DOCKS AND SLIPS

There is nothing surprising in the statement that a British shipbuilding firm is looking to Canada with a view to the establishment of works in this country. The announcement of the government's naval intentions have altered the whole aspect of affairs in relation to marine development. Canada is to have a navy, and to build one. Add this to the fact that the trade of the country is growing very rapidly, and the shipping interests must also develop along commercial lines, and there is the very best of reasons why a shipbuilding company would desire to take advantage of the opportunity for business.

That St. John would be considered in connection with the establishment of the proposed works is equally natural. It is the chief winter port of Canada, and a railway terminus that must grow in importance with the growth of the country. In its proximity to the great natural resources required for the development of industries it possesses great advantages. Of course any British firm seeking a location will study the commercial map and examine carefully the claims of each port. St. John must take care that its claims and advantages are put forward in the most convincing way.

PROVINCIAL POLICE

At the time the Italian murders were exciting attention in New Brunswick, and at other times when there seemed difficulty in running down criminals in more or less remote districts, it was suggested that a system of provincial police would be of material assistance. It was pointed out that as the province develops and more of the foreign element is introduced there will be the greater need for such a system. One of the Anglican Synod committees the other day declared itself in favor of such a system in all the provinces.

It is interesting to note in this connection that the province of Ontario has just reorganized its provincial department of criminal investigation, and changed the name of the force of constables to the Ontario Provincial Police, whose members will devote all their time and attention to police service. There are at present about 60 provincial constables, but not organized and not exclusively engaged in that work. Under the reorganization the department will be under the attorney general, and there will be a superintendent, a senior and two divisional inspectors. The police officers will be in uniform. As to the scope of their work the Mail and Empire says:

"As a result of the reorganization and consolidation, the provincial police will work under the orders of the central office, free from the interference of local authorities. They will, moreover, co-operate henceforth with the officers of the Liquor License Department and the Game and Fishery Department in the enforcement of the laws with which they are concerned. In the past they dealt only with criminal cases. Constables are enjoined by the regulations to devote all their time to enforcing the criminal laws of Canada, the liquor laws of Ontario, the Ontario game and fishery laws and other provincial Acts. No excuse will be tolerated for allowing unlicensed liquor vendors or disorderly houses to exist in their district. The violation of this rule will mean instant dismissal," say the rules of the department. Constables are required to comply with requests for assistance from Crown Attorneys, license inspectors, inspectors of criminal investigation, game and fishery wardens and coroners in their districts. Inspectors and constables are to be considered to be on duty at all times, and must be prepared to act promptly should their services be required. These regulations will no doubt prevent delays in the commencement of the investigation of crimes."

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN

The jury in Kentville yesterday declared that the charges made against Sir Frederick Borden were not true. Some of the minister's political opponents may have hoped for a different verdict, but if so they were disappointed. The Standard this morning expresses the opinion that the good many questions which the public might desire to have answered were ruled out," but adds:

"In view of the contradictions in the evidence, and the obvious perjuries committed by several of them, it would be difficult for any fair-minded juror on such testimony to convict a minister of the Crown, and condemn him to the loss of his position. That would have been the effect of the acquittal of Caruthers. The jurors had the advantage of seeing the witnesses and could form some opinion of their relative credibility. They were warned to clear their minds of all matters not brought before them directly in the alleged libel. They have found that the statements of Mrs. Allison were untrue, which must be a satisfactory conclusion to the minister and his friends."

MR. BORDEN ONCE MORE

While Mr. R. L. Borden is beating the air in Nova Scotia, denouncing the government and making wild charges against the administration, and even against parliament itself, the Toronto News is delicately pointing out to him that there is a little matter of party business urgently requiring his personal attention. The News says:

"But a convention is needed to unify opinion within the Conservative party, to bind the east and west into a more intimate relationship, and to declare an authoritative programme which no one can misunderstand, and which in all the provinces will be received as the national policy of the Conservative party. A convention is not necessary in order to reconcile any acute conflict of feeling. It is necessary, however, in order that there may be a better mutual understanding between all sections of the opposition, that Mr. Borden may speak with greater authority in parliament, and that the country may know exactly what is the programme of the party, and what will be the course of legislation when it returns to office at Ottawa."

The News is a Conservative paper, of the most pronounced opposition type. It tells Mr. Borden that the party is in need of a policy, and that the country has a right to know exactly what the Conservative programme is. The St. John Standard, which prints portions of Mr. Borden's speech in Halifax last night in block type, is not able to discover in the speech anything but "scandals." But the scandal policy is played out. Parliament and the country have pronounced on the Mayes affair, and all the others to which Mr. Borden refers. He is wasting valuable time, that should be devoted to the task to which the Toronto News directs his attention.

The Grand Trunk Pacific will not traverse a barren wilderness between Quebec and Winnipeg. Canon Tucker told the Canadian Club the other evening of the riches of New Ontario, and an Ottawa despatch adds this information: "The annual report of the National Transcontinental commission shows that a preliminary examination has been made of the country along the whole route from Moncton to Winnipeg, and the result is the discovery that a good many million acres of first class agricultural land has been disclosed, particularly in Quebec and Ontario."

The Massachusetts Democrats are making trade relations with Canada an issue in the state campaign. Speaking at Pittsfield this week, Eugene N. Foss, candidate for lieutenant-governor, attacked Senator Lodge on the reciprocity issue, declaring it was due to him that the Hay-Bond treaty was killed. He asserted that high tariff laws have so irritated Canada that she has built a tariff wall against them. "With freer commerce between the United States and Canada," said Mr. Foss, "we should see our New England seaports once more alive with shipping. We would be able to cut down the cost of living tremendously." He denounced the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill for not only shutting off the people from the cheaper commodities of life, but as being liable to bring the United States into almost open rupture in its commercial relations with Canada.

WANTS TO GIVE MILLION

Albany, Oct. 16.—A New York philanthropist, whose name is withheld, has expressed a desire, through his attorney, to give $1,000,000 for some worthy charity in this state or in New Jersey.

Dr. Robert W. Hill, secretary of the State Board of Charities, received a letter from the attorney asking the best way to distribute the fund. Dr. Hill advised him to consult William R. Stewart, president of the State Board of Charities.

REGRETTIN'

The days are gittin' shorter,
And though I thought that I
Would be glad the long and glory
Days of summer had gone by.
Yet I catch myself a-wishin'
For the summer days once more,
For the bare feet of the babies
Of a mornin' on the floor.

Used to be when days was longer,
When the daylight came at four,
I would hear a sudden patter,
And the creakin' of a door,
I would hear a little giggle,
And a footfall on the stair,
And I'd fix myself all ready
For a most outlandish scare.

But I'd keep right on a-eatin'
Like I didn't hear at all,
Didn't hear the little giggle,
Didn't hear the witchin' fall
Of the bare feet of the baby
Comin' down a-critter her pop,
Just a-eatin' and a-eatin'
Like I never ment to stop.

Then there'd be a rush and scramble,
And a giggling, shrieking, "Boo!"
And a daddy so excited
That he scare know what to do.
Then a babe in a white nightgown,
With a tousled yellow head,
Sitting snuggled to her daddy
Munching on a piece of bread.

Now the days are so much shorter
That I finish up and take
Up my hat and dinner bucket
For the babies are awake.
And I seldom get to see them
Till the nightime, and that's why
I'm regrettin' that the long days
Of the summerime are by.

"George," she rejoined, "you talk like an Arctic explorer."

OF MORE INTEREST.

"Papa," confided the pretty girl shyly, "there is a rumor afloat that I am to be the wife of Count Bluffen."
"Booth!" sneered the old man with a frown. "But—but, don't you know the rumor is gaining currency every day?"
"I'm!" With a gasp she turned. "What I want to know is—is the count gaining any currency?"

SMALL PIECE.

It was at a bacon-and-bean dinner given by a lady to the prisoners in an American jail.
The supply of bacon was always very limited, and a prisoner, having received his share, called out, "I say, warden, you've forgotten the bacon."
The warden, nearly turned round, and the prisoner continued, "No, no, I beg your pardon. I had the bacon put got hidden under one of the beans."

GETTING INFORMATION OUT OF PA.

My pa, he didn't go down town
Last evening after tea.
But got a book an' he ended down
As cuntry as could could be.
I'll tell you I was o'ful glad
To have my pa about.
To answer all the things I had
Been tryin' to find out.

And so I asked him why the world
Is round instead of square,
And why the piggies' tails are curled,
And why don't fish breathe air,
And why the moon don't hit a star,
And why the dark is black,
And just how many birds there are,
And will the wind come back.

And why does water stay in wells,
And why do Jews have a high heel,
And what's the roar I hear in shells,
And when will Christmas come,
And why the grass is always green,
Instead of sometimes blue,
And why a bean will grow a bean,
And not an apple, too.

And why a horse can't learn to moo,
And why a cow can't neigh,
And do the fairies live on dew,
And what makes him always gray,
And then my pa got up and' gee,
The o'ful words he said!
I hadn't done a thing, but he
Just sent me off to bed.

ST. JOHN COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

R. H. Parsons Elected President
—Delegates to Maritime Convention

The St. John County Sunday School Association held their annual convention in Ludlow street Baptist church, Carleton, yesterday afternoon and evening. Much important business was transacted at the meetings and interesting addresses were delivered on Sunday school and church work. Officers for the next year were elected and new committees appointed. The nomination of delegates from the county to attend the Maritime Convention at Chatham also took place. This convention starts on the 24th inst., continuing until the evening of the 22nd.

At the afternoon session yesterday Rev. H. H. Reid acted as chairman in the absence of the president, R. A. Jamieson. The Sunday school service which was to have been the opening feature of the programme was adjourned until the evening so as to give those not able to attend in the afternoon an opportunity of hearing Mr. Cork, of Chicago, assistant international secretary, in one of his strongest lectures.

The business of the convention was taken up after a short service led by Rev. H. H. Reid. The minutes of the last executive committee meeting were read and, after some discussion, adopted.

The following committees were appointed: Nominating, W. J. Parks, Miss Alice Estey, F. R. Murray; resolution, Rev. Wellington Camp; Rev. J. C. B. Appel, Charles R. Wasson; audit, Rev. M. G. Fletcher and I. B. Kierstead; committee on state of county work, F. R. Murray, Miss Whitman, G. A. Belyea, Miss Allan, Mrs. Matthews, Miss E. Brown. The duty of this committee is to examine the reports of the different Sunday schools in the county and submit reports on the county work. The report of the corresponding secretary, Miss Alice Estey, was read and although reports from eleven Sunday schools had not been received, the membership this year in the 36 Sunday schools which did send in their reports, is much larger than last year. Miss Stillwell submitted the treasurer's report in the absence of that officer, R. T. Hayes. The total receipts for the year were $284.80. The balance on hand from different schools in the county is $315, which it is hoped will all be collected in a very short time. The elementary report was read by the secretary, Mrs. Matthews, and showed a large increase in work done over that of last year. Mrs. Matthews resigned from her position after reading the report, but after some discussion was persuaded to continue in that office for another year with the understanding that an assistant would be appointed.

J. N. Harvey submitted the report of the adult department. This report also showed a large increase in the work done and the same was readily adopted. The report of the temperance committee was submitted by W. J. Parks, on behalf of Mrs. T. H. Bullock. Miss Jessie Milligan submitted the report of the International Bible Reading Association department. The amount of work done by this department in the past year is much larger than in former years and Miss Milligan was complimented on her good report.

After some discussion on special features of the reports, the delegates adjourned to the school room where an excellent luncheon was served. The hall was tastefully decorated with cut flowers, flags and bunting and presented a pretty appearance.

After dinner the delegates went to the church parlors when the nominations of officers took place. The following are the officers for next year: President, R. H. Parsons; vice-president, Rev. J. H. A. Anderson; corresponding secretary, Miss Alice Belyea; recording secretary, T. H. Belyea; treasurer, Gordon Flewelling; teachers' training, Mrs. Seymour; elementary department, Mrs. W. C. Matthews; adult Bible class, T. H. Parsons; international Bible Reading Association, Miss Jessie Milligan; home department, Miss Bowman.

The delegates appointed to represent the County Association at the Maritime Convention to be held in Chatham next week are: R. H. Parsons, Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs.

After the appointment of delegates Hugh Cork, assistant international secretary, held a conference with the delegates on the teacher's work between Sundays and on methods of intensification and extension. The conference was very instructive and Mr. Cork brought up some important matters in connection with the teaching of Sunday schools.

A Sunday school service was held similar to that held by the Sunday school in Philadelphia under the direction of John Morrison, which has the largest membership of any school in America. This service took an hour and the exercises were most interesting.

After an address by the newly elected president, Rev. J. H. A. Anderson, B. D., spoke on The Personal Touch. Mr. Cork delivered a short address on The Preparation of Ourselves. Mr. Cork's address was well delivered and he brought out many points of interest in religious life. The convention closed with the benediction by Rev. W. R. Robinson, B. D., and the business accomplished was most satisfactory.

The use of Parisian Sage took away all the trouble, healed and removed the sores, made my head feel cool, and caused the hair to grow in nicely." J. W.
