the Prohibition party, he is also confident of securing the nomination at the Democratic convention, believing that the opposition of the few leaders will be overruled by public sentiment and that he will go through as the regular Democratic nominee."

Since the above was written a despatch from Boston states that Mr. Moran has received the nomination of the Prohibition party. Yesterday's Post says with regard to the Democratic party:

"District Attorney John B. Moran may be fortunate enough not to have any opposition in the Democratic convention for governor. It is the intention of the leaders of the state committee, of which Josiah Quincy is the chairman, to antagonize his nomination, but the only other man as yet trotted out for a candidate is General Charles W. Bartlett, and no one knows whether he will consent to be a candidate against Moran."

GREAT RESULTS EXPECTED

"The reasons that alcohl is preferable to gasoline for power use are:

"First—It can be produced as cheaply, perhaps for less, within a shorter time.

"Second—There never will be any chance to advance its price on account of scarcity.

"Third—It is so much safer that one can almost say it is absolutely safe.

"Fourth—It is clean and sanitary.

"Fifth—If there is a leaky pipe in the bottom of your boat it can be so arranged that the alcohol will mingle with the water so that danger from fire or explosion is absolutely prevented.

"As a power producer alcohol is about equal to gasoline. It is true that at present there is a little more difficulty in starting an engine, but this will soon be overcome now that the engine builders have an incentive. Even now there is a carburetter that will work with alcohol, as well as those now in use with gasoline."

The above statements are made by the engine builders of Detroit, who are actively experimenting with denatured alcohol as a source of power. It is stated that if the experiments prove that alcohol can be used with economy in high speed engines there will be something of a revolution in automobiles, in motor boats and even in railway traffic. In the first two gasoline now holds undisputed sway. The Standard Oil Company monopolizes the gasoline market. Prices of this commodity have risen steadily until they are more than double what they were ten years ago and the demand is greater than the supply. The Erie Railroad is experimenting with alcohol as a source of power, and Charles Herreshoff, the designer of fast craft, reports success with this power as applied to motor and torpedo boats.

But denatured alcohol also promises cheaper and better light, and safer and cheaper fuel for stoves. This has been proved by its actual use in Germany.

John W. Yerkes, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, accompanied by several members of Congress, sails today from New York for Europe to investigate conditions there in order to prepare regulations governing the distinctions between denatured alcohol for commercial purposes and alcohol intended for drinking purposes.

It is pointed out, however, by the Committee of Manufacturers which was most active in securing the legislation relieving denatured alcohol from the internal revenue tax in the United States, that too much must not be expected at the outset. We quote:-

"It may take two or three years before we have alcohol applied perfectly and universally, for up to now there has been no incentive to develop the proper devices One other great thing has been accomplished: The farmer is insured against crop losses. No longer need he throw away or burn his surplus corn, potatoes, or other products containing starch and sugar. They can be sold to make alcohol that will come back to him in the form of cheap fuel."

At Kingston, Ontario, yesterday a mob of Italian strikers used knives on the police officers, who sought to restore order. The militia was promptly ordered out and a score of the rioters arrested. Men who carry knives are not wanted in Canada. These cut-throats should be taught a severe lesson.

Winnipeg has at last declared in favor of Sunday street cars. Such a decision, though strongly opposed for years, was inevitable. Sunday cars are regarded not only as a convenience in a large city, but a necessity.

The decision of Winnipeg to spend three and a quarter millions on a municipal power plant, to bring power fifty miles from the Winnipeg river, is another remarkable evidence of the industrial ambition of the western metropolis.

It may be assumed that the next time a suit for damages against the city is settled out of court the aldermen will all be made aware of the fact at least as soon as the plaintiff in the case.

Common sense in dress appears to be gaining favor in military circles. At Camp Sussex the men enjoy much more comfort than was permitted in former years.

More youthful delinquents were before the police magistrate yesterday. The logic of facts continues to direct attention to the duty of the citizens to the children of the community.

The playgrounds fund continues to grow by contributions from abroad. Is not this fact somewhat singular?

TO DISCONTINUE OPERATIONS IN QUEBEC

Montreal, June 28.—The provincial government have issued an order for the Ancient Order of Hibernians to discontinue operations in Quebec. This action was taken in accordance with the law requesting mutual benefit organizations which are compelled to submit a report annually in regard to their membership and financial standing and the A. O. H. not having complied with the law in this respect it is placed under the ban.

The members of the Quebec branch of the order claim that their organization is not a mutual insurance benefit association and does not come under the category of such organizations, consequently the government has made a mistake that no doubt will be rectified.

HER PROBLEM

"So you are going to marry a young man who earns only $25 per week?"

"Yes," admitted the pampered society beauty, "I love him."

"And live in a four-room flat?"

"It is true."

"Do you not at times feel apprehensions?"

"Yes, I must confess I do. I sometimes feel quite worried as to where we are going to put our butler and my three maids."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

JUNE WEDDINGS

There's a swell of stately music,
There's a chancel full of bloom,
There's a crowd of well-gowned women,
There's a churchful of perfume.

There's a bunch of orange blossoms,
There's a shy and shrinking smile,
There's a swish of veil and chiffon,
There's a ribbon down the aisle,

There's a sweetly solemn pastor,
There's a whisper now and then,
There's a ring upon a finger,
There's a joyous Amen.

There's a rush of raw reporters,
With a diction that's sublime,
And the lovely wedding write-ups
Are working overtime.

NO ROOM FOR AN ARGUMENT.

(From the Chicago News.)

"I always try to be up to date," remarked young DeBorem, as the cuckoo clock chirped the half-hour previous to midnight.

"Yes," rejoined Miss Caustique, as she attempted to strangle a yawn, "you certainly are the latest thing out."

POSITIVELY ABSURD.

(From the Chicago-Record Herald.)

"By heaven," cried her enraged husband, "I'll—I'll——"

"Now Harold, do try to be calm," she implored, "you know it was very dark and it was only natural that he should have mistaken me for his wife. Good gracious, I can't see why you should storm around so. It wasn't you that he kissed. Why should you make such a fuss as long as I'm willing to overlook it?"

* * *

HE'S IN LINE.

(From the Chicago Record-Herald.)

"There goes a young man who is very likely to be connected with the nobility some day."

"Does he expect to inherit an estate in England?"

"No. He has three little daughters and is making money very fast."

* * *

A COLD BLOODED OPINION.

(From the Detroit Free Press.)

"When a man loses his money," remarked the cynic, "he finds out who his friends are."

"Yes," answered Mr. Dustin Stax, "it is a wise compensation. When a man loses his fortune he saves the time he used to spend shaking hands and listening to hard-luck stories, and gets a chance to make another."

* * *

A TIME TO BE CAREFUL.

(From the Baltimore American.)

"That little Miss Flirt has such a cute way of shooting glances at you from under her lashes."

"You had better be careful; her shooting glances might have a killing effect."

NON-COMITTIAL.

"I suppose," said the visitor to the teacher, who was dismissing her pupils, "that you are glad to get rid of your classes."

"Sir," she replied, cautiously, "I have made it my practice willingly and cheerfully to discharge my responsibilities."

TROOPS CALLED TO QUELL RIOT

Serious Affray as Result of Strike Among Italian Navvies on Grand Trunk at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., June 29—Two hundred Italians, employed by the Grand Trunk in repairing the road at the outer station, went on strike yesterday demanding that their wages be increased from $1.50 to $2 per day. As the Italians were making trouble and rioting, the police were called, but they were no match for the striking workmen.

When Police Sergeant Nesbitt made a rush to arrest the ringleader of the strikers, the latter drew knives and pistols, firing in all directions. Sergeant Nesbitt grasped his man, but was immediately surrounded. When he emerged, his left arm was useless, having been ripped from the shoulder several inches down. He was also stabbed in the left breast, and in the leg.

Chief Detective McRae was also in the scramble, and was suddenly grasped around the waist and a knife run into his abdomen on the left side. The strikers then rushed the police and detectives off the platform, and the latter had to make their escape. The wounded officers were brought to the city and their wounds dressed.

Mayor Mowat called out the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, and the men, mounted and armed, soon cowed the Italians. Ten were secured at one station, and nine at Cataraqui. The ringleader is thought to be one Delalla, a vicious looking fellow. He bears a bad cut over his left eye. The contingent was brought in the hope of identifying some of the assailants.

Sergeant Nesbitt's wounds are quite serious.

Probably a dozen Italians were knocked down by the clubs of the police and detectives.

The extent of McRae's injuries were not known. The knife went in deeply, however.
