OWEN SOUND MAN KILLS HIS FAMILY

He Murders Wife and Daughter and Then Tries to Kill Himself

Owen Sound, Ont., May 26.—James F. Creighton of this town called through a window of his house to some neighbors tonight at 6 o'clock that he had killed his family and shot himself and on entering the house the neighbors found the news true.

Creighton had a bullet wound in the eye that may kill him. His wife was found with her throat cut and a shoestring tied around her neck.

His two step-daughters, Katherine and Clare Chapman, beautiful and highly respected young women, aged eighteen and sixteen years respectively, were found hacked and shot to death. The murderer is probably insane.

TRADE OUTLOOK HAS IMPROVED

(Montreal Witness.)

There has been considerable improvement in financial conditions here during the past week or two, according to Bradstreet's, and money is coming forward more easily, particularly from Western Canada and Ontario payments are generally well up to those of last year. It is true some lines of trade report collections are still slow, but others say they are better than they have been for years. The demand for loans is not so heavy as a year ago, due to lessened industrial activity. At the present time general business is moving towards better conditions. An adverse feature is the continued wet weather which in this part of the country is acting against crops. As yet, however, no serious harm has been done, and dry, warm weather would bring things along nicely. Dry goods wholesalers report an improved demand for summer and fall lines, buyers showing a disposition to cover on cotton goods and woolens. Groceries are moving fairly well. Prices are steady with firmness noted in canned goods and sugars. The hardware trade has a good tone and prospects are bright for further improvement. Iron and steel prices are about steady although the feeling favors easiness. The demand for building lines continues good. Boot and shoe houses are doing a fair sorting trade in summer lines. The retail business is of average volume. Country trade has still a quiet tone. Deliveries of dairy produce are light and it is stated that the make of cheese will not be heavy.

Crop prospects, say Winnipeg reports, continue exceedingly bright, and there is a resultant improvement in almost all lines of trade. Buyers are inclined to order more freely, particularly since retailers have been carrying light stocks for some time. Travellers on the road report bright prospects for fall trade. Although there has been some improvement in collections there is still complaint of the way in which money is coming in. Real improvement in this connection can hardly be expected until crops are marketed. Money is slowly working easier, although it is less so than in Eastern Canada.

IMPRESSED BY SERMON

Editor Times

Sir:—Taking as his text the words "Because I live ye shall live also," the Rev. A. B. Cohoe, of the Brussels street Baptist Church delivered a very touching sermon Sunday morning.

Speaking of the life our Saviour lived while on earth; and the love He showed to all mankind, Mr. Cohoe said it was an example that we as a Christian people should all strive to follow. Referring to the lives of our earthly parents he said that after the loved ones were dead and gone we might in time forget even the looks of a mother's or father's face but the love which was so strong between parents and child would linger as long as life itself. Bringing before the minds of his hearers the fact that whatever influence they had upon their fellowmen whether for good or evil had very much to do with the making up of one's life, especially the young, who naturally look to the older ones for example, he said that we as Christian people should show to our fellowmen the same love and charity that Jesus did when on earth.

And true it is, if even the parents would show the kindness and love to their children that it is their duty to do, the world in a short time would be free from much of the evil which exists. This is the written motive, that these words may be read and thoughtfully considered, and bear fruit in the life of some soul.

Yours,
A Listener.

MODELS FOR THE HOME DRESSMAKER

The illustrations show several attractive designs for summer frocks which would not be beyond the skill of the average home dressmaker, and are smart and effective in style and could be carried out in various materials. The princesse lingerie gown pictured is the most difficult to make, although with the aid of a reliable pattern of a one-piece frock it should be successfully carried out. The model was of sheer white mull, inset with three-quarter inch width val lace and strips of handsome open embroidery, which was used down the panels front and back. The yoke of the frock was of the val insertion, with the little triangular spaces of mull hand embroidered, as explained by the sketch. The skirt could be made long or short, as desired, and was finished around the bottom with a three-inch ruffle edged with lace.

The linen frock pictured in the same plate was in the original of natural color basket weave linen, the bodice showing insert pieces of bias black taffeta and black taffeta buttons. The yoke and undersleeves were of filet lace and net, and the skirt was in short walking length.

The other gown pictured was also of linen and white filet lace, the model being in pink with a white stripe. Pink linen buttons embroidered in white were also used as trimming on the bodice, the skirt being plaited and also in walking length.

Long-trained skirts, however, are to be much in evidence this season for afternoon and evening wear, and trimming extending for the full skirt length down the middle front is much used, the line also continuing up the bodice front.

Unlined princesse or semiprincesse frocks are very fashionable and are charming if well made. Among the novelties of this sort are the crepe de chine frocks made up much in the same fashion as the lingerie models without a lining. One lovely model of this description was in pale apricot, with self-tone embroidery on the bodice and merely a group of tucks as skirt trimming. There was a dainty guimpe of lace and short, closely draped sleeves matching the guimpe.

An excellent plan in making these unlined princesse frocks is to use a carefully boned and fitted undergirdle of lawn about eight inches in depth. The little princesse gown is attached to this about the waist line and is thus assured shapeliness.

How He Got Left

When Mr. Jones boarded the car the other morning he found Green one of the passengers, and after they had passed the time of day he said:

"See here, Green, you have never considered me a fool, have you?"

"Oh, certainly not."

"You've rather regarded me as knowing a thing or two, eh?"

"Exactly so."

"Not a man to buy green goods or stock in oil wells"

"Surely not. Has something happened to you?"

"There has, my friend, there has—and when we got off the car I want you to kick me for a brainless idiot."

"Dear, dear me. I am all anxiety."

"You know X—— the coal man, of course?"

"Yes."

They are all radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This great medicine thoroughly cleanses the blood and restores healthy functional activity to the whole system. It makes people well.

"That's good."

"Been calling him a thief and a robber every time I've met him since."

"Yes, I see."

"And this morning I am informed that he has bought out the ice company that supplies my neighborhood, and that if I get a pound this summer I must deal with him."

"Great heaven."

"And we get off here, and if you will kindly kick me for mother's sake—kick me good and hard, I'll take it as the friendly act of a friendly man."
