P. E. ISLAND NEWS

F. G. Spencer, has completed arrangements whereby he has secured the Charlottetown Opera House for a continuous moving picture entertainment, with the exception of the nights that the Opera House has already been booked. This will be one of a circuit of five places where Mr. Spencer will give similar entertainments.

The Forester courts in Summerside are making preparations for the annual meeting of the high court, I. O. F. which meets on September 5. Dr. Millman, supreme physician, Toronto, Dr. Purdy, Moncton; E. J. Todd, St. John, and other visitors from New Brunswick are expected to be present.

Master Laurence MacLaren, son of Customs Inspector MacLaren, of St. John, while on a visit to Charlottetown treated a large number of citizens with a delightful concert of bagpipe music on Monday evening of last week. He was dressed in full Highland costume. Prior to his departure Thursday morning he was presented with a handsome fountain pen. Judge McLeod made the presentation, to which the youthful piper replied in fitting terms.

Old pressed hay is worth $16 per ton, and is scarce at that. Hay will probably be a fair price this fall. We understand that speculators are already going through the country trying to secure some cheap lots from the farmers. The hay crop in Kings and Queens counties was very short but Prince County farmers will probably have a surplus.

The weather is interfering somewhat with the ripening of the crops, but no material damage has yet been done. Several farmers have cut barley. It is an excellent crop. If the weather is fine a good deal of cutting of oats will have commenced in a week. Old oats are quoted at 50 cents. They are pretty well cleaned up.

In order to encourage the young men of this province to take an agricultural education, the local department of agriculture has decided to offer a number of scholarships in connection with the Truro Agricultural College and with the McDonald agricultural institute at Ste. Anne de Bellvue. It has not been definitely decided how many scholarships will be available nor has the value been fixed, but they will undoubtedly be of substantial assistance in enabling many young men to obtain a splendid agricultural education. The scholarships will be almost immediatly available and applications should be made without delay to S E Reid, Commissioner of Agriculture, Charlottetown.

ATLANTA, Ga., September 3—A special from Jacksonville, Fla., says Edward Winner, a clerk at the Duval Hotel and Misses Lilian and Bertha Ballum, employed at the hotel, were drowned while enjoying a moonlight sail on St. John's river. The launch capsized. The two girls caught Winner and pulled him with them under the water.

Take Life Smilingly.

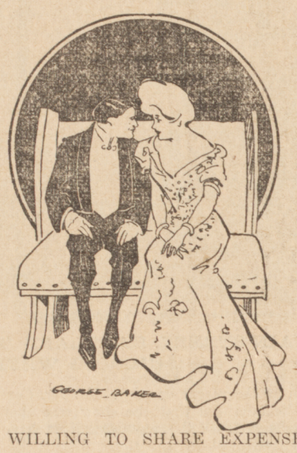

By GEORGE O. BAKER.

Mrs. Fuller Boooze—Your condition last night surprised me.

Mr. Fuller Boooze—I was perfectly sober, my dear.

Mrs. Fuller Boooze—I know. That is what surprised me.

WILLING TO SHARE EXPENSES.

Geraldine—I want you to understand before I marry you that I believe in the equality of the sexes.

Gerald—All right, I was intending to give the minister ten dollars, so you'd better hand over five.

HITTING BACK.

Mrs. Diggs—I am a true daughter of Eve.

Mrs. Wigs—I'd like to know in what way? You can neither cook nor wash dishes.

Mrs. Digs—Neither could Eve.

IT WOULD HAVE BEEN GUARDED.

Myrtle—There is some controversy as to the kind of corner-stone for the girls' college.

Charles—Why don't they use a brick of ice cream?

ETIQUETTE OF CALLING.

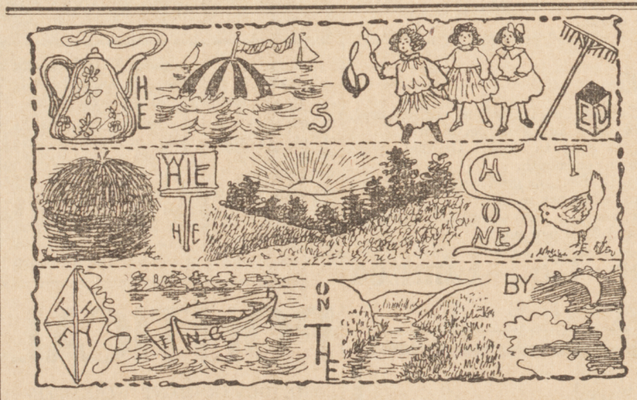

Mrs. De Swell—Pray, don't leave so hastily.

Mrs. De Airs—Why, my deah, I observe it's now five minutes aftah foah, and I came at foah prompt. The time passed so pleasantly that I didn't know how long I was staying.

Mrs. Ascum (chairman of the Charity committee)—Can you suggest some new charitable scheme we can take up?

Mr. Kidder—What's the matter with a fund to supply free ice to the Eskimos?

Respectfully Declined.

The mistress of the mansion was looking perturbed and anxious, but she knew that she must go through with it, and bracing up she finally started for the kitchen. There was a time when she used to ring the bell for the lady of the kitchen to appear before her, but the bell had long since been removed.

"Excuse me, Mary, I have a word with you."

"Excuse me, Mary," she said as she entered the kitchen, "but I have a word with you."

"Then be quick about it, for I have three calls to make this afternoon."

"My husband and I have received a dinner invitation for one night next week."

"You are seeing too much society, ma'am, but what night is it?"

"Next Thursday night, and I thought if——"

"That is my day and evening out."

"I know, but I came to ask you if——"

"Certainly not. It's got to be high times if the cook must stay home and the mistress go out on a Thursday. You will remain at home, of course, and answer that the invitation is respectfully declined."

"But, Mary, it may never happen so again, and it will be a great favor if you will remain home and sit in the parlor and play the piano and receive any company that calls."

"Say no more, ma'am. I cannot peril my reputation as a lady by sitting in your parlor alone of an evening, and if you had my good at heart you wouldn't ask it. As you won't need the carriage Thursday night would you mind telling Thomas to bring it around for me at sharp eight?"

JOE KERR.

BIG SPECIAL PICTURE

Torpedo Attack on H. M. S. "Dreadnaught"

A naval battle showing the greatest floating fighting equipment in the world—the home defence fleet of England. Pictures take the onlooker from Portsmouth to the open sea, shows the submarines in their ugliest fighting mood, the terrible destroyers and torpedo boats in action. Torpedoes launched, explode and are caught in the great iron network. Turret guns on "Dreadnaught" brought into play. Surging seas and hurrying warships. A thrilling and wonderful piece of photographic reproduction.
