A Million a Minute

A Romance of Modern New York and Paris

By Hudson Douglas

(Continued) "Of the last time," he answered, squaring his shoulders again. "We've come through the mill since then, sweet-heart, but—thank God!—we're none the worse."

"Waiter! We want some dinner—the best you can do, only don't bother us. And bring us a bottle of that same Burgundy, will you. It's a lucky bin."

All they said to each other over that meal concerned themselves only. But it may be stated, that when it was over and Quaintance had ordered coffee, a special brew, to be made according to methods imparted to him by a merchant from Mocha whom he had once met on his travels, they both fell silent, looking about them with eyes that were very friendly and well disposed toward the others there. And they were still sunk in such wordless contentment when a cherry voice recalled them from the clouds.

"Elo, Quaintance!" it said, and they looked up swiftly at the grey-haired individual in very correct evening dress who had come forward and stopped beside them.

Quaintance sprang to his feet, hand outstretched.

"God! But I'm glad to see you, O'Ferral," he cried. "Dagmar, this is a little surprise I planned for you. I didn't know whether O'Ferral was in town till I phoned from the bank. A chair, waiter! Where's that coffee? Fetch me my coat—I want my cigarettes. Or will you have something to eat first, O'Ferral?"

"I've dined, thanks."

"Then have a cigar."

Quaintance plunged a hand into his overcoat pocket, pulled forth his case and a couple of letters which he would have tossed to one side had not he caught sight of the postmark on one of them.

He lit a match for O'Ferral, and kindled his own Havana, with frowning eyes on the envelope. Then he slit that open. "Your pardon," he said to the other two, "but I want to see what this fellow says—and forget him."

His wife turned to O'Ferral, to whom she had much to tell. Their voices sounded far away and indistinct to him as he stared, through a thin blue curtain of smoke, at the paper before him. And he stared at it for so long that she at length took him to task.

"What's the matter, Stephen?" she asked, and her eyes grew anxious as she observed the bewilderment in his face.

He looked at her for a moment as if she had been a stranger, and then at O'Ferral.

"I wish you would read that to me," he said in a puzzled whisper. "I don't seem to get the sense of it. That wine must have gone to my head."

O'Ferral glanced at the bottle, more than half full.

"You must have a very weak head, Steve," said he, and took the sheet from his friend.

But his expression also changed as he pursued the epistle. He opened his eyes very wide and pursed up his mouth.

"Read it aloud," Quaintance ordered. "It's from San Francisco, Dagmar—from the lawyers there. Go on, O'Ferral, we're listening."

And O'Ferral obeyed, with good will. "Dear Sir," he began. "We duly received your favor from Paris, enclosing certificates of your marriage to the ward of our late client, Mr. Miles Quaintance, as also proof of your identity, which we have since satisfied ourselves is competent. And in this connection we beg to express our profound regret that we were misled into recognizing Mr. Dominic Seager in your place, but, as you yourself were admittedly the chief contributor to that mistake, we trust you will not hold us unduly blameworthy."

"We note that you and your wife wished, at the time of your wedding, to forfeit all claim to our late client's property, and the steps you took to do so."

"You have evidently forgotten, however, that there is a considerable difference in time between France and the United States of America. The certified hour of your marriage was 12.10 a. m. in Paris, which in San Francisco would be 3.50 p. m. of the previous day, 7.05 p. m. in New York. We have taken the highest legal opinion on this point, and it concludes with our own, viz., that Mr. Miles Quaintance, an American citizen, making his will in America and for the benefit of American heirs, did so on the basis, only and absolutely, of American time."

"We have therefore felt compelled, acting under our late client's explicit instructions, to forward the liquid assets of his personal estate to the bank in New York, to which you kindly referred us. And we wait your orders as to the disposal of the testator's real property."

Mormons in the West Threaten to Hang Two Men and a Woman—Mormon "Church" Rules the People.

Winnipeg, May 27.—The following dispatch has been received from Lethbridge: "A mob of thirty or forty Mormons yesterday mobbed, threatened to hang, and severely handled two men and a woman at Magrath, a Mormon settlement about twenty-two miles southeast of here."

"The matter arose from the marriage a year or more ago of a Mormon girl to a 'Gentile' as the Mormons call all non-members of their church. H. Barclay and his wife, the couple concerned, after their marriage, lived in Calgary. Mrs. Barclay about five months ago returned to her mother's home at Magrath and intended to return to her own home in the course of a week or two. Once back in Magrath, however, her parents and church determined to keep her and in spite of her husband's entreaties she refused to return to him."

"Barclay, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Bolderson, of this city, and a friend named Harrison, went to Magrath to urge his wife once again to come back to him; she refused. He finally declared that if she would not come back he would have his child, which he did."

"A mob got together and Barclay was shackled by a man who called himself 'sheriff.' He, his sister, and Harrison were hauled before a Mormon magistrate who gave orders that the child be returned to its mother and the three 'Gentiles' leave the place on the first train. The three were taken, handcuffed, to the depot by the sheriff, who meanwhile had sworn in deputy 'sheriffs.' They had been in the waiting room some time when a mob appeared. 'We will hang you,' called out some of the mob. 'Get a rope.' The mob rushed the three 'Gentiles,' locked them with keys and thrust them through a window. The top of one of his fingers was severed."

THE SIMPLICITY OF THIS SUIT ITS DISTINCTION.

Not a detail to break the lovely lines of this perfectly cut coat—not even so much as a cuff or a collar. Pockets, not thought of. The suit is built of fawn colored mohair in the silky permo finish, which Paris dressmakers consider particularly smart. Flat braiding in self color adds to the richness of the costume without interfering with the beautiful lines. Silk cord loops over corners are used instead of buttons for fastening.

TOBACCO TABOOED TO PRESBYTERIANS

Edict of American General Assembly Declares That Presbyterian Clergymen and Laymen Should Abjure the Weed.

Denver, Colo., May 27.—Clergymen and laymen should not use tobacco, but it is not contrary to the principles of the church for Presbyterians to grant saloon licenses. This was the decision of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church today.

The assembly expressed itself thus in approving the report of the temperance committee. The report commended President Taft, Emperor William and former President Eliot, of Harvard, for being teetotalers, and urged the ministers of the church to petition congress to stop the interstate shipments of liquor, to continue the issue of internal revenue receipts in prohibition territory and to prohibit the use of the mails for the distribution of liquor advertisements.

A California delegate introduced a resolution declaring that ministers should not use tobacco. A layman arose and declared the resolution should include clergymen. This was done and the resolution was adopted amid cheering.

A commissioner then urged the adoption of a resolution that Presbyterian judges should refuse to grant liquor licenses, even though it be their duty under the law. Several speakers at once opposed this with the argument that a judge should not be criticized for his actions under the law, but the speaker demanded that judges, when confronted with such a situation resign from the bench rather than grant licenses. Commissioners from Pennsylvania said that it was the legal duty of their district judges to issue such licenses and opposed the resolution.

"God grant that our judges do not resign upon such an occasion," said one commissioner, "for such action would only pave the way for worse ones."

The resolution was defeated.

The matter of modern theology came up in the report of the committee on theological seminaries. The recommendation said that while there was a demand for advanced teaching, the doctrine of the church are sufficient to meet modern conditions. Instructors were criticized because of their alleged failure to apply the Presbyterian doctrines to the best advantage.

POLICEMEN HAD TO PAY FOR JOBS

Startling Evidence at Yesterday's Session of the Montreal Royal Commission

Montreal, May 27.—Startling evidence was given at the Montreal royal commission today by Madame Duvergne, the separated wife of Oscar Proulx, brother of Chairman Proulx, of the police committee.

Mrs. Proulx stated that while she was living with her husband several constables had left money with her for Oscar Proulx and that this money was to be paid over to Aid. Proulx as the price of their positions on the police force. She named three men—Constables O. M. Fontaine, who had left several instalments of $10 each with her or her husband, as the price of reinstatement on the force after dismissal; another, Xavier Lacroix, had given her an envelope of money and she wanted some of it, but her husband told her it was for it; and the third, the price of Lacroix's job on the force; another, Euchariste Roy, had handed her $25 in different instalments for the same purpose.

A determined effort was made by Mr. Leblanc to discredit Mrs. Proulx's testimony and to prove that she was an abandoned woman who made her living by prostitution, but the witness denied this throughout a cross-examination of more than an hour, during which she repeatedly broke into tears. She, however, said she had told the story in order to secure vengeance on her husband who, she thought, had treated her badly.

Detective Labege also testified that when the question of promotion came up he was sent for by Quartermaster Holland, of the police department, who told him if he wanted promotion it would cost him $100. He, however, refused to pay a cent, and got his promotion.

A number of other detectives denied having been approached to pay for promotion.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE C. A. EVERETT

Gurney Division Sons of Temperance Passes Resolution of Sympathy in His Death

The following resolution has been passed by Gurney Division, S. of T.:

Inasmuch as our venerable and honored brother, Charles A. Everett, in the fullness of years has gone to his rest, the members of this division desire to record their deep grief at the order which has been the cause of this division's loss, and their appreciation of his splendid life, and their appreciation of the noble character which he has maintained throughout a long and busy life, and to the development of public sentiment in favor of the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

For sixty-two years Mr. Everett was a member of Gurney Division, having been one of its charter members. Connecting himself with the order while yet a young man, through the various gradations of office up to the highest, he has been a constant and devoted member of the Sons of Temperance of Canada and of the United States. To the very close of life he was devoted to the welfare of his division, and was one of those who, when the interest of the members weakened, always stepped forward with a wave of prohibition sweeping over the whole continent. In his efforts to save the number of licenses reduced, the order removed from the streets, and local option victorious in three wards, with bright prospects of further success in the near future.

Both by precept and example, throughout his life, Mr. Everett, at home and abroad, in private and public life, stood fearlessly for the principles of the Sons of Temperance. His influence, he thus exerted in all those years, for he was also an able and convincing speaker, must have been very great, and his example should be an inspiration to every member of the order. It is therefore resolved, that the members of Gurney Division, recording their deep sense of the loss of a noble and patriotic citizen, and of an honored brother, hereby extend to the members of his family an expression of profound sympathy in their great bereavement.

THEY BROKE JAIL AT EDMONDSTON

Ubald and Paul Micha of Baker Brook are Being Hunted By Sheriffs

Van Buren, Me., May 27.—Sheriffs and detectives on both sides of the Maine-New Brunswick border are searching tonight for two alleged desperadoes who escaped today from the county jail in Edmondston (N. B.) where they were being held for attempted train wrecking and dynamiting.

It is believed that the men have fled to American soil and that they were in the neighborhood of Fort Kent (Me.) tonight. The men are Ubald Micha and Paul Micha, brothers of Baker Lake (N. B.).

The two men are charged with tempting the dynamite station at Clair, on the Temiscouata railroad, opposite Fort Kent, and with attempting to wreck the night express from Edmondston at that point. HALIFAX SOON RAISED $100,000 FOR Y.M.C.A.

Halifax, N. S., May 27.—The Halifax Y. M. C. A. building fund campaign has been on for about nine days. The largest single pledge was received this morning, Miss Emily Scarfe, of Dartmouth, promised $7,000 for the reception room, to serve as a memorial to her father, the late Frederick Scarfe, mayor of Dartmouth. This, with the subscription headed by the young men brings the fund up to more than $100,000.

The goal set before the association was $108,000, by June 1, but there is now a possibility that the plans of the proposed building may be changed, providing for an enlarged building to cost $120,000.

HONORS FOR SUPT. INCH

U. N. B. Confers the Degree of L. L. D. on Chief Superintendent of Education About to Resign.

Fredericton, N. B., May 27.—The excellent exercises at the university this afternoon attracted a large and representative gathering and it was the most successful in recent years. The weather conditions were all that could be desired and the hundreds who wandered their way to the old university building, "half way up the hill," were amply repaid for their trouble.

The proceedings were more than usually interesting and the programme was carried out without the slightest hitch.

The addresses by Chancellor Jones, who spoke on behalf of the faculty; Rev. E. B. Hooper, the alumni orator, and F. L. Orchard, class valedictorian, were singularly appropriate and commanded the closest attention.

Lieutenant-Governor Tweedie, wearing his Windsor uniform, occupied the chair, and among those on the platform were: Dr. Inch, Senator Ellis, Hon. George F. Hill, Premier Hazen, Surveyor-General Grimmer, Dr. Thomas Wallis, Bishop Richardson, Inspector Carter, Dr. Bridges, Principal Bridges, Dr. Atherton, Mayor Chestnut, J. D. Phinney, A. S. McFarlane and Registrar Coy.

Those who assisted in presenting the prizes were: Governor Tweedie, Dr. Inch, Premier Hazen, Inspector Carter, Bishop Richardson and A. S. McFarlane.

A pleasing feature of the proceedings was the conferring of the honorary degree of doctor of laws upon Chief Superintendent Inch, whose early retirement from official life has been announced. He was given an ovation as he stepped forward to receive the well merited honor.

Chancellor Jones made the pleasing announcement that Governor Tweedie would continue this year his special prize of $50 for the student making the best general average.

The subject of the Douglas essay next year will be Problem of Transportation of Canada and its Relation to Future Development of the Country.

The results of modern civilization are evidenced in an increase of nervous disorders. It cannot be otherwise with the way we eat, drink, lose sleep, and keep up a continual round of excitement. The work, the worry, the excitement, all tell upon the nerves till they cry out in revolt, and will not be placated till a remedy such as

Mrs. Wm. Levi, Markdale, Ont., writes: "I had for several years been troubled with nervousness, and, like many others, spent lots of money on medicine that did me no good. I was so bad that the least noise would make me jump and my heart would thump so you could hear it plainly and I could not lie on my left side at night. I saw a few testimonials of others and decided to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and to my great joy and surprise they completely cured me and it only took six boxes to do it. I have a neighbor, Mrs. Rickett, and I induced her to try them and they effected a cure. I can endorse their use for anyone afflicted as I was."

JUNK LICENSES

Dealers Must Have Place of Business in Order to Procure One.

A meeting of the bills and by-laws committee was held yesterday afternoon at the instance of Ald. McGoldrick to deal with the question of placing restrictions on junk dealers, who, it is claimed, make a practice of calling at private houses and buying junk from boys in the street. An effort to obtain legislation to prohibit the purchase of junk except at the stores of the dealers was not successful at the last session of the legislature.

After consultation with the recorder, the committee decided to recommend that no junk license should be issued by the mayor unless the applicant gave satisfactory evidence that he had a place of business. A junk license costs $35. The penalty for trading without a license is $40.
