THE BOSTON '08 CLUB

What It Represents To Knights of Pythias and What It Is Working For.

In a little less than seven months the eyes and attention of all Knights of Pythias will be centred on the city of Boston, as there, in August next, will be held the bi-annual convention of the supreme lodge and the encampment of the uniform rank. It is mainly upon the latter that general attention is focused. In the grand parade, always a feature of the encampment, it is expected there will be from fifteen to twenty thousand uniformed knights, and the fact that the place selected for the gathering this year being so near to Canada—the first time this has happened for years—is making it specially attractive to members of the order throughout the maritime provinces.

Last June a "Boston '08 Club" was organized in this city, and in the funds of this club the members are putting away sums of money and when the time comes to take the trip each will have a sum towards expenses.

Such clubs have also been organized in Fredericton, St. Stephen, St. John, Moncton, New Glasgow, Halifax and other places, and in each place the members are enthusiastic about the trip and fully expect to send representative numbers.

During September the Boston '08 Club held a mock trial entertainment here and they are now planning for a fancy dress carnival to be held on February 4. All money made out of these entertainments is to be devoted towards taking a band or other expenses of the trip. On Monday evening the annual meeting of the Victoria Company of the Uniform Rank will be held, when action will probably be taken towards working with the Boston club in making a success of the trip.

WHO WILL WORK THE CORSICAN?

Longshoremen Are Divided Over the Question --- What They Claim.

There is some talk of trouble developing in regard to the Allan line steamer Corsican, which is expected here shortly. The steamer is taking the place of the Empress of Ireland, and the longshoremen's association are said to take the ground that on this trip she is a C. P. R. steamer, and that they should work her. The steamship people, however, assert that she will be handled by the rival society, the same as any other Allan boat.

THE SELLING OF LIQUOR

Editor Times:

Sir:—Allow me to make a few remarks on the so-called live question of the 14th inst, wherein you expressed the views of a (Gentleman) who was familiar with the liquor business or engaged in it. One would imagine by the gent's remarks that liquor selling was an art or profession acquired by academic study, and that it was being defiled or debased by a class of a lower order than the would-be reformer. That not being the case it is difficult to see how any one can be deterred from the selling of liquor providing the law grants him the right to do so. If that gent purports to be more cultured and refined, than his brother knights of the bar, and feels ashamed of the associations, his finer feelings should prompt him to withdraw from a business in which the undesirables are allowed to engage, even should the law grant them the legal (if not the moral) right to do so. Naturally the gent in question chooses liquor selling as a means of livelihood, and in a like manner the objectionables did the same. Hence the conjunction and concurrence. Did either possess the aptitude or adaptability for a profession no doubt both would have engaged in it. But as their choice and tastes are the same, they must be content with it, as man like water needs find its own level.

A THOROUGH TEST.

Before these goods were put on the market, the manufacturers sent to India, several hundred specimens of yarns dyed by their new process. These along with corresponding shades from ordinary dyes, were exposed against glass in the strong sun for several months at various times, with the result that while the ordinary dyes became white within a few weeks, the new dyes remained practically untouched and full toned. They may therefore we think, be pronounced unfadeable.
