The Viper of Milan.

A ROMANCE OF LOMBARDY.
BY MARJORIE BOWEN.

The air was heavy. From the streets came the sound of tumult, noise, and hurried, the walls were manned.

"There is to be some fighting," murmured Valentino.

She shaded her eyes from the sun that, beating on the red brickwork of the palace, gave back a blinding glare.

"Oh, may God grant that victory may fall," she murmured, "where Count Conrad draws his sword!"

It was evening before Visconti returned, weary from his survey of his men, victorious after a fierce skirmish with some of Verona's mercenaries, led by Mastino's trusted Captain Rocca.

"The palace, falling grotesquely on the girdle that grinned either side the arched door, falling across the long rows of straight windows, and, for a second, on Valentino Visconti's pale face, looking eagerly below."

"Dogs of Verona!" cried Visconti, turning his wild eyes toward the prisoners. "They have cost us a wild hour!"

And he had been in the thick of it; his rich armor was dented, the embroidered surcoat torn to rags; Visconti's blood was up. In a light, even the Torment could not say he lacked anything save prudence.

Without alighting, he took from his head his ponderous helmet with the viper crest, and gave it to his page.

"We have given Rocca a taste of our quality!" he laughed, and pulled his gauntlets off. "Where is De Lana?"

"I am here, lord," said Giannotto.

He stood at the Duke's saddle, looking around him in confusion.

"What news, Giannotto?" cried Visconti. "Thy pallid face seems too ready to welcome me. Let me dismount."

"Hear the first," entreated the secretary, "before you dismount—before anything—lord!"

"Quick with thy news then—stand back, De Lana, I must hear this rogue."

Giannotto drew closer.

"The Duke, at noon today, Rinalta, the Tuscan captain, rode in. While Rocca was engaging you, some of the mercenaries forced one of the gates, and before they could be driven back, a house was broken into, some prisoners made."

"The Duke fixed his widening eyes upon the speaker, and Giannotto shrank."

"What gate?" he asked. "What house? What prisoners?"

"The western gate, lord, and Agnolo Vistamin's house!"

"With a sound of fury Visconti struck at his secretary violently, with the ends of his bridle."

"And I was not told before!"

"It was held too small a fray, lord," said the secretary. "could I tell you Lady Valentine one gate was more to you than another? I besought her to send to you—I hesitated then—all could I tell them why?"

Even as he spoke De Lana rode up resolutely.

"More men are needed at the western gate," he said; "the Germans have returned. I will lead them."

"No!" cried Visconti. "I, De Lana."

"The soldier looked surprised."

"You, lord? There is no need—"

"It is my will," Visconti answered fiercely. "At once, to the western gate!"

Don't Condemn Yourself to Bright's Disease

TAKE GIN PILLS NOW

Bright's Disease claims its thousands yearly solely because people won't heed nature's warnings.

Pain in the back and constant headaches mean Kidney Trouble. Swollen hands and ankles, and pain in the joints, mean Kidney Trouble. Frequent desire to urinate—urine hot and scalding—mean Kidney Trouble. Neglecting sick kidneys means Bright's Disease.

If you know your kidneys are affected—or if you suspect they are affected—give them the help they need—GIN PILLS. Taking GIN PILLS regularly soothes the irritated, inflamed membranes—gives to the kidneys new strength—corrects every kidney and bladder trouble.

NAPANEE, MAY 13, 1906.

I received the sample box of GIN PILLS and was greatly benefited by them. My kidneys were in such bad condition I could not lift or stoop without great pain. In fact, they pained me nearly all the time. I have taken three boxes, working all the time at heavy work on the railroad, and did not lose a day.

And they are sold on a positive guarantee that they will cure you or money refunded. Put them to the test with the understanding that you must be cured or you get your money back.

So sure are we that GIN PILLS are just what you need in your own case, that we will send you a free sample to try. Write, mentioning this paper, to the Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg.

BRODERIE ANGLAISE RESUMES ITS SUMMERTIME POPULARITY.

Lovers of eyelid embroidery, or broderie Anglaise, as our French cousins term it, will note with satisfaction the return of this type of elaboration in many of the most fetching gowns for the summer. Linnen of a fine, close weave takes this form of embroidery better than any other wash fabric, and the effects which can be worked out with it are numerous. In the jumper frock of the picture the front of the circular top skirt is embroidered in a very simple and artistic design, the fronts of the jumper or overwaist carrying this same form of decoration. These rows of wide Irish crochet insertions are set in the wide circular dounce above a deep hem, and the waist shows lengthwise and crosswise bandings of this same lace, which also forms the little skeleton sleeves and belt. The under blouse is of dainty white batiste, with a yoke of embroidery applique. With this costume is worn a rose trimmed lingerie sailor of eyelid embroidery and lace frills.

comes out best at time of need, my lord," he said defiantly. "Try me in it in a fight."

Della Scala's glance softened; he laid his hand on the boy's shoulder gently.

"Thou art a d'Este and my brother, Vincenzo, I do not fear thy behavior in battle, only learn the harder part—to bear thyself while waiting."

Vincenzo was melted, but not caring to show it before Conrad, left the tent without reply.

"He hath the makings of a soldier in all his willfulness. I pray you pardon his present idleness, my lord, and hold me as the cause," said Conrad. "I should have roused him sooner."

Mastino glanced around. It was the first time he had entered the German's abode, and the lavishness of its appointments were not to his taste.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This little nerve—the cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—the cause of all this painful, palpitating, aching heart distress, Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone more to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed.

CURLING

J. FRED SHAW, PRESIDENT.

The annual meeting of the Thistle Curling Club was held last evening in the club building, with President Gregory in the chair. J. Fred Shaw was elected president for 1907-08; J. C. Chesley, vice-president; Francis F. Burpee, secretary; D. McClelland, treasurer; Rev. W. O. Raymond, chaplain.

A resume of the season's play was given and it was shown that the Thistles had won fourteen matches without a single defeat. Included were victories which brought to them the Raymond cup from the St. Andrew's club of this city, the Montreal bouspiel cup won in Montreal, and the McLeelan cup, captured from New Glasgow and successfully defended against St. Stephen and Moncton.

The Klondike medal went to A. P. Patterson; the Milligan points medal and the gold curling stone, presented by President Gregory, to John S. Malcolm, while the Holly pin went to A. D. Malcolm (skip), and his men, H. G. Barnes, H. H. McLeelan and C. A. Rutherford.

TRAGEDY OF THE WHITE SOX TRIP SOUTH.

Among the cheering incidents of the trip to the White Sox from San Antonio to New Orleans were the following items, which really came under the head of "too numerous to mention":

10 p. m.—Engine threw left hind drive wheel.

10.15 p. m.—Damage repaired by robbing a belated farmer of left hind wheel of his wagon. Train ch-chus merrily on its way.

10.30 p. m.—Cylinder head blew out, but no delay, as a picture of Nick Altrock was slapped over the hole. It was equal to the pressure.

10.45 p. m.—Engine ran out of oil. Brakeman was dispatched to nearest town and brought back some pork rind with a delay of only two hours.

11 p. m.—Train ran by mistake onto a branch line. Error discovered after going twenty miles and promptly rectified.

11.15 p. m.—Entire train jumped track and ran for 100 miles over Texas prairies before passengers noticed it. It only then came to their attention while crossing a bridge. It was a short bridge, however, and no kick was made.

1 a. m.—Tender ran dry of water and steam necessitated. Bucket brigade was promptly thrown out to nearest creek and the deficiency supplied in forty-five minutes.

1.45 a. m.—Engineer stopped train to josh a milkmaid in western Louisiana. Passengers were so glad that any man on the train could enjoy himself that they stood for the delay.

2.15 a. m.—Party of passengers went forward to ask engineer why he stopped train when nearing a town. Engineer replied that he didn't have enough steam to whistle and propel the train at the same time.

3 a. m.—A reporter fell asleep. Train was stopped so as not to disturb his slumber.

3.15 a. m.—Coupling pin broke at top of grade. Forward part of train ran 150 miles forward; rear cars backed up 100 miles. Accident promptly remedied when discovered. For lack of a coupling pin Professor Bardell secured a collar and elbow on the rear car of the first half of the train and a half-Nelson on the forward car of the rear half and the party proceeded merrily on its way, stopping only now and then to kid the professor.

3.30 a. m.—Supply of coal was exhausted and train was halted until sun came out with enough heat to warm up the boiler.
