McKEOWN AND LOWELL ARE THE CHOICE IN THE COUNTY

Premier Robinson Speaking at County Convention Hints That Elections May Come Soon.

An outstanding feature of the St. John county local government convention held in Berryman's hall last evening, was a hint from Premier Robinson that the elections would be held soon. Another was a perhaps unguarded announcement by F. M. Cochran, of St. Martins, who presided, that with the help of the federal government, including the assistance of Hon. Mr. Pugsley and Hon. H. R. Emmerson, the local government would doubtless be sustained. The convention, as was expected, nominated Hon. H. A. McKeown, M. P. P., and James Lowell, M. P. P., as the candidates.

The following were the delegates and substitutes from the parishes:

Lancaster—Michael F. Kane, John W. Long, Timothy Hooley, W. Fred Barnhill, James Ready, Dr. M. Macfarland, William C. McKinnon, Frank Allingham, William Evans, Alexander Donaldson, Cornelius Collin, Amador Anderson, George H. Gilbraith, William Ewart, jr.

Substitutes—David Keefe, Patrick Gleason, Charles Masson, John T. O'Brien, John Robinshaw, Edward Long.

Musquash—Charles Spinney, John Clark.

Substitute—William Cooper.

St. Martins—S. J. Shanklin, Fred M. Cochran, Robert Connely, R. W. Skillen, Mr. Walsh.

Substitutes—James Rourke, John Howard, Patrick Nugent.

Simonds—J. M. Donovan, Frederick Adams, Martin Dolan, John McGuire, John Sherwood, Alexander Johnston, Frank Rafferty, Edward Boyd.

Substitutes—Lawrence Donovan, Samuel Poole, James Crozier, Frank V. Hamm.

On motion of James Ready, Councillor F. M. Cochran was elected chairman. Jos. O'Brien acted as secretary. Hon. Mr. McKeown and Mr. Lowell were nominated by J. W. Long and as no other names were put forward they were declared elected. Speechmaking followed. Brief congratulatory addresses were delivered by Mr. Long and Timothy Hooley. While the latter was speaking the premier and the candidates entered the room and were received with applause.

The chairman then announced to the candidates the result of the convention, saying he had much pleasure in extending to them the nomination for St. John county.

Mr. Lowell, after referring to his election three years ago and to the pleasure he felt at having Hon. Mr. McKeown as a colleague, proceeded to a criticism of the platform of the leader of the opposition. He contended that after ten years Mr. Hazen had found a platform which proved to be the policy of the government in almost every particular. He took up the various planks of the platform in some detail, making special reference to the repeal of the highway act and the proposal to vest the authority in the county councils. He claimed that it was largly the fault of the municipalities that the present act was passed, as they did not come forward and object to it when before the legislature.

With regard to Mr. Hazen's platform Mr. Lowell said, except for a few words, it had his hearty support but it did not go far enough. No mention was made of bridges or the development of the coal fields and mineral wealth of the province. In concluding he paid a warm tribute to Mr. McKeown.

The chairman then called on Mr. McKeown and expressed the opinion that with the help of the federal government, including the assistance of Hon. William Pugsley and Mr. Emmerson, there was no shadow of doubt as to the local administration being sustained.

Mr. McKeown, in thanking the convention, said that as a seat in the county had been offered him when politically homeless, and as he had been again approached by a large number of friends, he would have been ungrateful if he had given them the cold shoulder. He had consented to nomination only on the condition that the feeling was unanimous.

After speaking of Mr. Lowell in complimentary terms, Mr. McKeown went on to refer to Mr. Hazen's policy on the highway act. Mr. Hazen's platform, he said, would mean taking the first step to placing the whole burden for maintenance and support of the highways on the municipalities. At present the municipalities contributed only a certain amount and the government provided the rest. Under Mr. Hazen's policy this state of things would be revised.

Premier Robinson complimented the convention on their choice of candidates, and went on to speak of the recent banquet to Mr. Hazen. He noticed, he said, that G. W. Fowler asked "Who is Mr. Robinson?" He could assure them that, though he might not be quite as well known as Mr. Fowler, yet he was old fashioned enough not to desire to achieve some kinds of notoriety. He hoped they would all get to know him better.

With regard to the highway act it would be repealed and, not being wedded to any line of policy, an effort would be made to meet the wishes of the people as far as possible. Speaking of the next general election, the premier said he did not know that he could tell them how soon it would be, but this much he could tell them, that it would not be very long. He expressed his confidence in the good sense of the people not to believe in the system of misrepresentation, mis-statement and slander indulged in by the opposition, but to sustain the government by as large a majority as in the past.

E. H. McAlpine, in the course of a speech, characterized Mr. Hazen as a windbag, and declared he had doubled the provincial debt on the platform and uttered a wilful, malicious lie. The name of Hazen, he said, was rank poison to every Liberal in the province, yet he had the cheek to ask for their support.

Dr. M. L. Macfarland, of Fairville, was called upon and briefly replied. He expressed his satisfaction at the nominations and urged the convention and the county to vote for both candidates.

Robert Connely and Patrick Gleeson also spoke in terms complimentary to the candidates.

At the close the delegates were introduced to the premier, and the meeting broke up with cheers for the King, the candidates and the chairman.

ONE BRIGHT SPOT

Forecast of Security Prices in 1907, Compared With That of the Last Great Panic.

The course of Stock Exchange prices during the present week has made it plain that the quotations of the real crisis of Wall Street's panic, five-and-a-half weeks ago, foreshadowed the worst that was to befall us. London dispatches, since the recovery of the fortnight past began, have intimated that our markets were not acting reasonably—that what prices ought to do, was to decline in response to the growing realization of a genuine industrial reaction. In such criticism, however, Lombard Street merely provided another evidence of its failure to grasp the American situation. Not only so, but it ignored a fundamental principle of Stock Exchange markets—the principle which raises them to a higher dignity that the mere recording of speculative ventures—that they fore-shadow the financial future, far in advance of the plain man's personal observation.

This is only to say that the low prices of October 24 were a witness to the worst that could be expected, not in a day or two after that panic demonstration, but in the longer future. Exactly the same thing happened on the July panic day of 1893, some weeks before the outside community began to talk hard times. But the comparison is interesting for other reasons. Taking the prices of these two panic days, attention may again be called to the fact that in 1893, with a great number of important railways, they foreshadowed bankruptcy, whereas in 1907 they make no alarming prophecy, so far as regards the properties themselves, than possibly lower dividends.

The prediction of 1893 was expressed by the price of 15 1-4 for Union Pacific, 3 3-4 for Northern Pacific, 12 1-8 for Atchison, and 12 for Reading. Of these four stocks, which in many ways are typical, the first went no lower than par in last October's crisis, the second touched 100 1-2 as a minimum, the third 66 3-8, and the fourth 70 1-2. The rest of the market, with perhaps less notable comparisons, has spoken with similar emphasis. A price of par may possibly mean something else than maintenance of 7 per cent. annual dividends, not to mention 10; the other quotations may have a similar significance; but one will have to search with pains on the stock list of the panic day to find such plain forecast of insolvency as was thrust on the public's sight fourteen years ago.

The inference is plain enough. The insolvencies which overtook one-fourth the country's railway capital in 1894, and the three years' struggle over assessment and reorganization, are not ahead of us today.

The private car Morse, with the general officers of the Western Union Company, left by the I. C. R. at 11.20 last night for North Sydney. B. Brooks, the general superintendent, when asked last evening in reference to the visit, repeated his assertion that it was merely one of inspection and had no significance. He said he had found everything here perfectly satisfactory and said there would be no changes in the local staff.
