THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE

"You do, eh? You give permission? Do you pay his salary?" demanded the millionaire indignantly.

"Yes, on your behalf. Surely the arrangement between us cannot be disputed. I was to make all arrangements, yes?"

"As my paid agent, you should add."

Mrs. Haxton suddenly sat forward in her chair.

"We had a tacit agreement for an equal division of the spoil," she interposed, with an acidity that Mr. Fenshawe probably found in marked contrast with her usual honeyed speech.

"That agreement would have been kept by me," said Fenshawe. "You may not be aware that Baron von Kerber pleaded poverty, and I promised to remunerate him for his services, whether we won or lost. I have no doubt he has my letter, duly stamped at Somerset House, carefully packed away with Mr. Royson's agreement."

"The report was in the nature of the tacit agreement," he said, "and the skilled swordsman. It was succeeded by a tense silence. Mrs. Haxton glared at Mr. Royson. The ghost of a smile flickered on Irene's lips as she glanced at Dick. Von Kerber swished one of his boots viciously with a riding whip. He found he must say nothing."

"Why are we creating difficulties where none exist?" he snarled. "If the agreement stands in the way, I absolve Mr. Royson from any promise he has made. I want to guard against treachery, not to let him down to serve me exclusively."

"You asked for obedience and a still tongue, Baron. I have given you both," said Dick.

"There is your employer, and mine—"

"Kerber could not be other than dramatic. He pointed to Mr. Fenshawe with a fine gesture.

"I have not much to say, unless in the form of opinions. You certainly were not asked at Marseille, and you yourself charged one of your assistants with stealing the papers. Beyond that, I know little of your business, though, from letters and cablesgrams which reached me at various places, it seems to have been conducted extensively in London."

"Who was your informant?" asked Fenshawe.

"A solicitor, named Forbes. He is not personally acquainted with Baron von Kerber, but this man, Alfieri, of whom we have heard so much, employed private detectives. They, in the course of events, discovered my identity, and met Mr. Forbes. It is only fair to Baron von Kerber to say that I have never heard his version of the charge brought against him by Alfieri."

"I have," said the millionaire, grimly.

"There was no mistaking the inference to be drawn from his words. Von Kerber was wholly discredited. It was exceeding probable that the first march of the return journey to Fajura would be ordered forthwith. Indeed, Fenshawe rose to his feet, meaning to bid Adhur Kad's prepare to strike camp after the evening meal, when Mrs. Haxton, divining his intent, cried shrilly:

"May I ask what new circumstances has brought about this remarkable change in your plans, Mr. Fenshawe? It is true that we have been favored by an extraordinary vision of an Italian expedition at no great distance from our own, but what proof have we that it is successful, or even engaged on an errand similar to ours?"

"The mere fact that extensive research is being carried on is sufficiently convincing. Italian soldiers and Arabs do not form huge earthworks in the desert for amusement," said Fenshawe.

"They may be trying a last desperate chance," she retorted.

"You forget that they have the same information as ourselves. There is no trouble in deciphering demotic Greek and the hieroglyphic minerals are quite simple."

"I take it that Alfieri knew no Greek?" said Mr. Fenshawe, with a touch of irony that was not lost on the lady.

"He certainly failed to appreciate its importance," was the quiet response. "My husband deciphered most of the narrative, but he, in his turn, had no knowledge of hieroglyphics, and, as you are aware, many of the words and figures are contained in ovals, or cartouches, and written in Egyptian characters. He would have learnt their meaning from some other source, but he—died—very suddenly."

"An accident caused Alfieri to suspect the value of the papyrus, and he asked me to return it. Unfortunately, I led him to believe that I would meet his wish, but Baron von Kerber, who, as you know, was needed by me on a German mission to King Menelik, came to my assistance at the time, and I told him of my husband's views with regard to the portion he had

HEADACHES ARE DANGER SIGNALS

They Tell Us Plainly That Something Is Wrong Inside.

There are tablets and powders that will stop a headache promptly—but removing a danger signal does not take away the danger.

In nearly every case a headache—of whatever kind—is a symptom of poisoned blood, due to Bowels, Kidneys and Skin failing to thoroughly remove indigestible food and waste, worn-out tissue from the body. Then digestion is poisoning the system. They cause the liver to secrete acid, which moves the bowels freely and regularly, and cures the most obstinate cases of Constipation. They stir up kidneys and skin to throw off all the urea, or dead tissue, which has been poisoning the system. They sweeten the stomach, improve the digestion and tone up the whole body. The headaches disappear—because the source is removed. 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-atives Limited, Ottawa.

Not only the danger signal, but the danger itself as well, is quickly removed by "Fruit-atives."

"Fruit-atives" are tablets made of the combined juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes, containing all their medicinal properties, concentrated and intensified. They cause the liver to secrete more bile, which moves the bowels freely and regularly, and cures the most obstinate cases of Constipation. They stir up kidneys and skin to throw off all the urea, or dead tissue, which has been poisoning the system. They sweeten the stomach, improve the digestion and tone up the whole body. to wait nearly a year before he could obtain expert advice as to the accuracy of his rendering. Meanwhile, Signor Alfieri and I had quarrelled. I may as well tell you that he was pestering me to marry him, and I grew to hate the man. Then I returned to England; and a friend suggested that I should see you for interest. Now you have the whole story, so far as I am concerned in it."

"If that is so, it would have been better had you taken me into your confidence at the outset."

"Alfieri was using threats. I feared the loss of your co-operation if a melodramatic element were introduced."

"But are not you and Baron von Kerber, and, as it would seem, your Italian admirer also, attributing an absurdly fictitious value to the find? People do not pay high prices for old coins merely because they are historic. I have always regarded this treasure-trove as purely an antiquarian in its interest. It may contain some vessels or statuettes worth money; but to what extent? Certainly not such fabulous sums as you appear to imagine."

Mrs. Haxton smiled sourly.

THE MAYES DREDGE

A report was in circulation yesterday that action had been taken on Saturday by the collector of customs in reference to the collection of duty on the G. S. Mayes dredge.

Neither the collector of customs nor Mr. Mayes would speak of the matter when asked. Under arrangement made when the dredge was brought here from Boston, duty has been paid in installments and satisfactory to the department and Mr. Mayes has lately been effected.

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (Special).—The minister of customs is at present absent from Ottawa and no one in the department would say anything with reference to the report about the Mayes dredge duty.

From other sources, however, it is learned that the dredge, having been entered in bond, Mayes, who soon as his contract was completed, would either have to take the dredge out of the country or else pay full duty upon it. It is presumed that the collector at St. John has put these alternatives to Mayes and that the contractor, having failed within given time to export the dredge, has been called upon to pay duty.

Dr. Pugsley, when seen about the matter tonight, said it was all news to him.

A.O.H. SOCIAL AND DANCE

The new rooms of the A. O. H. in Sutherland's hall, Union street, were opened last night with a grand social and dancing under the auspices of the ladies' auxiliary. The hall was prettily decorated.

About fifty couples attended and the first part of the evening was spent in dancing. About 11 o'clock an auction of pies was held.

William Daley was the auctioneer and whether it was because of his eloquence or the reductive appearance of the pastry, good prices were realized for the lot.

The address was given under the auspices of the temperance department of the Epworth League. Newton Rogers, president of the league, was in the chair.

Hon. Mr. McKeown showed that the origin of the temperance movement dated back to ancient times and he gave many interesting details of organization among the Chinese and Egyptians. There was a large audience. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer.

One of the new fabrics brought out this season is a seahair and wool mixture whose weave in stripe effect has a suggestion of crepe. This supremely graceful frock, built of the new material in a smoke gray shade, is trimmed with bengaline top pipings and ornaments. A touch of sharply contrasting color, which gives the gown individuality, is the hand-trimming of green and gold embroidery.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

"PAID IN FULL" IS A BIG HIT

One of the Best Productions Given by the Harkins Co. at the Opera House Last Night.

The W. S. Harkins company began its second week's engagement at the Opera House last night when "Paid in Full" was presented to a large and appreciative audience. The play itself, like the others in the repertoire of the Harkins company, is of first-class quality, and being well staged and admirably acted, held the attention of the audience throughout its four acts.

"Paid in Full" illustrates the forces which compel a young under-paid clerk to steal from his hard-grooming employer in order that his wife may be spared a life of poverty. The consequences of theft arouse his fear of prison and the fear acts on his weak character in such a way that he successfully employs his wife to induce his employer to forgive the crime. To prevent himself from being incarcerated the guilty husband intimates his willingness to have his wife make any sacrifice. The young wife visits her husband's employer, and tries to make some arrangement whereby she will be saved from disgrace and her unfortunate husband from prison.

Most unexpectedly the old retired sea captain, who possesses a most unvarying love for the young wife, is the one who gives a written promise that if his erring clerk will not be punished, but first ascertains to his own great satisfaction that the young wife will not sacrifice her own honor to save her husband, he will marry her. The development of the plot is assisted by the actions of the wife's mother, who goes to the husband on a mission of the evening to unaccompanied children under fourteen was rigidly enforced last night.

NICKEL THEATRE CROWDED

The usual Monday throngs wended their way to the Nickel last evening and were repaid with a most enjoyable programme. The striking feature of the whole bill was the scream of screams "Peck's Bad Boy" comedy. Last evening Pat Harrington was uproariously received in a sailor ditty and Miss Foley sang "The Same Old Moon." Mr. Cairns' contribution was well received. The new rule of refusing admission to the evening to unaccompanied children under fourteen was rigidly enforced last night.

As each 25th boy is initiated, two strokes on the bell of the Church of the Good Shepherd will sound the announcement and when the 150 shall have become members of the section, the bell will ring five times.

Last evening at a meeting of the section in their hall in Main street, Striving Stackhouse gave an address of welcome, there were readings by Le Baron Stairs, Wm. Stairs, and Joseph Read; harmonica solos by Harry Brownell and Fred. Williams and speeches by Fred. Mc-Masters, G. W. Templar Blewett, S. E. Logan, C. Black, Rev. Mr. McKel, and J. H. Belay.

HAWKING MACHINES

Catarrh Suffers are Nothing But Hawking, Spitting and Blowing Machines, Says an Authority.

Is it possible that in these days when cleanliness and sanitary reform are being preached in the churches, schools and at public gatherings, that thousands of people will continue to suffer from catarrh when there is an absolutely certain remedy always on hand?

Hymeni, (pronounced Hym-e) is a pleasant, medicated and antiseptic air. Breathe it in and it will cure catarrh. It will stop foul breath, watery eyes, and crusts in the nose in a few days.

Hymeni, (pronounced Hym-e) is a pleasant, medicated and antiseptic air. Breathe it in and it will cure catarrh. It will stop foul breath, watery eyes, and crusts in the nose in a few days.

Mr. Wilson, of Johnson St., Wallaceburg, Ont., says: "Yes, we are great friends to Hymeni for the reason that Mr. Wilson has had catarrh for several years and tried several remedies and doctors, but nothing has relieved the trouble like Hymeni. His trouble is from pain across the eyes and a burning or business in his throat. Sometimes much difficulty in breathing, the glands in his eyes and nose swollen and the disease made him literally sick all over. He cannot say enough in praise of Hymeni, and there is nothing that can give better relief to catarrh than this remedy, which we heartily recommend."

A complete Hymeni outfit, consisting of a strong, hand rubber pocket inhaler and a bottle of Hymeni, costs only $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost only 50c each. Chas. Wasson sells it and guarantees it to do exactly as advertised.

Hymeni also cures Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Infant's Croup.

About 12:20 o'clock yesterday, while working on board the Donaldson line steamer Almora, Fred Perry, a longshoreman, fell between the steamer and the wharf. He did not reach the water but was wedged in between the vessel and the face of the wharf and was extricated by his companions with the aid of a rope which was thrown to him. He was injured.

Rev. J. J. O'Donovan was a passenger on the outgoing Montreal train last evening.

The past season, according to the owners of coasting schooners has been a poor one for them and they will be doing well to come out with an even balance. This was not because of lack of freight. There were plenty of cargoes offering and while prices were better three or four years ago still they were fairly good all round.

The trouble is that expenses are getting greater each year while there is no corresponding advance for cargoes. On the whole, however, owners are not disappointed as when the spring opened they say they made up their minds that they could not hope for anything better than to clear expenses.

A large audience assembled in the school room of St. Luke's church, Red-say, last evening to hear a lecture by Dr. Mabel Hannington on her work in China. She gave an interesting description of the manners and customs of the country and of her work among the people. Rev. A. W. Daniel introduced the lecturer. At the close Rev. W. R. Hibbert moved and W. T. Peters seconded a cordial vote of thanks to Dr. Hannington. During her stay in Red-say Dr. Hannington is the guest of Mrs. F. W. Brock.

Cummings, pastor of the First Baptist church of Amherst, is conducting the services which will continue this week and the following week. Last evening's service was held in the vestry and was attended by many. After half an hour of opening exercises, Rev. Mr. Cummings spoke on the subject— "What it is to Believe in Christ." He pointed out the awful sin of unbelieving, stating that it was the greatest possible sin a man could commit. He urged all who had not yet taken the stand of trusting in the Saviour to do so now.

The speaker was listened to with close attention throughout. Good results are looked for from the meetings.
