The natives of Lilliput were very much interested in Gulliver's watch. (Gulliver's Travels, by Swift.) Find another man.

The young couple received a large number of beautiful and costly gifts. The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. A. A. Coffe, Miss Jane Coombs, New Haven, Conn.; Miss A. E. Sporer, Kentucky; Miss Lena Sporer, Hartford, Conn.; Miss Lennie Wade, Bear River; Mrs. A. C. Wells, St. John; Mrs. Park Rowley, Welland, Ont. (Yarmouth Herald).

THE INGLENOOK PHILOSOPHER OF KENNEBECCAS BAY

The old man has been transported to the land where myths and fables cease to be wonderful—the land of pleasant dreams. These words, applied by Joel Chandler Harris to "Uncle Remus," a character of his creation, flashed into my mind as I read of his death in the Times of Saturday. Of all the literary characters pertaining to Southern life in ante-bellum days it is safe to say that "Uncle Remus" is the most artistic and true to nature.

If one feels dull and spiritless in the spring or early summer, they call it "Spring Fever." But there is no fever usually. It is the after effect of our winter habits. The nerves are mostly at fault. Tired, worn-out nerves leave us languid, listless, and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Shoop's Restorative will absolutely and quickly change all of these depressing symptoms. The Restorative of course won't bring you back to full health in a day or two, but it will do enough in 48 hours to satisfy you that the remedy is reaching that "tired spot." Druggists everywhere are advising its use as a splendid and prompt general tonic. It gives more vim and more spirit to the spoonful than any other known nerve or constitutional tonic. It sharpens a falling appetite, aids digestion, frees sluggish livers and kidneys, and brings new life, strength and ambition. Test it a few days and be convinced.

AM-BUK RELIEVES & CURES. Mr. Alfred Brown, of Merriton, Ont. says: "For six years I have not known what it was to be free from pain. No one ever suffered more from itching bleeding Piles than I did and I tried everything to get cured but failed. One day a shoemaker who had seen me with Am-Buk gave me a part of a box to try, and the relief I got was marvelous. I then bought a supply before I had used it all and was completely cured." WEDDINGS Coggins-Parry

The marriage took place at Westport, N. S., on Wednesday evening last, of Mr. J. Boyd Coggins, son of Capt. Coggins, of the steamer Westport III, and Miss Pearl Parry, youngest daughter of the late Rev. H. N. Parry, of Yarmouth. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. O. Morse. (Yarmouth Herald).

Alexander-Bunker

A very pretty wedding took place at the United Baptist church at Rusingson, Sunbury, Co., Thursday afternoon, June 30, when Miss Stella E. Bunker, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Bunker became the wife of John Louis Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander, of Rusingson.

The strains of the wedding march in Lohengrin, played by Miss Elsie Noble, the bride party took their places at the altar which was prettily surrounded with palms, ferns and potted plants. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. McLennan, of Fredricton, officiating the single ring service being used.

The bride looked charming in a handsome gown of white point d'esprit over white silk, with white picture hat, and carried a shower bouquet of white bride's roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Mott, cousin of the groom, wore a pretty dress of white muslin with pink trimmings, and large white picture hat and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The best man was Medley T. Holdsworth, of Lynn (Mass.), cousin of the bride.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a purse of gold, to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet, and to the groomsmen a set of cuff links. After the ceremony a dainty supper was served at the home of the bride's mother, the tables being in charge of Mrs. Murray Patterson, of Lincoln, in charge of the wedding ceremony, where was displayed silverware, cut glass, linen, china, etc.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the bride having changed her gown for a traveling suit of brown Panama cloth, set out to meet the happy couple left in a hack for Fredericton and from there will proceed to Halifax (N. S.), via I. C. R., where their honeymoon will be spent. They will make their future home at Chatham, N. B.

Cann-Creevey

At Wesley church last Monday afternoon was solemnized the marriage of Miss Caroline Amelia Creevey, sister daughter of the Hon. and Mrs. Edward A. Creevey, and Mr. Ivan Douglas Cann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Cann, of Yarmouth. The church was prettily decorated, the color scheme being green and white. At the altar stood an arch, from the middle of which hung a large white bell.

The bride, daintily attired in white Geylon silk, entered the church on the arm of her brother, E. Allen Creevey, preceded by her sister, Miss Mildred Creevey, who was gowned in pink organdie, and carried a huge bouquet of pink roses. The party proceeded up the aisle to the altar, where the Rev. Mr. Lane, assisted by Rev. Rose of the United Baptist church, performed the wedding ceremony, the Episcopal service being used. The party left the church to the Mendelssohn recessional.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. The rooms were decorated in white and pink, and the young couple received congratulations under the English and American flags. The entire wedding party accompanied the happy pair to the steamer Prince George where Mr. and Mrs. Cann started for their new home, accompanied by the good wishes of their many friends.

MR. MCKANE AND DAVID RUSSELL

John McKane Paid $182,000 Cash For the Telegraph and Times--The Facts Briefly Stated.

The Sun yesterday printed a misleading letter from David Russell, of Montreal, dealing with the purchase of the Telegraph and the Times by John McKane. In this letter the attempt was again made to create the false impression that Mr. McKane did not pay cash for the property he bought. The only notes in connection with the transaction were for Mr. Russell's accommodation, not Mr. McKane's. With respect to the assertion that Mr. McKane did not pay for the papers in cash it is needless to make any further statement than this: Mr. McKane not only paid for the papers in cash but has two or three acknowledgments made by Mr. Russell that $182,000 was paid in full. As respects the agreement to lend Mr. Russell $30,000, the facts are these: Mr. Russell, in view of the financial stringency, agreed with Mr. McKane that Mr. McKane should endorse his paper for $50,000 for one year from Nov. 15 last, and should also lend Mr. Russell $50,000 for one year from the same date. These amounts were over and above the $182,000 referred to. Mr. McKane advanced $20,000 to Mr. Russell as agreed, and as Mr. Russell wanted to use the other $50,000 before the time the loan was to be made, Mr. McKane accepted his drafts to the amount of $50,000 instead of giving him the cash. After Mr. McKane had endorsed his endorsements to the amount of $50,000, and his acceptances to a like amount, Mr. Russell wished Mr. McKane to give him an endorsement on these acceptances in lieu of Hon. William Pugsley, whom Mr. Russell had got to endorse the acceptances. Mr. McKane refused to give an endorsement, but demanded. These are the facts in a nutshell, and no litigation whatever is pending respecting the purchase money of the papers, the $182,000 as above stated having been all paid in cash. This statement of the case is made to correct misrepresentation.

Documentary proof as to its accuracy will be forthcoming when the suits come to trial.

BOGUS SCHOOL BOND

At a special meeting of the school board yesterday afternoon, a committee composed of Chairman Emerson, and Messrs. Bullock and Coll, was appointed to take action with regard to the so-called bogus $2,000 bond which will fall due in the fall of New Brunswick this year. The bond was deposited about thirty years ago and the fraud was not discovered until 1908, when the bank took action to recover the interest and won the case in the courts against the trustees.

The meeting was called expressly for the purpose of dealing with this matter, there was no other business.

The committee will meet at the call of the chairman and what they decide upon will be at once put into effect.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE

Letters are being sent out to the members of the board of trade advising them of the annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade, which will be held in Halifax on August 10 and asking for suggestions as to subjects which the St. John board would offer for discussion at that meeting, and also asking for the names of members who will be able to attend the meeting as delegates from the St. John board. No effort is being spared by the committee in charge of the matter, to have a large and influential delegation go from St. John as questions are certain to come up at the meeting which will have of great importance to St. John and New Brunswick. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure will need all the assistance it can get from its members as delegates.

Weak women should try Dr. Shoop's Night Cure. These soothing, healing, anesthetic suppositories go direct to the seat of these weaknesses. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is sold by all Druggists.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

SELMAN STOCK COMPANY SCORES IN SWEET CLOVER

The Selman Stock Company again appeared to advantage at the Opera House last night in the ever popular rural drama "Sweet Clover."

As Eldesedge Governor the New York minionaire, who wears Lois Holcomb (Sweet Clover) Joseph Selman was excellent although his opportunities were not many.

Theodore Daly appropriately portrayed the character of Albert Slade an artist with whom the heroine was originally in love.

Robert Robson as Job Masson, who has always "been leading up to it anyway" made a typical dandy's woe and with Harry Wilson as a young physician supplied the male comedy element.

Special mention is due William Townsend for his interpretation of Jerome Holcomb, the father of Sweet Clover. Dorothy Lee was all that could be desired as Lois Holcomb, the Sweet Clover of the play, who gives up the man of her choice and marries the millionaire to appease her father and falls in love with her husband later.

Miss Eugenie Du Bois impersonated to perfection the part of Abigail Holcomb, who has been endeavoring to ensnare Job Masson for thirty years. The other members of the company were also typical in the roles assigned them. Pleasing specialties were rendered during the intermissions. Sweet Clover will be the bill to-night and at the Saturday matinee. Sherlock Holmes will be presented on Friday and Saturday nights.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Insure Them Good Health

Ninety per cent of children, under twelve years of age, are being poisoned and parents don't realize it. Irregular bowels are the chief cause. You parents know that your bowels should move every day. You know you must be as regular as clock-work, or the blood will become tainted.

Don't you realize that the children must be as orderly in getting rid of the waste matter of their system? Then, if you find that any of the little ones go two or three days without action of the bowels, don't run to castor oil, senna tea, calomel, cascara or harsh "liver pills." Those simply purge the child—strain the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the ideal medicine for children. They are fruit juices and tonics in the form of a pleasant tasting tablet. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulate the liver, causing more bile to flow. It is the bile, given up by the liver, which moves the bowels. "Fruit-a-tives" regulate the liver and bowels, and thus completely cure constipation. They sweeten the stomach, and are the finest tonic in the world to build up the system and make children plump and rosy. 50c a box—six for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not handle them. "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

moved, but no sound came from them. "I know exactly what has happened," the Countess said. "No, pray don't distress yourself. You must not try your strength. You will never get better if you exert yourself." A melancholy smile came over Silva's face. The expression of his eyes told as plainly as possible that he had no delusions on the score of his recovery. Then he went through the motion of writing with an imaginary pencil upon an invisible slip of paper. Countess Flavio turned impulsively to the nurse.

"Is it quite safe?" she asked. "I don't think the poor fellow will rest till he makes me understand; and you see, being Italian myself, anything he may write—" "I think it will be a very good thing," the nurse replied.

She came to the bedside with a sheet of paper and a pencil, which she placed in Silva's hand. His unsteady fingers began to trace certain signs on the paper. The marks were feeble and straggling enough, but a little care on the part of the Countess enabled her to make out what the characters represented.

"I can't read plain to me now," she said, looking down into Silva's eager face. "You want me to find the diary, do you not? You mean the Count's diary, which was not produced at the trial?"

Silva nodded feebly. Evidently he was fast lapsing into unconsciousness again. But with an effort he managed to concentrate his mind upon what the Countess was saying.

(Continued.) "You are quite right, uncle," he said. "It is absolutely necessary that the Countess Flavio should be here at once. We can get her address from Mrs. Delahay. If you like I will go up myself." "Do you feel equal to it?" Vera asked anxiously. "Oh, I'm all right now," Walter said, "with the exception of a certain shakiness and a splitting headache. It must have been a pretty severe dose that our interesting friend gave me last night. But I don't think there is any occasion to worry about me."

"Then we will have some breakfast, and get up to London at once," Venables said, in his quick decisive fashion. "We can leave Lord Ravenspur and Miss Rayne here till we come back. I don't think that Lord Ravenspur has anything to fear from his enemy now."

Breakfast was despatched without delay, and immediately Venables and Walter left for London. The house was now quiet and still, for as yet practically nothing was known as to the precise of Silva's action, and public curiosity still slept. It was some time after luncheon before Vera had a chance of speaking to the nurse, with an inquiry as to how the patient was getting on. The nurse smiled in reply.

"He is slightly better," she explained. "In fact, he is as well as likely to be." "He has been conscious for the last half hour. He seems to want something, only I can't understand what it is. We may be able to find out when the doctor comes."

CHAPTER XXI A Ray of Light.

It was no difficult matter to find Mrs. Delahay, who, when the late starting developments were laid before her, made no demur in giving her sister's address. Maria Delahay was looking just as pale and haggard as usual. It seemed impossible to rouse her from her state of morbid gloom into which she had fallen. When the two friends were standing on the steps of the hotel they ran against Inspector Dallas.

"Any fresh news?" Walter asked. "Well, no," Dallas admitted. "I am simply waiting on events at present. If you could only get Mrs. Delahay to be more candid with me it might save her a deal of unpleasantness in the long run." "Do you mean that she is in danger?" Venables asked. "I think you can see that for yourself, sir," Dallas replied. "Naturally, I am hesitating as long as possible—" "Then hesitate a little longer," Walter said. "Quite by accident, Lord Ravenspur has stumbled upon a clue which I think will astonish you when you come to know his story. We are going off now to a place called Cannon Green. We shall probably be back probably by the last train tonight, and I want you to meet us at Waterloo Station. I think you will be rewarded for your trouble."

Dallas promised, and, like the wise man he was, asked no questions. The two companions proceeded in a cab to Isleworth Road, where they asked to see the mistress of the house. The maid who answered the door was somewhat reticent, but she admitted that her mistress was at home, whereupon Walter and his companion entered without further ceremony. Perhaps their manner impressed the maid, for she came back a moment later saying that her mistress would see the visitors. The Countess entered the drawing-room and glanced with cold displeasure at the intruders.

"What can you possibly want with me?" she demanded. "Perhaps I had better explain," Walter began. "My name is Lance, and I am a nephew of Lord Ravenspur. Lord Ravenspur has a ward who is called Miss Vera Rayne. In other words, I understand that Miss Rayne is really your daughter."

It was a little before five when this strangely assorted group reached Cannon Green. The doctor was just coming away, and Walter asked eagerly after the patient.

"Oh, practically he is no better," the medical man explained. "I mean, he isn't going to get well. Just for the present he is buoyed up with a strong stimulant, and is in full possession of his faculties. He seems to want something, but I can't make out what it is. We gave him a sheet of paper and a pencil just now, and he scribbled a word or two, which, being Italian, we could not make out."

"I think I know what he wants," Walter said. "May I suggest, Countess, that you go to the poor man's bedroom at once?"

Silva's face lighted up as his eyes fell upon his mistress. He pointed to the bandages about his throat. His lips
