Sunset Ranch

(Conclusion.)

Sunset station is merely a pine packing box turned sideways, with a telegraph desk inside, and a tank of drinking water on the shady corner. On the north side of the tracks were drawn up a couple of what Sunset called conveyances. One was a buckboard, the other was an automobile, large, deep, bright red, and "mighty comfy," as Nell Wickes said when she caught sight of it.

"I like local color," she said, "but not applied in chunks. I'll take mine as an impressionistic background to the picture and ride in the 'bubble'."

McGowan was talking to the telegraph operator, dictating a series of messages and talking home chat. His sister tucked herself comfortably into one of the back seats of the automobile and proceeded to wrap her head up in a six-yard veil of pale-green chiffon.

Over near the buckboard stood a couple of figures, quiet, immovable, speechless. One was short and slope-shouldered, with a round, brick-colored face and inquiring eyes of childlike blue. The other was tall, Lady Scarsdale, standing beside the red automobile, tried to get a more definite impression of him.

As she had stepped from the train ignoring the outstretched arms of McGowan, and the hand of the porter, she had seen only one object in Sunset, this tall figure in khaki-colored garb, his cream-colored sombrero pulled low over his eyes, and those eyes looking steadily at her.

That was absolutely all she could tell of him, and yet, in that second of time, that instant when she had stood poised on the car steps and met his gaze full, glance for glance, the inner soul, spirit, consciousness, or whatever one might call it, was awakened for the first time in her life in Lady Scarsdale.

When McGowan had finished with the telegraph operator, and had swung over to the two figures and gripped them by the hands, Isabel took her place beside Mrs. Danforth Wickes.

"Hello, Cherry!" called that lady gayly. "Didn't know me in this outfit, did you? Come over here."

The short figure obeyed with alacrity. Vaguely Lady Scarsdale was glad the tall one had not responded. She leaned back in the red leather seat and smiled at Mr. Cherry Barnes.

"The Colonel looks something great, don't he?" she said. "Got her smiling, was up last night, too. Couple of weeks in the range will put a lather of tan on him that'll make him show up like a sun enough Rapahoe buck."

"Oh, Tom's looking fine," retorted Mrs. Wickes fervently, with a little side glance at the silent, graceful form beside her. "He's pretty happy these days."

And Cherry "tumbled," and wondered what under the light of heaven that slim, sweet girl saw in big, rough Tom McGowan.

"Lady Scarsdale is her name," she said, after the red automobile had rolled down the smooth, dusty stretch of road that led over the country toward the sunset ranch. "One of your folks, I guess, Harry."

Harry Kincaid did not answer. Standing with his feet apart, his hands deep in his pockets, he wondered what freak of fate had brought the widow, Lady Scarsdale across the sea, and half a world around, to cross his destiny. Lady Scarsdale, the name rang in his ears with mockery. That slender, dreamy-eyed girl, Lady Scarsdale. He shut his teeth grimly, his eyelids narrowing as he thought of an old, spare figure whom the world had called Lord Scarsdale. And that girl had been his wife.

"All those high society English ladies have got that yellow hair, and the peach blow, ain't they? Climate, I guess."

"She is not English," said Kincaid. "She's an American, from Wyoming."

Cherry chuckled.

"Did you get that beam of sunlight from Tom's radiating smile?" he asked. "Reckon he believes in hanging on to home products."

FOR OPERA MATINEE.

Opera, matinee and evening opera are two different things, so far as the dressing of society is concerned. Nevertheless, one sees some very interesting novelties at these daytime performances which are very much worth while from a fashion viewpoint. For instance, the pictured coat and muff of lace and chinchilla, brought over from Paris especially for the opera season by a young society matron whose fancy for horses and taste in clothes is well known. The body of the coat is of white silk applique over white satin and trimming this is a pointed stole collar of chinchilla with pendant cord ornaments in white. A wide fur band finishes the bottom of the coat and the Japanese sleeves. The muff is of the applique banded and draped with the chinchilla.

HAD A STAB-LIKE PAIN THROUGH THE HEART.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS CURED HER AND SAVED HER LIFE.

There is no one, we imagine, sets about deliberately to do injury to the heart, yet in the excitement and excesses of present-day living, the nervous system is done violence to, and the heart and nerves being so intimately bound up with one another, disorganization of the one means disease and disorder of the other.

When you find your heart the least bit out of rhythm, your nerves unbalanced, don't wait until you are prostrated on a bed of sickness. Take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They'll put you in such condition you'll never know you have a heart, make your brain clear and active, your nerves strong, your blood rich and pure, and your whole being thrill with a new life.

Mrs. John C. Yensen, Little Rock, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with a stab-like pain through my heart. I tried many remedies but they seemed to do me more harm than good. I was advised by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using two boxes I was completely cured. I cannot praise them enough for the world of good they did me for I believe they saved my life."

ried grew heavier, it seemed, with every move he covered.

She was sitting at the base of a big, blasted pine on Devil's Peak when he found her. Near by grazed the black pony McGowan had picked for her. In her riding suit, with its short ankle-length skirt, and loose, pongee waist, she looked younger, and more girlish than ever. As Kincaid took her in his arms, she leaned back.

"I'm never going back any more," she whispered.

"We'll have to sweetheart, sometimes," he said. "For your sake, I've told Tom that I will leave the ranch. It had to be, you know. He understood. But listen to me. I am not rich—"

She placed her hand over his lips imperatively.

"I won't listen," she exclaimed. "There are other places besides the Sunset that we can go to aren't there? I don't want you to be rich, I only want to be with you, somewhere, anywhere."

"Do you think it's fair? Do you think I have a right to ask?"

She laughed and closed her eyes. Kincaid kissed her and the letter in his pocket felt less weighty.

Lying at her feet under the old, blackened pine, he handed her the envelope later and watched her read what it contained. It was a brief business letter, from the late Lord Scarsdale's barristers in London and merely notified Mr. Henry Kincaid of the death of his father's cousin in some months previous, and of their difficulty in locating the whereabouts of the said Mr. Henry Kincaid. They trusted he would arrive in England shortly as the estate was in a somewhat tangled condition and required Lord Scarsdale's personal direction.

Isabel let the letter fall to the ground and looked at the tanned, strong, young face of the man beside her. She had known vaguely that her husband's heir was a distant kinsman, and that no trace had been found of him, but that fate should have led her across an ocean and a continent to the place where he was, seemed inscrutable.

"You know sweetheart, I couldn't help it," laughed Kincaid. "You'll still be Lady Scarsdale, my lady."

"But not there, Harry, not over there she pleaded, and looking out across the range, purple and gold in the sunset glow, the new Lord Scarsdale solemnly promised Lady Bell that they two would found a Wyoming dynasty of the barony of Whittford.

JAPANESE EXPOSITION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Japanese embassy was advised today that the National Exposition of 1912 at Tokyo would be held between April 1 and October 31, thus covering both the chrysanthemum and cherry blossom seasons. The exposition is designed to be as international as possible, and exhibits from foreign governments and peoples are desired. The national budget includes an appropriation of $5,000,000 for the purpose, and with the appropriations expected to be made in the local Tokyo and other budgets, the aggregate appropriations will probably reach $10,000,000. The grounds will embrace 250 acres, of which about thirty acres will be covered by buildings.

PRESSMEN IN COURT

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—Patrick McMillen and George L. Berry national officers of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, were in Federal Judge Thompson's court yesterday, to answer charges of contempt preferred against them by attorneys representing the Typothetae, an organization of employing printers. It is asserted Berry and McMillen disregarded the injunction ordering them to desist from any manner of provoking or declaring a strike of union printers or pressmen against members of the Typothetae by recently sending out thousands of circulars ordering members of the printing pressmen and assistant union to strike on Nov. 18, unless their employers, members of the Typothetae, grant them the eight hour day from Nov. 18. Attorneys for the union printers said that the circulars were intended merely to secure an expression from members of the union as to whether the union shall have an eight hour day as one of its principles. Judge Thompson, after hearing arguments on the motion to hold in contempt, stated that as there was a disagreement and pleadings as to the facts of the original case he would reserve his decision on the motion for contempt until after he had heard the original case.

A CANADIAN MAYORESS

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 12.—W. L. Hepton, the new lord mayor for the city of Leeds, England, who has just been elected by acclamation, is a gentleman well known in Canada, where he has travelled extensively in the interests of his firm, Messrs. Hepton Bros. Ltd. He is also well known in Muskoka, being the owner of Loon Island, on which he has erected one of the best summer houses in the district. He is the owner of the fast steam yacht, the Willoudee. Mr. and Mrs. Hepton and family spend from two to three months almost every summer at their Muskoka home. Mr. Hepton is also a member of the Tourist Fishing and Hunting Club of Quebec, which shows that he takes great interest in Canadian affairs. Naturally so, as he has a Canadian wife born in St. Catharines, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLaren, Bleak House. Many friends in Canada will extend congratulations to the new Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Leeds.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments. The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, cleanses the system, and discharges, while the Restorative, assesses nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, brings about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—along with the "Night Cure." For positive local help, use as well.

673 DEER SHIPPED

BANGOR, Nov. 13.—The October statement for game shipments over the Bangor & Aroostook railroad shows that 673 deer, 54 moose and 17 bears were handled, or only about 80 per cent. of last year's total on deer and moose, when the figures were 838 deer and 65 moose.

Greenville leads the list for deer with 191, a falling off of 15 from last year; Norcross leads with 15 moose, and Patten is second on general shipments with 65 deer and 7 moose.
