NEW YORK FINANCIAL BUREAU.

New York, Sept. 2.—Temporary sagging tendencies may develop in the market on account of holidays now approaching. In such event the market would probably become overvalued and exhibit rallying operations toward Friday's closing. The general list remains in a steady area. Cross currents should continue.

Some of the low priced specialties are being bought by people, while high priced stocks are sold by professionals. The trading position, therefore, seems to be likely to produce the best results today and tomorrow. An evening up is generally suggestive of neutrality.

Banking interests expect no money tightness even with gold imports pending, and time figures may not go above five p. e. It is reported that the odd lot buying noted by us a few days ago is now expanding. Information channels seem to be in a position to account of the holidays.

Market literature generally quiet. Press comment is favorable to purchases on declines. The Sun says the market is suffering from neglect, the American suggesting purchases on rallies, and the Journal of Commerce anticipating a perfunctory affair until next week. Of important news developments there are little that was not mentioned in yesterday's session on the tickers and elsewhere. Temporarily we suggest a more conservative attitude—N. Y. F. B.

MORNING COTTON LETTER.

New York, Sept. 2.—It is probable that the government report today will be under 66, and it is possible that it will be under 65. Supposing the government's acreage report to be correct this would materially hint to a small crop. Without attempting to argue the case, such a view of the situation, the question becomes one as to whether the early movement can be taken care of above 12 cents.

We must understand that spinners are not bare of stocks, either of goods or yarns, that in practically all quarters of the trade the prices of goods are below parity with the price of raw material, that according to best information obtainable early receipts are to be included a great deal of undesirable cotton. It is to be expected under these conditions that there will be a rush in to take the season's raw supply.

With the publication of the September bureau and a demonstration that the condition figures have been discounted these considerations may attract more attention particularly if cotton begins to head here from the southwest and the movement increases as rapidly as now seems probable.

EARLE HAS ANOTHER

"I became interested in Miss Dunn," said the painter just before he sailed, "because of the magnetism of her mind. And she, too, was drawn to me by my mental powers. When we are together we see only the thoughts of each other. Our bodies, as it were, vanish into space."

Before meeting Ferdinand Pinney Earle Miss Dunn had been famous in the west for physical as well as mental achievements. She not only wrote vividly phrased magazine stories, but she still further astonished her queer neighbors by feats of horsemanship. She was especially fond of riding astride in mannish costume. Frequently she would dash through the streets in cowboy costume or across country at breakneck speed.

When President Roosevelt visited Denver in June, 1905, the horsemanship of Miss Dunn attained national fame. On one occasion the president and his party took a horse ride over the mountains. A number of photographs were taken of the cavalcade. In some of them Miss Dunn was shown riding astride. As soon as the president saw the pictures, he instructed Secretary Loh to order the negatives and prints destroyed.

The mental magnetism of Earle and Miss Dunn began last June in a barn which Charles O. Haag, the Scandinavian sculptor, utilizes as a studio in summer. It is situated in Silvermine avenue, Norwalk, Conn.

The painter had gone to Norwalk to paint a picture of Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, wife of the young millionaire Socialist. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stokes had chanced to be in Norwalk on social occasions, and on being invited to view his work in portrait, had been much impressed by it.

Supreme Court Justice Ames had appointed Walter H. Hill, of North Conway, New Hampshire, as a commissioner to take the testimony of Mrs. Julia Kuttner Earle in an examination before a trial. Mrs. Earle is staying at North Conway.

The testimony, which is to be taken in her own behalf, will be used during the trial brought by her for the annulment of her marriage to Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the artist.

Henry Wellington Wack, attorney for the Earle family, being requested to make a statement, said:

"Mr. Earle went to Europe about a month ago to meet Mazzanovich, the Russian artist, and to undertake important work. Whether or not he was accompanied by Miss Dunn and her coterie of friends of the Three Arts Club I am not exactly informed. It is quite likely that a number of artists accompanied Earle and Mazzanovich on a sketching tour in the Austrian Alps. There is nothing strange or unusual in Earle's departure for his old haunts in Europe, nor in the travelling companionship of a little band of artists."

"I do not believe the story of Earle's interest in another woman, a third affinity as you call her. My impression has been that he was glad to rid himself and his work of all womankind. Notoriety, however sustained, whether by one's own folly or through the claque of social magnificence, is like a tin can orchestration the flight of a dog."

The members of the Artillery Band are requested to attend at the band room to night at 8 o'clock for practice. A good attendance is desired as there are important matters to be discussed. The band will not play at the park tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLean of Fredericton came in on the Boston train this morning and went east at noon.
