Fashion Hint for Times Readers

BLACK TIES A FAD OF THE SUMMER.

So smart are black neckties this summer that it is almost impossible to buy a black Windsor tie in any of the shops. Even the boys' counters have been depleted. These black ties are run through heavy Irish lace collars and stocks in various ways. Sometimes the tops of turnover lace collars are turned over the black tie and a pert bow tied in front. In this instance a bow of black taffeta ribbon is used with a Puritan collar of tucked batiste and Irish lace, the ribbon passing through openings in the collar.

DO NOT BE HUMBLED.

MORE THAN EVER

Dishonorable and disreputable pharmaceutical concerns are flooding the market with cheap and worthless preparations designed to be imitations of "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."

Some of these are even labelled "Extract of Wild Strawberry," "Wild Strawberry Compound," etc., in the hope that the public may be deceived and led to purchase them, thinking they are getting the genuine "Dr. Fowler's."

Are you willing to risk your health—perhaps your life, to these no name, no reputation, likely dangerous, so-called Strawberry Extracts?

For sixty-five years "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry" has been used by thousands of families for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Summer Complaint, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum and all Bowel Complaints.

Do not let the dishonest or unscrupulous dealer humbug you into accepting one of these cheap substitutes, to the detriment of your health and gain to his pocket.

Ask for "Dr. Fowler's" and insist on getting what you ask for. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35 cents.

CLOSE CALL FOR TARIFF BILL IN U. S. CONGRESS

Passes By Only Twelve Majority—Mann Declares Canada is in the Position to Dictate—Twenty Republicans Against Measure

Washington, July 31.—The house tonight adopted the conference report of the tariff bill, 153 to 133. The Republicans shrank in their delight over the final outcome, and Chairman Payne was the central figure of an admiring and congratulating crowd of colleagues.

Twenty Republicans voted against the report and two Democrats for it. The vote was the climax of an eleven-hour session, conducted through most oppressive heat, but enlivened by a dozen or more speeches of more or less fiery nature. The temperature did not deter a vast throng from going to the capitol to witness the closing scene.

The day opened with what appeared to be part of an organized filibuster against the conference report, when Mr. Mondell, Wyoming, demanded the reading of the lengthy document. This reading proceeded for about an hour and a half when, with about two-thirds remaining to be read, Mr. Mondell permitted the debate to go on.

Chairman Payne defended the report and appealed to his Republican colleagues to support it, prophesying at the same time that when the bill was enacted into law it would meet with the approval of the country.

Under the maximum and minimum clause, he said, the charge of $1.67 a ton of wood pulp would be increased to $5.67 a ton.

"That maximum," he exclaimed, "is sure to go into effect between Canada and this country and until Canada removes her restrictions on the exportation of pulp."

Mr. Mann said that all Canada needed to do was to stand pat and say "you have got to have our paper and pulp in some form. You will take it in the form of paper from us."

Canada, said Mr. Mann, is as wise and as keen as the best leaders of the Republican party.

"They will know," he asserted, "that they hold the whip hand."

Should Canada prohibit the exportation of wood pulp, Mr. Mann argued, that Maine and New Hampshire would raise the price of pulp wood and that print paper would go up. He declared that instead of the revision of the tariff reducing the price of print paper, the threat of three cents a pound or 800 a ton would soon be past history.

Mr. Mann vehemently denounced the senate for its action in conference committee. "I am tired," he said, amid applause from both sides, "of seeing this body constantly yield to the insistent demands of a few senators. Let them vote as they please. It is our duty to stand by what we believe to be right."

Mr. Malby, New York, said that the Illinois member was placing his personal judgment against that of every man who had tried to build up the paper industry in the United States.

Although paper-making was fourth among other industries, he said, the returns were miserable. He predicted that if the bill pass there would be no American money put into paper manufacturing in the United States.

Mr. Clayton, Alabama, said a parallel case was made and jute bolls, which were free and out of which cotton bagging was made and yet a tariff was levied on cotton bagging for the benefit of the manufacturer.

Continuing, Mr. Malby declared that the newspapers were reaping marvelous dividends from their investments. "No one inquires how wealthy they are," he said, "and no one inquires how little a poor paper maker is making."

ARREST PORTER ON THE AUSTIN

Colored Man Suspected of Recent Thefts on Steamer

Boston, Mass., Aug. 1.—The mystery of the series of robberies on the steamer Calvin Austin, of the Eastern S. S. Company, plying between this port and St. John (N. B.), by which the past two years the boat and its passengers have lost thousands of dollars, is believed by the police of this city to have been cleared up with the arrest today of Thomas W. Wright, aged 21, a colored porter on the steamer.

During the past two seasons the steamship company has used many devices to ferret out the thief, Canadian police officers traveling on the boat and private detectives being employed but all efforts have proved fruitless. When the Austin left Boston last week, however, on the trip just ended today, Inspector Patrick Gattis, of the bank squad of the Boston police sailed on her, having given up one week of the advertisements for the purpose of solving the mystery. On the return trip suspicion was fastened on Wright with the result that when the boat arrived today he was arrested.

Upon being searched he was found to have two watches which had been reported stolen, one of which was valued at $75 and the other at $50. The police claim they recovered more than $600 worth of booty in the man's room in Roxbury. On his person was also found a bankbook, showing that in the last 35 days he had deposited in a Boston bank about $250. He is held by the police on the specific charge of the larceny of two watches. He will be given a hearing tomorrow.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

The Public are Warned to be Careful of These Strong Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—any more.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. By thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Any good druggist or dealer can supply the large 25c. bottles of Nerviline.

REVENUE OF CANADA GROWS

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—The customs revenue of the dominion continues to expand in a most satisfactory manner. The receipts for the month of July, ended today, total $3,913,186, as compared with $3,272,518 in July of last year, being an increase of $1,580,728. For the first four months of the fiscal year the increase is $2,544,487.74, the comparative figures being: 1908, $14,438,745.13; 1909, $18,033,153.87.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier left this afternoon for Montreal, and after spending the night there will proceed over the Canadian Northern to Charlotte Mills, where he will take an auto for the club house on the Shawinigan Fish & Game Club. After a week or ten days there he will go on to Arthabaska and will not be back in Ottawa until the end of August, unless affairs of state compel his return.

RECUPEATION—there is not so much in the ordinary vacation as there is in a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses the system, sharpens the dulled appetite, restores the lost courage. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla this summer.

Mr. Doyle—What did Oi do wid me hat? Mrs. Doyle—Yez lift it on yer head. Mr. Doyle—Begorra, jist now therrin Oi will be leavin me head in the hat.

TROOPS HALT PROCESSION OF U. M. W. AT GLACE BAY

Glace Bay, Aug. 1.—Saturday's proceedings proved to be the most striking event of the trouble at Glace Bay. The programme of the U. M. W. was published for some days and on Friday steps were taken at Dominion and attempted at Glace Bay to prevent the procession from taking place. The reason offered was that Saturday was pay day and that a large public gathering on that day would be dangerous to the peace.

The United Mine Workers were at first inclined to consider this objection and consider a modification of their plans, but later they alleged that the draft of the by-law passed at the emergency meeting of the Dominion town council and the requisition sent to Mayor Douglas, were both prepared in the office of the Dominion Coal Company, so they decided to proceed with the programme as announced.

At the head of the U. M. W. procession from Glace Bay rode four Glace Bay policemen in a carriage, behind came District President MacDougall on horseback. Then a band and next on foot came the international and district officers. Behind these again came the ten U. M. W. locals, all with banners. The number of men in it varied according to the counts made at different points along the route and when passing the residence of Rev. Dr. Thompson, cheers were given by many of the men.

As the procession neared Dominion gophers were sent ahead and came back with the report that the troops were drawn up under arms at front of their tents. They were standing at ease with bayonets fixed. As soon as the first glint of steel was seen the procession halted. There was a little deliberation and then the 2,000 or more miners counter-marched and started back to Glace Bay.

Everything was ready at Dominion to stop them had they come to the line and tried to enter in spite of the council's resolution.

In addition to the detachment of artillery and infantry under Capt. Almon, stationed at the bridge, 100 infantry were held in reserve a distance in the rear. These men were brought in on a special train and when the procession moved off they were taken to the other side of the town, as it was thought that the strikers might attempt to get into the town by another route. In all there were about 300 soldiers stationed in various parts of the town and General Drury was present in person to direct the operations.

Returning to Glace Bay, a meeting was held at the rear of the rink on an open site. Fully half the men dropped out on the way back and it was a comparatively small crowd that was finally addressed by the speakers.

The first speaker was District President MacDougall. He discussed the situation and declared that the hand of all the authorities was against the strikers.

The steamer Chr. Knudsen with a cargo of 7,000 tons of coal from Philadelphia for the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., arrived at Sydney this morning. This is the second cargo of American coal received by that company since the beginning of the strike. After discharging the Knudsen will resume her charter with the Dominion Coal.

Fix Up Your Veranda in Summer

The most popular place just now in city and country is the veranda. It is used more today than ever before. Part of the veranda should be screened off as a dining room, or a little balcony porch built out of the second story for sleeping purposes. The desire for breathing fresh air is becoming more and more a part of the necessary arrangement of sleeping quarters. If, wherever it is possible, to "wind a porch nowadays, there you will find it."

The most serviceable treatment: of the floor of a porch is to paint it. The color should be selected with regard to footprints and a slate color is the best. Two coats should be given the porch when new, and it will last a couple of years before repainting is necessary. It should be washed every few days, and a little milk in the water will give it a glossy appearance.

The furnishings of the veranda or porch can be as simple or as elaborate as one wishes. This is the day of porch furniture and one can carry out almost any scheme he has in mind. A good plan is to select the coolest corner of the porch and furnish it, as a sort of reception room, with articles which will not be ruined by bad weather. The first thing to consider in protection from the sun. This can be done by means of vines of Virginia creeper or ivy, but an even better and cooler way is to have screens of Japanese matting which can be let down or rolled up at will. If rugs are desired, let them be the old-fashioned rag-rugs or the new Crex rugs. Chairs and tables should be of wicker because of its durability; or the wicker furniture with its easy chairs and chairs with footrests and a basket at each side for books or sewing. A table of the same material is quite an addition and is useful in serving afternoon tea. You have now an excellent place for receiving your friends in warm weather and a social place of gathering for the family in the evenings.

CHAPTER VI.
Wherein Warden Sets a New Course.

Warden's theatre-going that evening resolved itself into a stroll in the park and an early return to his chambers. Before going out, he had thrown a towel over the calabash, and told the porter not to touch anything in the sitting-room. The plan was effective; the man of Oku created no disturbance.

Oddly enough, the young officer was now beginning to understand the mesmeric influence which Evelyn Dane and Peter Evans acknowledged instantly and with this admission came the consciousness that the negro's mask lost its power unless actually in evidence. Hence, none of the vapors and misty fancies of the preceding hours interferred with his rest. He slept soundly, rose betimes, and ate a good breakfast—unfailing signs these of a sound mind in a sound body.

Yet he might have been puzzled if called on to explain why he liberally placed the gonzal in a sponge-bag, and put it in his portmanteau before returning to the Isle of Wight. His action was, perhaps, governed by some sense of the fitness of things. If it were ordained that the presentment of the dead and gone M'Wanza should occur again at the world during a period when the fortunes of his country were at stake, it was not for Warden to disobey the silent edict. He was not swayed solely by idle impulse. In bringing the head to London he meant to please the only people who knew of its existence; he ignored their wishes now because he felt a tug at his heart-strings when his thoughts reverted to the wretched history of Domenico Garcia. The instant he arrived at this decision it ceased to trouble his mind further.

Before going to the station he made a few purchases and, being near Pall Mall, thought he would secure any letters that might happen to be at his club. Among others he found a pressing invitation from Lady Hilbury asking him to call when in London. Now, he was, in a degree, a protégé of her ladyship. Her husband was a former governor of Nigeria, and her friendly assistance had helped, in the first instance, to lift Warden out of the ruck of youngsters who yearly replace the ranks of officialdom in West Africa. It was more than probable that Sir Charles and Lady Hilbury would be out of town and a note written at their residence would show that he had visited them at the earliest opportunity.

To his surprise, Lady Hilbury was at home, and insisted that he should stay for luncheon.

Behold, then, Warden installed in a cozy morning-room, exchanging gossip with his hostess, and his parcels and portmanteau given over to the butler's care. He was irrevocably committed to an afternoon train when Lady Hilbury electrified him with a morsel of news that was as unexpected as any other shock that had befallen him of late.

"By the way, an old friend of yours is staying with me," she said—"Mrs. Laing—you knew her better as Rosamund Miller, I fancy?"

Warden schooled his features into a passable imitation of a smile. Mrs. Laing—the pretty, irresponsible Rosamund, Miller—was the last person he wished to encounter, but he was quick to see the twinkle in Lady Hilbury's eyes, and he accepted the inevitable.

"I shall be glad to renew the acquaintance," he said. "It was broken off rather abruptly—at Government House if I remember aright."

"Poor Rosamund! That was her mother's contriving, she never really liked Laing, but he was what people term a 'good match,' and he has at least justified that estimate of his worth by dying soundly."

"Of course, why not?"

"There are those in the administration who are jealous of his record," she said. "Not every one has his tact in dealing with natives. It is no secret that our relations with the emirs of the interior have been strained almost to breaking point of late."

A motor stopped outside the house and a bell rang. Lady Hilbury bent forward. Her voice sank to a new note of intense conviction.

"You have been given a great opportunity, Arthur. It may come sooner than you think. Grasp it firmly. Let no man supplant you, and it will carry you far."
