THE AMERICAN GIRL

A contemporary, speaking of the comedian, George F. Hall, in The American Girl, which will appear at the Opera House on June 14, 15 and 16, has the following comment: The American Girl was the attraction at the Camden Theatre last night, but George F. Hall, with his Nat Goodwin face and Pete Daly conversation, was the hit of the play. H. G. Donelly is the sponsor for The American Girl, and Mr. Donnelly has constructed a play in which the comedy is second to the real interest and in which the farce element is nil. There are several exceedingly strong scenes and there is a plot that maintains its interest.

The story is that of a Virginia girl, Jasmine Carew, who secretly married Philip Devon, an artist, who is separated from her husband by the machinations of Sampson Craft, who wants to marry Jasmine himself. Two children—twins—are born, and the apparently deserted wife follows her husband to England, the villain Craft having forclosed a mortgage on her home and forced her away. She struggles with poverty, but finally finds her husband and friends through the attractiveness of her children. Ross Bolter, a hustler and twister, and a precocious serving maid who becomes famous as a music hall singer in London, furnish the comedy element and assist in untangling the web.

NEW MUSIC AT NICKEL

The Italian trio at the Nickel will enter upon their farewell three days with a programme of selections warranted to attract music lovers in large numbers. By request two of their best successes will be repeated, Suppe's Poet and Peasant Overture in xylophone trio, and the national hymn, O Canada, on baritone, tenor and solo basses. The other numbers will be popular medleys, concert selections and marches. Miss Jennie Evans is to sing a new sentimental song, If You Were Mine, and the orchestra will change its bill.

Last evening, in spite of numerous opposing attractions, the Nickel was largely attended and much interest was manifested. The magnificent Pathe film d'art, The Hunter's Grief, was generally commented upon as one of the richest things yet seen here in motion photographs, with superb acting of the Parisian players and the wealth of scenic detail. Close upon the quality of this conception was the American Vitagraph production, Sweethearts Of Mine, a charming man-reverie in cigarette smoke; and the comedy, An Obliging Friend, the farce of a hypnotist and a lovelorn youth. The Nickel will have some news of special gladness for its patrons by tomorrow, it is expected.

HOLDEN'S COMEDIANS

A rapid fire comedy of wit and humor, Pike's Peek will be the attraction at the Opera House on Friday night, to be followed on Saturday matinee and night by A Drop of Ink. They will be presented by a company of funmakers, Holden's Comedians. Pike's Peek is a real comedy with a real tickle, containing a mountain of laughs and is said to be the greatest mirth provoker of the year. It tells the story of complications that are funny, while its crisp dialogue sparkles like new wine. Presented by a company of comedy experts, it is a merry melange of mirth, music and song.

The sale of seats is now open.

AUSTRALIA TOMORROW, ALSO BURNS AND JOHNSTON

Everybody, take that to yourself, should be at the Old Mission Hall, Waterloo street, tomorrow and see the way our brothers and sisters in Australia conduct themselves, the way they do business. See it all in the greatest of all moving pictures ever shown in this city of ours. See Burns and Johnston in their preparations for the greatest contest the world has ever known; see them training, now bag punching, now running, swimming, skipping, etc., etc. See them in the great contest and after signing the great big cheques that Hugh McIntosh offered for their meeting; see the enormous crowds; see how perfectly they were handled by an army of police, on foot and in the saddle. We can't begin to tell you one-half you'll see at the Old Mission Hall tomorrow. Go! see it for yourself, that's all; if you don't you'll be sorry. 6-10-1i

SAW HER HUSBAND DROWN IN A WELL

Mrs. Thomas Marshall Fought Hard to Save Him But She Could Not.

St. Andrews, June 9—Thomas Marshall leaped out of bed at 2 o'clock this morning, declaring he would drown himself. He ran towards the well in the shed, his wife following him. She tried to restrain him from his mad intention, and there was a desperate struggle on the well opening. Finding she could not dissuade him, and fearing that she would be dragged in the well, she let him go, and he plunged in head foremost. The well was deep, and before she could get help he was dead. The deceased was in poor health, and his troubles had driven him crazy. A wife and child survive him.

A tickling or dry cough can be quickly loosened with Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. No opium, no chloroform, nothing unsafe or harsh. Sold by all druggists.

EXCHEQUER COURT

John P. Leger, of Bathurst, Sues the Government for $25,000 for Losses By Fire.

The attention of the Exchequer Court was taken up yesterday afternoon with the case of John P. Leger, a Bathurst hotel keeper, against the I. C. R.

J. P. Byrne, M. P. P., appeared for the crown, and M. G. Teed, K. C., for the suppliant, who claims $20,000 for damages done by fire. He claims that the I. C. R. freight shed at Bathurst was burned on the morning of May 25, 1908, and caught his hotel about seventy-five feet away, and caused almost total destruction, and that the fault of the fire lay on the railroad officials.

Station Agent Godfrey W. Ellis gave evidence that the fire was started in the freight shed roof by a spark from the locomotive. The shed had been on fire a few days previous to its destruction.

Porter LeBlanc, who is in charge of the freight shed, gave evidence that the roof of the shed was not in a first-class condition. He said it leaked, and often the freight had to be moved to avoid damage. The eaves of the shed almost hung over the track.

Cross-examined by Mr. Byrne, he said that the roof had been somewhat repaired soon before the fire.

John P. Leger, the suppliant, was next called by Mr. Teed. He said that for some time the freight shed was in a dangerous condition, and that on May 24, the day before the fire, he had examined the roof and considered it dangerous. He was awakened about 2 o'clock on the morning of the 25th. At first the fire seemed to be confined to the western side of the freight shed, and he did not fear that it would spread to his premises. He assisted in getting some of the freight from the sheds and afterwards gave his attention to his own buildings. His property was totally destroyed. From his barn he brought out only an express wagon and a cow. The wind was blowing in the direction of his buildings on the night of the fire.

Mr. Leger said that he purchased the property in 1898 from Amos Gallant, and to Mr. Byrne he said that there was a substantial three and a half story brick building on the old site, with barns adjoining.

Mr. Byrne asked the witness whether he was bringing this action in his own name or whether he was not acting in conjunction with insurance companies.

Mr. Teed argued that no objection should be made at this stage to such an agreement.

His lordship said that the defendant had not pleaded this, so it could not now be brought in. Mr. Byrne said that he had not seen the papers until a few days ago.

This closed the case for the suppliant, with the exception of one witness, John Comeau, a carpenter, who, Mr. Teed said, was to give evidence as to the condition of the freight shed roof. Mr. Teed asked that he be given permission to call Comeau later on in the case, as the witness was not able to be in court yesterday afternoon.

The first witness called for the defendant was Rolston C. Lawrence, who was the engineer in charge of the special train which went between Campbellton and Newcastle on the night of the fire. Mr. Lawrence said that the conductor in charge was James Maloney. The train, which was a special freight, passed through Bathurst at 1.35 in the morning. They had a heavy train of about twenty-five cars, and at Bathurst had occasion to take in water and also to shunt one car. He said that he did not see any sparks flying at Bathurst. He did not think that his fireman had occasion to shake down the grate in the engine between Campbellton and Newcastle. If any sparks had been emitted he would have expected to have seen them.

MORE EVIDENCE OF MONTREAL GRAFT

Montreal, June 9—Alderman M. Martin, M. P., was on the stand today in connection with the royal commission enquiry. Ald. Martin is a member of the police commission. It is stated he used his influence to induce saloon keepers to purchase his brand of cigars, and for this favor, it is said, he promised to see that they were taken care of should they ever need the protection of the police commission. He is also said to have promised to see that the police did not needlessly molest his customers.

Frank Brady, an ex-saloon keeper, was also on the stand, and told of his relations with the police. He said he never kept books, but remembered giving Ald. Proulx, chief of the police committee, large sums to be paid to a third party.

Efforts will be made by the commission to find out what Ald. Proulx's connection was with Brady.

The balance of the day was spent in taking evidence of policemen who paid for their positions on the force, or paid for promotions.
