The Baron, in spite of the decision with which he had spoken, still digested uneasily in his chair. "Look here," he said, "we don't want to be bad friends over this business."

"Friends!" she interrupted, scornfully. "Don't put yourself in the category of my friends, Baron Geldenstein. I have made use of you, and that's all."

The man glanced admiringly at the stately figure of the woman who towered above him in height, and whose perfectly-moulded features expressed a disdain that must have cut him to the quick.

His lips moved, though no sign came from them. "I'll humble you, my dear beauty!" This was what he was muttering to himself. "I'll bring you down from your pedestal! I'll make you crave from me that which you now scornfully refuse. He seemed to be taking pleasure in the situation, and it was as if his uneasy movements betokened not lack of self-confidence, but merely a consciousness of his unwonted surroundings.

"What are you muttering," she asked him. "If you have anything to say, speak out. I have no time to waste, for there are other matters I have to attend to, and I suppose you are returning to London tonight?"

"Will you recover the diamond, my lady?" he asked. "That is the main point."

"I shall recover it or prove you a swindler," she retorted; "one or the other."

"Good!" he replied. "You will bring me the Blue Diamond, for it is my own, or you will pay me the money that I have lent you upon it. I don't think, however, his thick lips extended into a smile—that you will be able to do the latter. You have allowed your affairs to get into a muddle, my dear lady, a shocking muddle, and it takes the time to get them straight for you. Yes, the diamond or the money, or—he leered into her face—"there is a third alternative if you care to consider it."

"What is that?" she asked, though she knew what he was about. "I say, she was quite aware of the Baron's admiration for herself, and of his desire to force himself into a society that would have none of him. He had already suggested a marriage between himself and Lady Erlene as a convenient business arrangement. He was wealthy, as he pointed out, and she needed wealth, both for the purpose of putting her tangled affairs in order and also to maintain her in the extravagant life to which she was accustomed. He would not be exacting, so he had affirmed, and would indulge her to the full extent of her wishes. He did not ask for love, but he had certain ambitions for himself, and Lady Erlene would gratify. She had mocked him every time he broached the subject; the very idea was too absurd for words, but at the same time Baron Geldenstein had been so useful to her that she had never dared to give him his final conge.

"What is your third alternative?" she asked, with curling lip.

"I think you know it," replied the man. "If you will do as I have already asked you there will be no further trouble. We won't bother our heads about the Blue Diamond, even if it is lost. I'll get you another and finer one. You have a fine stock of jewels already my lady, but I'll

NO WOMAN CAN BE STRONG AND HEALTHY UNLESS THE KIDNEYS ARE WELL

When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which they have to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble know not the misery and suffering which those afflicted endure.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles. They begin by healing the delicate membrane of the kidneys and thus make their action regular and natural.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages. Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely vegetable, and may be safely taken by young and old. Let Doan's Kidney Pills do for you what they have done for thousands of others, that is, cure you. Mrs. John Young, Harwood, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for some time and my back was so lame I could scarcely get around. After using two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I am completely cured. I find there is nothing like them for the cure of all kidney troubles."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

ON THE TENNIS COURT.

One of the smartest jumper models in wash fabrics this season is this tennis dress of Alice blue linen. It is in very truth a jumper, for the waist portion is slipped on over the head and drawn in about the waist with a tape run through a narrow casing. The cutout neck and the cape-like sleeves are finished with an embroidered buttonhole scallop in white, and the guimpe is simply tucked in yoke form and trimmed only at the top of the collar and on the cuffs with a narrow edge of Val. The skirt, which is ankle length, is pleated and stitched well below the hip line, from whence it flares gracefully outward. A narrow stitched belt, the pointed ends of which cross in front, finishes the waist line. Where a hat is worn nothing could be prettier than a rolled brown sailor of white linen with a broad crown bow to lawn. Golden brown kid Oxfords with low heel and extension sole are not alone the smartest footwear for the tennis court, but likewise the most practical and comfortable.

No chance of our being overheard," said the elder woman; and her voice had lost something of its harshness. "Perhaps we had better go to your room, Patience, for we are not likely to be disturbed there."

"Very well," Patience rose wearily and led the way upstairs. She wondered what more Lady Erlene could have to say to her. Had not her conditions been proposed and accepted?

A fire burnt in Patience's room, and before this she sank down. Lady Erlene stood beside her, gazing down, half pitifully, half resentfully, at the girl who was crouched together upon the hearthrug, stretching out her hands to the glow, trying to instil some warmth into her cold body.

There was a moment's pause, then Lady Erlene put her question bluntly and directly. "Were you lying, Patience, when you said you stole my diamond?"

The question fell upon Patience's ears like a blow. She drew herself together, and started once more to her feet. She stood trembling before the other woman.

"Lying?" she faltered. "Why do you ask me such a question? Why should I have lied? Is this a matter upon which it is likely that I should have spoken an untruth? Have you come here to torture me again, Lady Erlene? Surely all has been told that can be said. Your diamond was stolen, and it was found in my father's dressing bag. I admitted that I had put it there. What more do you expect me to say?"

She panted; her breath came painfully. She pointed to the door. "If it is for this that you have brought me here, let there be an end of it," she cried. "Go—leave me alone—leave me alone—leave me alone."

Lady Erlene stood unmoved. "Don't excite yourself," she said, coldly, "for that sort of thing doesn't affect me at all. It may surprise you to hear it, but nevertheless it is a fact, that I know part at least of your story to be a lie. It is a mystery to me why you should have lied, but you did. I did not contradict you because the lie you told suited my book exactly."

FLOUR IS HIGHER

Price May Go To $6.00 Here Before Fall.

A recent issue of a Boston paper states that the price of flour in that city jumped $1 a barrel in the month of May. The jobbing price is given as $6.25 with retail $7.25. In the course of the article the statement is made that a rise of one cent a bushel on wheat means about ten cents on a barrel of flour.

One of the local dealers was shown the article yesterday. Commenting on it he said that the profit of $1 between the retail and jobbing price is just about double what is made here. He also said that an advance of one cent a bushel on wheat would not mean ten cents on a barrel of flour on this side of the line. The millers say that five bushels of wheat will make a barrel of flour, he said, and that means only five cents.

Concerning the rise that has taken place in the price of flour here, he said that during May Ontarios went up forty cents and Manitobas from fifty to seventy cents a barrel. It is likely enough, he added, that Ontario flour will go higher, although no official announcement of any change is yet to hand. He would not be greatly surprised to see flour selling at $6 here before fall but it all depended on the price of wheat and the line. The millers factors that went into the determination of that, that it would be rash to speculate on it.

THE SHORE LINE LOSES ITS CASE

Railway Commission Finds That Rates Were Cut for W. E. Scully.

MacRae & Sinclair have received word from the board of railroad commissioners for Canada that judgment has been given against the New Brunswick Southern Railway.

The judgment states "that the board finds that the railway company permitted W. E. Scully to obtain transportation of goods at less than the required tolls then authorized and in force on the railway; that the railway company transported goods for Scully and that Scully obtained the transportation of goods at less than the regular tolls then authorized and in force on the railway; that the board deems it to be in the public interest to institute proceedings, under section 399, 401 or 402 of the railway act."

F. R. Taylor appeared for the New Brunswick Southern Railway, H. H. McLean, K. C., appeared for W. E. Scully, Dr. A. W. MacRae appeared for the complainant, James D. Scully. The sections under which the board authorizes proceedings provide as follows: 399.—Any company or any officer or agent thereof, or any person acting for or employed by such company, who, by means of false billing, false classification, false report of weight, or by any other device or means, knowingly and unjustly in favor of himself or of any person, or to the detriment of any person, obtains transportation for goods at less than the required tolls then authorized and in force on the railway on the company, shall for each offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars, and not less than one hundred dollars.

401.—Any person or company, or any officer or agent of any company (a) who shall offer, grant, or give or shall solicit or receive any rebate, concession, or discrimination in respect of the transportation of goods by the company, where, by any such traffic, the company, or any officer or agent thereof, or any person acting for or employed by such company, or any person, shall be induced to transport traffic, and thereby to discriminate unjustly in favor of any such person, company, officer or agent as against any other person or company; or

(b) for whom the company or any of its officers or agents shall by any such means be induced to transport traffic, and thereby to discriminate unjustly in favor of any such person, company, officer or agent as against any other person or company; or

(c) who shall aid or abet the company in any unjust discrimination, shall for each offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars and not less than one hundred dollars.

402.—If the company files with the board any tariff, and such tariff comes into force and is not disallowed by the board under this act, or if the company participates in any such tariff, any departure from the tolls in such tariff, while so in force, shall, as against such company, its officers, agents or employees be an offence under this act.

It is said there were some 300 or 400 infringements of the railway act. The full penalty is $1,000 for each offence but this judgment, of course, refers to one only.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation of a very handsome electric lamp, the gift being presented by Ald. Dancing was enjoyed and hours passed very pleasantly while Mr. and Mrs. Morrison were heartily congratulated and wished many more pleasant anniversaries.
