FANNING THE FLAMES

The address of Clarence Darrow, counsel for Haywood, to the jury in the great murder trial will be widely circulated by the extreme Socialist press, to arouse prejudice against all owners of property. It is strange that in the quiet precincts of a court of justice a lawyer should make such an incendiary appeal as the following:—

"But it is not for Bill Haywood I plead, or for his widow and his orphans. If he die then the thousand men who work in the mines will send their mite to support the widow and the little ones and a million people will send their message of sympathy. Don't think for a moment that if you kill Haywood you will kill the labor movement of the world or the hopes and the aspirations of the poor. Haywood can die, if die he must, but there are others who will live if he die, and they will come to take his place and carry the banner which he lets fall. I plead for the poor and the weak and the weary. The eyes of the world are on you twelve men of Idaho tonight and wherever the English tongue is spoken and throughout the civilized world they are wondering about your verdict. If you decree his death the spiders and the vultures of Wall Street will send up peans of praise and wherever men live who hate Haywood because he works for the poor you will receive your meed of praise."

"Bill" Haywood and his friends did or did not conspire with Orchard for the assassination of Governor Steunenberg and other men who were distasteful to the "inner circle" of the Federation of Miners. It is a question of evidence. The witnesses have been heard. On the evidence the jury must decide. There is no relation whatever between "the spiders and vultures of Wall Street" and the crimes committed. No living person "hates Haywood because he works for the poor." The "labor movement" is not on trial, and will not be killed. "The poor, the weak and the weary" are not associated with the murder of a well-meaning governor who only sought to keep his oath of office as the head of the state. The man Haywood did or did not conspire to have a most atrocious murder committed. That is the question before the jury.

But the Socialist press, whatever the verdict, will hail this man Darrow as one of the great exponents of the new evangel, and his rhetorical rant will be hailed as the veritable gospel of a new dispensation. But in fine contrast to his firebrand eloquence was that of Senator Borah in reply:—

"It is to the everlasting credit to the people of Idaho that, despite the fact that one of our most distinguished citizens was foully murdered, nowhere has there been an outcry for anything but justice. We are not here fighting organized labor. We are not here fighting the weak or the poor. Neither are we here to consent that organized labor shall be a shield to crime. This is not an industrial war, as my eloquent friend of the defence would have you believe. We are not arraying class against class, or one phase of society against another. This is not a battle of the rich against the poor, or the poor against the rich. We are here in the interest of law, of justice, of fairness."

TIMES WANT ADS

The Times has made an arrangement for the convenience of patrons of its Want Ad columns by which these advertisements may be handed in to any one of sixteen druggists in various portions of the city. Thus it will not be necessary to come all the way to the office to arrange for their insertion.

The new arrangement will doubtless be appreciated by Times readers. This paper, having the largest circulation of any evening paper east of Montreal, is an exceptionally good medium for Want Ads., and the large patronage it has continuously received is the best evidence that its value is recognized.

On the Want Ad. page will be found a list of druggists with whom advertisements may be left, and if received there in time they will appear in the Times of the same day.

THE GUGGENHEIMS

While the entry of the Guggenheims into the mining industry of the Yukon is regarded by some Canadians with doubt or disfavor, and while it has been found necessary for the government to take action to assert its claim to certain concessions, the Victoria Colonist regards the Guggenheim project in general as a matter of vast importance and likely to be of very substantial benefit to that region. We quote:

"Quite the most important announcement bearing on mining development in Western Canada for a decade is that to the effect that the Guggenheim interests have taken over the Treadgold concessions, the properties of the Northwest Hydraulic company, the Yukon Consolidated Companies and smaller concerns, besides absorbing all the placers in the Klondike watershed. This ushers in a new era in the history of the development of the Golden North. The Guggenheims are popularly reputed to be the largest mining operators in the world. They possess very extensive interests in all quarters of the globe, and have recently become very largely interested in this province, notably in Cariboo. Employing the best available expert talent, they very seldom make a false move; and it is of extreme significance that they have determined to invest very large sums of money in the Yukon. From recent reports that have appeared in the press outlining their plans in that section, it appears that they are about to install a vast system of waterways, for sluicing and hydraulicking, on the same scale which the federal government had in contemplation. It will be easily seen how very important is the announcement alluded to. We should not be surprised to learn that the determination of this firm to embark on this gigantic enterprise was due in no small degree to the circumstance that the district was favorably reported upon by the members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. It will be recalled that when a couple of years ago, the party mentioned returned from their trip to the Yukon, they were a unit in declaring their astonishment at the evidence of the enormous mineral wealth of the country. They declared that their most sanguine expectations had been surpassed by what they saw, and predicted a future for that district and British Columbia, which would eclipse the record of any other mining country in the world. The venture of the Guggenheims seems to be a most natural result of that report. Miners returning from the Klondike are sometimes inclined to regret the passing of the "good old days," when it was possible for the man with the pick and shovel to make "good pay" with little to aid him beyond his strong right arm, but it has for sometime been quite obvious that the day of the individual miner has pretty nearly gone by as far as Klondike district is concerned. That is not wholly a matter for regret. The working of the placer beds of the north on the huge scale proposed by the Guggenheims implies the employment of an army of men at high wages, and thus the prosperity of the country and its chief city, Dawson, would seem to be assured. The gambling element has been eliminated from the working of dangerous gravels, and the industry will be put upon a solid and permanent basis."

It has been suggested that on the occasion of the visit of the governor general the Canadian Club luncheon should be thrown open to those not members. As the club has over four hundred members, representing all classes, and as it is in no sense an exclusive club, no good citizen has any cause for complaint that he is debarred from any rightful privilege.

Moncton has an interesting complication in connection with its exhibition association. The directors are at variance over the apportionment of treasury stock and the citizens have voted down a proposed grant of $10,000 for next year's fair. An official asserts that the fair will, nevertheless, be held. Obviously, unless harmony and unity of action prevail the result would not prove satisfactory.

The interesting announcement is made that smoking is not permitterd at a new woman's club in London—also that it is the only one in the west end which has such a regulation. As the club is described as one of the most exclusive in London, the consumption of cigarettes will probably not be very largely reduced.

The British editors will, after all, tour the maritime provinces. These visits to Canada by representative journalists from the old country must prove of great benefit. Many Canadians do not know any more of large portions of their country than these visitors will know after a tour from ocean to ocean.

Canada's commercial agent in Japan reports that the trade between Canada and that country last year amounted to $2,477,686, an increase of about half a million over the trade of the preceding year. A further substantial increase this year is anticipated.

The Hon. W. J. Bowser, the new attorney general of British Columbia, is a Kent county man and studied law for a time in St. John. This province has several representatives in the legislature of the Pacific province. The lower province men make good in the west.

The Allans are now to place an order for two monster new steamers. The character of Atlantic steamship service has changed in the last few years. Bigger steamships mean larger wharves and deeper dredging. St. John should bear the fact in mind.

The man who appealed to the police to regain for him money which he had got under false pretences, and which in turn was stolen from him, exhibited a quality of nerve not even surpassed by the traditional newspaper reporter.

When Newfoundland politicians find a lull in international affairs they pick quarrels among themselves. It is rumored that Attorney General Morris, who has resigned, may form a new party.

It is unfortunate that a powerful dredge should be idle for six hours per day in St. John harbor when there is so much derdging to be done.

The successful floating of the steamer Senlac of the south shore service is a matter for congratulation.

AN EPITAPH OF POPE'S

The following epitaph written by Pope was highly commended by Johnson. It was written to keep alive the memory of Elizabeth Corbett, who sleeps now in St. Margaret's, Westminster:

Here rests a woman, good without pretense.
Blest with plain reason and with sober sense;
No conquest she but o'er herself desired;
No arts essayed, but not to be admired.
Passion and pride were to her soul unknown.
Convinced that virtue only is our own;
So unaffected, so composed a mind,
So firm, yet soft; so strong, yet so refined.
Heaven, as its purest gold, by tortures tried;
The saint sustained it, but the woman died.

UNHAPPY SPEECH.

"That speech was ill-advised," said a legislator, referring to a colleague's too outspoken address. "It reminds me of a speech that a widow made to her new husband on the honeymoon.

"'Oh,' she sighed, throwing herself in the man's arms, 'how happy poor, dear James would be if he could only know by what an agreeable gentleman he has been replaced.'"

"GENTS" TAKE NOTICE.

Willie—Pa, what's a gentleman?
Pa—Do you see me, Willie?
Willie—Yes, pa.
Pa— Well, I'm a gentleman.
Willie—Well, pa, what's a gent?
Pa—Do you recollect the young man who came to see your sister last week dressed in a silk hat, a sack coat, white tennis slippers, a celluloid collar and a red neck-tie?
Willie—yes, pa.
Pa—Well, that's a gent.

THE EXPLANATION.

"The word 'fidget,' explained the teacher, "means to move about." Now, children, I want one of you to step to the blackboard and write a sentence containing the word 'fidget.'"

Forth stepped the little Wise boy, who wrote: "This store will fidget June 1st."

'But who ever heard of a store fidgeting, Johnny?" asked the teacher.

"I don't know; but the sign on a store down town says that it will move about June first."

IRELAND'S NEW PARTY

(Montreal Witness.)

It seems that the most vital issue that can come before a people is about to be voted on at the polls in five or six constituencies in Ireland, namely, whether Ireland accepts the British allegiance at all, or whether she is in revolt against any union with the Empire whatsoever. The latter is the attitude of new Fenian organization called the Sinn Fein Society, which proposes to put a candidate in the field in each of the five open constituencies, possibly in a sixth, against the Nationalist candidates. Where the Nationalist candidates have stood in this matter in the past has been quite impossible to say. It has been commonly asserted on their behalf that they were not seeking separation, but only a radical measure of autonomy such as that enjoyed by the colonies. That this, or something less than this, is the real position of such men as Edward Blake and T. P. O'Connor no one can doubt. But as a rule the representatives of the party have been very careful to keep their recalcitrancy against British rule well to the front, and any tolerance of it, that might be in the back of their heads, well out of sight. Mr. Redmond, their leader, when here talked independence in general terms. The Nationalists will now be put in the embarassing position of having to accept or reject the Sinn Fein view, and to that view the people will have to vote yea or nay; and though we hear opinions as to what will be the result, no one can foresee what it will be. Whatever it is, it will tend to show what the actual heart of the people is.
