

NEW YORK SENDS NEW MODEL HATS

If you covet the distinction of wearing one of New York's Model Hats, designed and made in New York by New York experts, we can gratify your wish. They bring with them a revelation of the very newest inspiration in hatmaking and stands for very pronounced exclusiveness. They are made of best quality Ottoman and Bengaline Silk, best quality Satin, best quality Silk Velvet and Ottoman Silk Combined, and best quality French Fur Felt Black and all colors.

Wear a Marr Hat and you will know you have what's correct.

Mail orders receive careful attention. We will prepay express charges to any part of Canada when the money accompanies the order.

Marr Millinery Co.

MONCTON AND ST. JOHN

THE WHEEL O' FORTUNE

By LOUIS TRACY

Author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," "The Captain of the Kansas," etc.

(Copyright, 1908, McLeod & Allen, Toronto)

(Continued.)

The nature of the arrangements, the prudential supply of clothing, rather took Dick's breath away. Even the initials, "R. K.", were painted on the trunks and stiched on to the canvas.

"My employer seems to have done things pretty thoroughly," he could not help saying.

The shopman dug a compliment out of the remark.

"Our house has a reputation to maintain," he answered, "and Mr. Fenshawe is one of our best and oldest customers."

There was no mention of Count von Kerber, which added a ripple to the wave of astonishment in Royson's breast. He took the baggage to Charing Cross in a cab, and deposited it there. Meanwhile, he learned from a further scrutiny of the list that his own few belongings were hardly wanted. He had not been so well equipped since he left Heidelberg to rush to his mother's death-bed. Nevertheless, having already gathered in a valise some books, photographs, letters, and other odds and ends, he went to Brighton to obtain them.

While giving a farewell glance around his dingy room, an old envelope, thrown aside overnight, reminded him of a half-formed idea, and he appealed to him strongly now that he knew his port of departure.

So he wrote a short letter:

"Dear Mr. Forbes:

"You were kind to me four years ago, as kind as Sir Henry Royson would permit you to be toward one who had wilfully insulted him. My feelings with regard to him have undergone no change. I may be dead, for all I know, or care. But you, I suppose, are still the trusted solicitor of the Cuddesham estate, and Sir Henry Royson, if alive, may have remained unmarried. In that event, I am heir to a barren title, and it may save you some trouble if I inform you that I am leaving England. For reasons of no consequence, I am passing under the name of Richard King. If I return, or settle down in some other land, I will write you, say, after the lapse of a year. Please regard this note as strictly private; and do not interpret it as foreshadowing any attempt on my part to arrive at a reconciliation with Sir Henry Royson."

"The nature of the arrangements, the prudential supply of clothing, rather took Dick's breath away. Even the initials, "R. K.", were painted on the trunks and stiched on to the canvas.

"My employer seems to have done things pretty thoroughly," he could not help saying.

The shopman dug a compliment out of the remark.

"Our house has a reputation to maintain," he answered, "and Mr. Fenshawe is one of our best and oldest customers."

There was no mention of Count von Kerber, which added a ripple to the wave of astonishment in Royson's breast. He took the baggage to Charing Cross in a cab, and deposited it there. Meanwhile, he learned from a further scrutiny of the list that his own few belongings were hardly wanted. He had not been so well equipped since he left Heidelberg to rush to his mother's death-bed. Nevertheless, having already gathered in a valise some books, photographs, letters, and other odds and ends, he went to Brighton to obtain them.

While giving a farewell glance around his dingy room, an old envelope, thrown aside overnight, reminded him of a half-formed idea, and he appealed to him strongly now that he knew his port of departure.

So he wrote a short letter:

"Dear Mr. Forbes:

"You were kind to me four years ago, as kind as Sir Henry Royson would permit you to be toward one who had wilfully insulted him. My feelings with regard to him have undergone no change. I may be dead, for all I know, or care. But you, I suppose, are still the trusted solicitor of the Cuddesham estate, and Sir Henry Royson, if alive, may have remained unmarried. In that event, I am heir to a barren title, and it may save you some trouble if I inform you that I am leaving England. For reasons of no consequence, I am passing under the name of Richard King. If I return, or settle down in some other land, I will write you, say, after the lapse of a year. Please regard this note as strictly private; and do not interpret it as foreshadowing any attempt on my part to arrive at a reconciliation with Sir Henry Royson."

"The nature of the arrangements, the prudential supply of clothing, rather took Dick's breath away. Even the initials, "R. K.", were painted on the trunks and stiched on to the canvas.

"My employer seems to have done things pretty thoroughly," he could not help saying.

The shopman dug a compliment out of the remark.

"Our house has a reputation to maintain," he answered, "and Mr. Fenshawe is one of our best and oldest customers."

There was no mention of Count von Kerber, which added a ripple to the wave of astonishment in Royson's breast. He took the baggage to Charing Cross in a cab, and deposited it there. Meanwhile, he learned from a further scrutiny of the list that his own few belongings were hardly wanted. He had not been so well equipped since he left Heidelberg to rush to his mother's death-bed. Nevertheless, having already gathered in a valise some books, photographs, letters, and other odds and ends, he went to Brighton to obtain them.

While giving a farewell glance around his dingy room, an old envelope, thrown aside overnight, reminded him of a half-formed idea, and he appealed to him strongly now that he knew his port of departure.

So he wrote a short letter:

"Dear Mr. Forbes:

"You were kind to me four years ago, as kind as Sir Henry Royson would permit you to be toward one who had wilfully insulted him. My feelings with regard to him have undergone no change. I may be dead, for all I know, or care. But you, I suppose, are still the trusted solicitor of the Cuddesham estate, and Sir Henry Royson, if alive, may have remained unmarried. In that event, I am heir to a barren title, and it may save you some trouble if I inform you that I am leaving England. For reasons of no consequence, I am passing under the name of Richard King. If I return, or settle down in some other land, I will write you, say, after the lapse of a year. Please regard this note as strictly private; and do not interpret it as foreshadowing any attempt on my part to arrive at a reconciliation with Sir Henry Royson."

"The nature of the arrangements, the prudential supply of clothing, rather took Dick's breath away. Even the initials, "R. K.", were painted on the trunks and stiched on to the canvas.

"My employer seems to have done things pretty thoroughly," he could not help saying.

The shopman dug a compliment out of the remark.

"Our house has a reputation to maintain," he answered, "and Mr. Fenshawe is one of our best and oldest customers."

There was no mention of Count von Kerber, which added a ripple to the wave of astonishment in Royson's breast. He took the baggage to Charing Cross in a cab, and deposited it there. Meanwhile, he learned from a further scrutiny of the list that his own few belongings were hardly wanted. He had not been so well equipped since he left Heidelberg to rush to his mother's death-bed. Nevertheless, having already gathered in a valise some books, photographs, letters, and other odds and ends, he went to Brighton to obtain them.

While giving a farewell glance around his dingy room, an old envelope, thrown aside overnight, reminded him of a half-formed idea, and he appealed to him strongly now that he knew his port of departure.

So he wrote a short letter:

"Dear Mr. Forbes:

"You were kind to me four years ago, as kind as Sir Henry Royson would permit you to be toward one who had wilfully insulted him. My feelings with regard to him have undergone no change. I may be dead, for all I know, or care. But you, I suppose, are still the trusted solicitor of the Cuddesham estate, and Sir Henry Royson, if alive, may have remained unmarried. In that event, I am heir to a barren title, and it may save you some trouble if I inform you that I am leaving England. For reasons of no consequence, I am passing under the name of Richard King. If I return, or settle down in some other land, I will write you, say, after the lapse of a year. Please regard this note as strictly private; and do not interpret it as foreshadowing any attempt on my part to arrive at a reconciliation with Sir Henry Royson."

"The nature of the arrangements, the prudential supply of clothing, rather took Dick's breath away. Even the initials, "R. K.", were painted on the trunks and stiched on to the canvas.

"My employer seems to have done things pretty thoroughly," he could not help saying.

The shopman dug a compliment out of the remark.

"Our house has a reputation to maintain," he answered, "and Mr. Fenshawe is one of our best and oldest customers."

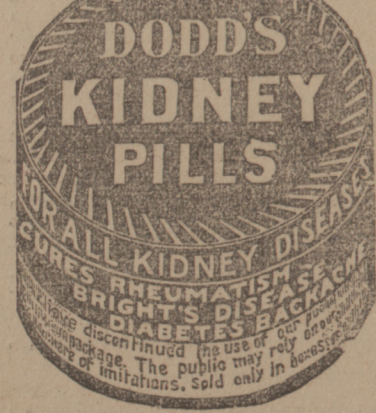

There was no mention of Count von Kerber, which added a ripple to the wave of astonishment in Royson's breast. He took the baggage to Charing Cross in a cab, and deposited it there. Meanwhile, he learned from a further scrutiny of the list that his own few belongings were hardly wanted. He had not been so well equipped since he left Heidelberg to rush to his mother's death-bed. Nevertheless, having already gathered in a valise some books, photographs, letters, and other odds and ends, he went to Brighton to obtain them.

While giving a farewell glance around his dingy room, an old envelope, thrown aside overnight, reminded him of a half-formed idea, and he appealed to him strongly now that he knew his port of departure.

So he wrote a short letter:

"Dear Mr. Forbes:

"You were kind to me four years ago, as kind as Sir Henry Royson would permit you to be toward one who had wilfully insulted him. My feelings with regard to him have undergone no change. I may be dead, for all I know, or care. But you, I suppose, are still the trusted solicitor of the Cuddesham estate, and Sir Henry Royson, if alive, may have remained unmarried. In that event, I am heir to a barren title, and it may save you some trouble if I inform you that I am leaving England. For reasons of no consequence, I am passing under the name of Richard King. If I return, or settle down in some other land, I will write you, say, after the lapse of a year. Please regard this note as strictly private; and do not interpret it as foreshadowing any attempt on my part to arrive at a reconciliation with Sir Henry Royson."

HEADACHES ARE DANGER SIGNALS

They Tell Us Plainly That Something Is Wrong Inside.

There are tablets and powders that will stop a headache promptly—but removing a danger signal does not take away the danger.

In nearly every case a headache—of whatever kind—is a symptom of poisoned blood, due to Bowels, Kidneys and Skin failing to thoroughly remove indigestible food and waste, worn-out tissue from the body. Then digestion is poor, causing sick headache, or uric acid is formed and deposited on the nerves, causing neuralgia.

Not only the danger signal, but the danger itself as well, is quickly removed by "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" are tablets made of the combined juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes, containing all the medicinal properties, concentrated and intensified. They cause the liver to secrete more bile, which moves the bowels freely and regularly, and cures the most obstinate cases of Constipation. They stir up kidneys and skin to throw off all the urea, or dead tissue, which has been poisoning the system. They sweeten the stomach, improve the digestion and tone up the whole body. The headaches disappear—because the source is removed. 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

his build. Any stranger who imagined that this squat Hercules was slow and ponderous in movement would be woefully mistaken if he based his conclusions on that presumption.

OBITUARY

Ex-Sheriff Reid

James Reid, ex-sheriff of Queens county, died at his home in Gagetown Monday morning about 1 o'clock. Mr. Reid, who was seventy-nine years old, had been ill for seven or eight months with a general break up of the system. Until about a year ago, however, he had enjoyed vigorous health. He was born in Donegal (Ire.), and came to St. John in 1847 when eighteen years of age and had lived nearly all his life in the vicinity of Gagetown.

He first fitted himself for the position of school teacher and for several years he followed this profession with much success. Later he entered business life with a partner under the firm name of Hawkes & Reid.

Several years ago, Mr. Reid was appointed high sheriff of Queens county, and in this capacity he continued to serve faithfully and efficiently until a few months ago when failing health compelled him to retire. He was a consistent member of the Methodist church. He took a strong interest in politics and was a staunch Liberal. He was a man of kindly ways and marked intelligence. A close observer of all matters of general interest, his conversational powers made him an interesting and agreeable companion.

In the private relations of life, he was looked up to by all who knew him as a man of sterling character. He was a devoted husband and father and will be missed by the entire community. He is survived by his wife, three sons and two daughters. The sons are Frank and Richard at home and William C. in Brooklyn. The Misses Nellie and Pansy are in this city, the daughters. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2:45. Rev. H. Penna will conduct the services and interment will be made in the Methodist cemetery at Gagetown.

Mrs. Sargent, of High street, is a sister of ex-Sheriff Reid and Alexander Duncan, of the I.C.R., is a nephew.

Mrs. Isaac Hutchinson

The death of Mrs. Isaac Hutchinson took place at her home in Chipman street, 30, at the advanced age of eighty-three years. She leaves three sons and three daughters, John and James A., at home; Isaac W., of St. John; Mrs. James Darrah, of Salmon Creek; Mrs. James Boyd, of St. John, and Miss Mary E., at home, and also four sisters and one brother, Mrs. McAllister and Mrs. Beck, of Coal Mines; Mrs. Crawford, of Ormotto; Mrs. Langin, at home; and Alex. Lamb, of Chipman. She was a member of the Presbyterian church from early life.

Bernard Quinan

North Sydney, Oct. 5 (Special).—The death of Bernard Quinan, of Halifax, occurred suddenly at the Belmont Hotel this morning. Mr. Quinan arrived on Saturday night on a business trip, and registered at the Belmont. He attended high school at St. Joseph's church yesterday, during which he fainted and was removed to his hotel, and passed away this morning.

Deceased was aged 54 and was a nephew of the late Rev. James Quinan, formerly pastor of Sacred Heart church, Sydney, and a brother of the late Rev. James Quinan, of Arichat. Mrs. Quinan, his wife, is expected to arrive here this evening.

Mr. Quinan was one of the best known commercial travelers on the road. His wife was a sister of Father Curry. He leaves three daughters and two sons; his oldest daughter is visiting her aunt in Honolulu. He represented F. W. Moore & Co., wholesale milliners, Halifax.

James Morrow

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 5.—(Special).—James Morrow, of the firm of S. Cunard & Co., died this evening, after an illness of three months.

He was a son of the late J. B. Morrow and his wife was a daughter of the late Senator John MacDonald, of Toronto. Three children survived. He was in his 53rd year.

Go to the blood, if you are to drive out Rheumatism. A Wisconsin physician, Dr. Sloop, does this with his Rheumatic Remedy—and with seeming success. Rub-on, says the doctor, never did cure Rheumatism. It is more than skin deep—it is constitutional, always. Because of this principle, Dr. Sloop's Rheumatic Remedy is perhaps the most popular in existence. It goes by word of mouth from one to another, everywhere. Grateful patients gladly spread results. It is an act of humanity, to tell the sick of a way to health. Tell some sick one. Sold by all Druggists.

Miss Isabel Mowatt, court stenographer, who has been on leave of absence on account of ill-health, went to Fredericton last evening to resume her duties.

Only One "BROMO QUININE," that is Laxative Bromo Quinine on every box. 25c. Cures a Cold in One Day, Crip in 2 Days

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

CHILD SINGER A BIG HIT AT THE NICKEL

Master Pat (not Conrad) Harrington, who made his bow to Nickel audiences yesterday afternoon and evening, received an enthusiastic welcome to the city of St. John. Men, women and children simply rose in their seats and almost cheered the tiny singer after his rendering of the sailor ditty "You'll Have To Wait Till My Ship Comes In."

His baby face and doll-like togs elicited exclamations of delight from the ladies and his "old sea dog" roll and swagger made the men laugh heartily. The song went with a swing and Master Harrington illustrated it betimes with a few nautical side-steps. Today he will give the same number when it is expected the matinee will be bigger than yesterday. Another great feature of the Nickel's new show is The Paris Fire Brigade At Drill, a remarkable sight, almost like a circus performance.

The Mishaps Of The Paris-New York Auto Race is a whole reel of fun, fancy and mystery. The scenes in Behring Straits are very amusing. "Always Me" is Miss Felix's new song, and the orchestra has new music.

TESTIMONIAL BENEFIT TO EUGENE McAULIFFE

Jerome McAuliffe and a splendid new company with a big list of high class vaudeville acts, will hold forth at the Opera

EUGENE McAULIFFE.

House for three performances, starting Friday night of this week as a testimonial to Master Eugene McAuliffe.

Each play possesses heart interest and is evenly balanced in the comedy element. "Shipwrecked" is the opening play and will be followed by "A Daughter of the People," and the "Tramp Detective."

A large list of vaudeville features is announced, and with Jere in a budget of new parodies will render an exceptionally strong array. The program already shows indications of three bumper houses.

VAUDEVILLE AT THE PRINCESS

Owing to sudden illness, Miss Perkins, the lady dancer booked for this week, did not arrive. Mr. Metcalf, comedian, took her place for the rest of the week; there are booked Reilly & Murray, singers and dancers, who will make their bow to the Princess patrons tonight. They are announced as giving a high-priced act, and are just returning to the States after a successful tour of leading vaudeville houses in Canada. Mr. Courtney, in his singing of "Comrade Mine," made a decided hit.

FIFTY-NINE YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE

It is not often that the 59th anniversary of a wedding is chronicled, but Mr. and Mrs. William Young, of 41 Spring street, enjoyed this distinction on Friday last, October 2. Both Mr. and Mrs. Young are in good health except that Mrs. Young can walk only with assistance since she sustained a bad fall some twenty months ago.

Mr. Young and his wife were both born in Ireland and came to the country at different times. Mrs. Young was the daughter of the late John Johnson, and was married from the house of her brother, James Johnson, Queen street. The ceremony was performed on October 2, 1849, the officiating clergyman being Rev. John Thomson, the first minister of St. David's church in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Young have always resided here. For twenty-five years Mr. Young was employed in the post office and was superannuated a few years ago.

Many friends of the couple called at their home on Friday evening and extended congratulations.

LANCASTER LIBERALS ORGANIZE FOR BATTLE

An enthusiastic organization meeting of the Liberal electors of Lancaster was held last night in the Temperance Hall, Fairville. More than 300 were present and the nomination papers of Hon. Mr. Pugsley were signed. Lancaster is right in line to give the Liberal candidate a rousing majority.

On motion of V. A. Quinton, W. F. Barnhill was elected chairman of the district with Joseph L. O'Brien secretary. Stirring speeches on the issues of the campaign were delivered by Hon. H. A. McKeown and F. J. McPeake. The electors will meet every night except Sunday in the same place from now until election.

The Liberal electors of Ramoth and Milford will meet for organization tonight at 8 o'clock in the Temple of Honor hall, Milford.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Prolapsing Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded.

Miss Mary Leighton and Miss Elizabeth Clark returned yesterday after a visit to Montreal. Miss Clark will leave today for St. Stephen, where she will spend the winter.

Mrs. C. W. White, of White's Cove, is visiting Mrs. C. D. Strang, 3 Metcalf street.

WORKER'S HAND SAVED

Mr. Wm. Burdett, of 198 Simcoe St., East, Hamilton, Ont., is employed at the works of the Canadian Westinghouse Co. He says:—"A heavy mould was being rolled over when it caught my hand. The result was a terrible crush, and by next morning my hand was black, and so stiffened, swollen and painful I could not use it. We applied liniment, and bandaged it, thinking it would soon be all right again—but it wasn't! For some time it showed no sign of getting better but on the contrary looked like turning to a very ugly injury.

"My wife persuaded me that Zam-Buk would do me more good than anything else, and I began to try it. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very core of the injured muscles and ligaments, taking healing and removed the discoloration. In a week's time it had so acted on the injury that the hand was nearly normal again and I could go to work once more. It is now quite cured."

HIS WIFE CURED OF DISFIGURING ECZEMA!

The above case is only one instance of the benefit which the Burdett family has reaped from Zam-Buk. Mr. Burdett's wife owes her cure of eczema to the same healing balm. She says:—"The disease broke out on my face in the form of red pimples and blotches which itched terribly, and when rubbed, burned and smarted very much. The pustules then spread and formed sores. These were at times very painful, they itched until I could hardly bear, and when touched turned sore. I tried various things, one after another, as they were recommended to me, but seemed unable to get any relief. Ordinary ointments and salves were quite unequal to my case. Then I tried Zam-Buk although at the time I hardly thought it could cure me. I thought it was just an ordinary balm. To my delight I was soon convinced otherwise. A few applications gave me considerable ease, and the burning, smarting pains grew less acute. As I persevered with the treatment the patches grew less in extent and the sores ceased to be so painful. In a week's time the eczema was well under control and healing splendidly, and to-day I am free from it entirely. Zam-Buk has effected a permanent cure, I feel sure, and I am very grateful for it."

ZAM-BUK FOR CHILDREN'S HURTS.

Mrs. Burdett has a word to say on the value of Zam-Buk as a balm for the delicate and tender skin of children. Every mother should note this. She says:—"Zam-Buk is especially useful where there are any children. It seems to heal their cuts and wounds and scratches in wonderful form. Almost as soon as applied, it ends the pain and smarting and gives the little ones ease. I would not like to be without it in the house."

WHAT ZAM-BUK IS AND WHAT IT CURES.

Zam-Buk is a balm composed entirely of healing herbal essences. It is free from the rancid animal fats and poisonous mineral substances found in ordinary salves and ointments. Unlike these it never gets rancid, never stains, but is always sweet, pure and fresh. It cures cuts, burns and scalds; heals ulcers, abscesses, poisoned wounds, chapped hands, frost bite, cold sores, etc. Rubbed on to the chest in cases of cold it ends the feeling of tightness of the chest and drives out the mucus and phlegm. It also cures piles. All stores and druggists call for Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 for $1.50.

ZAM-BUK THE GREAT SKIN CURE.

DR. DANIEL'S LAST CHANCE NOW GONE

He Has Declared Himself Opposed to the Development of Courtenay Bay and Thus Announces His Own Defeat.

To the Editor of The Telegraph: Sir—When Dr. Daniel, at the Opera House, placed himself on record as being opposed to the development of Courtenay Bay, he utterly destroyed any chances, however remote, which he may previously have had of being re-elected to Ottawa. The Conservative party had already taken a stand against money being expended by the Dominion Government for this purpose.

Hon. Robert Maxwell, L. P.-D. Tilley, and other lesser lights, had strongly denounced it from the public platform.

W. Frank Hatheway had used his influence to prevent an appropriation by the Provincial government towards the cost of the borings and Alderman Baxter, who claims to do the thinking for the West Side, had done all in his power to block a grant for the same purpose from the city.

Yet the friends of Dr. Daniel had hopes that he would, on this occasion, rise above party and show himself to be a St. John man first, and a party man second, but in that they were disappointed.

He has taken sides with his party against the best interests of the city. How then, can he in common sense expect the citizens to support his candidature?

The development of Courtenay Bay is in many respects the most important work that has been undertaken in the history of the city.

Dr. Pugsley, and Dr. Pugsley alone, is entitled to the credit of inaugurating this great work, and Dr. Pugsley is the man above all others capable of carrying it to a successful termination. He not only has the ability, but as Minister of Public Works, has the power.

And now Dr. Daniel, after having placed himself on record as an opponent of the scheme, asks the electors to send him to Ottawa, not as a co-worker in the matter, but in order that he may obstruct and make it more difficult for Dr. Pugsley to carry forward this great work.

The fact of the matter is that the Conservatives are feeling pretty sore over this Courtenay Bay matter.

They are well aware that the citizens, both Liberal and Conservative, are as one man in their wish that the work shall go on and begin at once, but what bothers them is their knowledge that the suggestion came from Dr. Pugsley.

In the past it has been the habit for the Board of Trade and the Common Council to spend months airing themselves on a scheme and to follow this up by sending numerous delegations to Ottawa to interview the ministers, and in this instance the minister reversed the order by coming with his proposition to the Common Council, and that is the pill our Conservative friends find so hard to swallow.

In view of this position of affairs would it not be a suicidal policy to send Dr. Daniel to Ottawa at the present time? Dr. Pugsley, as the Minister of Public Works, and Mr. Pender, the city's representative, pulling together, would be a strong team, and at this important period in the history of St. John, are the men above all others for the City and County of St. John.

Yours truly, COURTENAY BAY, St. John, Oct. 5, '08.

THE CENTRAL INQUIRY No Further Sessions Will be held Until After the Elections.

It is hardly probable that there will be any more sittings of the Central Railway Commission till after the elections. Hon. P. A. Landry, who is at the Royal, said last night that the commission was postponed indefinitely on the occasion on which they last sat. Since then there had been requests not to call the commission together again till after the elections. He had not seen all his colleagues since, but had no doubt they would accede to these wishes.

Judge Landry, who was ill, said he is now feeling somewhat better. He thinks he is run down from overwork. He was to have opened court here today, but Hon. A. S. White has consented to take the circuit for him and he hoped to enjoy a rest for the next fortnight.

The wholesome, harmless green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountain shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Tickling or dry bronchial coughs quickly and safely yield to this highly effective cough medicine. Dr. Shoop assures mothers that they can with safety give it to every young babe. No opium, no chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or harmful. It calms the distressing cough and heals the sensitive membranes. Accept no other. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Sold by all Druggists.

Hon. W. J. Bowser, attorney-general of British Columbia, who has been in the city for a few days, went to Montreal last evening.

William Jardine, manager of the Bank of New Brunswick in Fredericton, was in St. John yesterday.

Does not Color the Hair Stops Falling Hair AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Another of Cowan's creation in chocolate—a delicious combination of finest milk chocolate and fresh shelled walnuts. Truly delightful. In 1/4 and 1/2 pound cakes.

THE COWAN CO. LIMITED, TORONTO.

Cowan's Nut Milk Chocolate

Another of Cowan's creation in chocolate—a delicious combination of finest milk chocolate and fresh shelled walnuts. Truly delightful. In 1/4 and 1/2 pound cakes.

THE COWAN CO. LIMITED, TORONTO.

Abbey's Effer-Salt

Here is the Maid with lovely eyes Of blue, like far celestial skies. She has no ills which beauty mar For ABBEY'S SALT keeps them far.

At Dealers—25c. and 60c. Is "The Fountain of Perpetual Youth."