ANOTHER BOOMERANG

Having failed to ruin Hon. Mr. Pugsley by means of a certain kind of affidavit, read by Premier Hazen, the Conservative ring tried the commission plan. And yesterday they placed before the House of Commons the report of a certain kind of commission.

THE LICENSES

Toronto, like St. John, has been reducing the number of its liquor licenses, and it, too, is considering how far the entering wedge is to be driven. Citizens there are discussing a substitute for the bar as a place of resort. The Toronto Star says of the question:

"FIGHTING JOE"

The cable told us yesterday what the British electors had done to "Fighting Joe" Martin. They buried him. It is of interest to note, after the event, that Joseph's fate was predicted. The prophet is the editor of the Canadian Collier. In a late issue he discoursed thus breezily of Joseph's history, his qualities, and his madness in seeking the bubble reputation even at the hands of a constituency like Stratford-on-Avon:

"It was a safe bet that Joe Martin, K. C., couldn't stay quiet. You may hitch the old fire-horse to the barge-wagon, but you can't keep him from snuffing the smoke. Joe took a long chance when he vowed he had cut politics out before he asked politics whether they would do the same by him. The trouble was that he went to England with a wrong notion of the Mother Country. He had been thinking of it as a rest cure, a place to get old in without noticing it, a sure retreat from the things which chafe the heart, gray the hair, and wear the nerves to a frazzle. He was not aware that a new England had sprung up, which makes more ado over its matters of state than, than—well, say France. The quality of the Englishman has changed. He is not a stoic any longer. No Latin could be headier, noiser, over the questions of the day. No more are English politics a sort of indolent cud-chewing for the leisure classes; they are every man's meat when they are not his poison. England has more politics than all the rest of the world put together, because world politics are her business. Into this kettle of fish Joe Martin, looking for a soft, old age, incontinently plumped. It is Canada, hotter a hundred times. The wild west in Joe Martin said: 'Go in; the water's warm.' And go in he did. No little plunge at that—Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare's old constituency—nothing less. Stratford-on-Avon will probably turn Joe Martin down. It has returned a Tory ever since Shakespeare didn't run for it, now four hundred years ago, and Joe is a Liberal. Shakespeare, it will be remembered, got the worst of it at times from Stratford-on-Avon, and how can Joe Martin, a mere stranger, expect better treatment than such a distinguished Old Boy as Wild Wood Will? Meanwhile, we picture Joe touching up the Stratford-on-Avon electors on their Shakespeare like this: 'Burn all the records of the realm; my mouth shall be the parliament,' or addressing them in terms of Mark Antony's oration, this way: 'Friends, Britons, countrymen, lend me your ears, and if I don't make them tingle before I give them back, my name isn't Martin.'

THE LICENSING

The steam roller has passed over Mr. Martin, but let no man on that account judge him dead. He will revisit the glimpses of the political moon. The farther he falls the higher he bounces.

FATHERHOOD
(Covey's Pastore.)
My little son who look'd from thoughtful eyes,
And moored and spoke in quiet, grown-up wile,
Having my law the seventh time disobeyed,
I struck him and dummies'd
With hard words and unkind's'd,
His mother, who was patient, being dead,
Then, fearing lest his grief should hinder sleep,
I visited his bed
But found him slumbering deep,
With darken'd eyelids, and their lashes yet
From his late sobbing wet.
And with moon,
Kissing away his tears, left others of my own.
For, on a table drawn beside his head,
He had put, within his reach,
A box of counters and a red-reveling stone,
A piece of glass abraded by the beach,
And six or seven shells,
A little with hickell's,
And two French copper coins, ranged there
With careful art.
To comfort his sad heart.
So when that night I pray'd
To God I went and said:
Ah, when at last we lie with tranced breath,
And those remembered of what toys
We made our joys,
How weakly understood
Thy great commanded good,
Then, fatherly, not less
Than I whom thou hast molded from the clay,
Thou'lt leave thy wrath and say:
"I will be sorry for their childishness."

IN LIGHTER VEIN
ANOTHER HATCHWAY.
"What's old Squire Hicks doing limping about these days?" asked the windmill drummer.
"Why, the squire fell over the hatchway and hurt his foot," chuckled the village cut-up.
"Hatchway? Has the squire been aboard a ship?"
"Naw. He fell over an old incubator in Josh Weatherby's barn."
CHICKS THAT NEVER RETURNED.
"Yes," said the suburbanite as he wielded a hoe, "I am fond of poultry dinners."
"That it is a wonder you don't raise chickens instead of flowers!" remarked the mutual friend.
"What's the use? My neighbors raise the chickens."
NOT CONGENIAL.
Mrs. Purser—"It is true that you have applied for a divorce."
Mrs. Verser—"Yes!"
Mrs. Purser—"Upon what grounds?"
Mrs. Verser—"On the ground of temperament. He is a poor, you know, and I like to eat at least once a day."

PROVINCIAL NEWS
New Brunswick
The herring catch at Shediac so far has been small. Mr. Guntel, of Grand Manan, has opened his smokehouses and will run his industry as in former seasons.
Point du Chene is opening up for the season. Two schooners recently arrived there from Charlottetown, P. E. I.
The case against Stipendiary Magistrate Peck, of Albert, who was arrested on a charge of technical theft in refusing to give back to the owner a Roman Catholic prayer book which had been used in evidence in a civil suit, was dismissed on Friday by Justice Stevens, of Riverview.
A. H. Fryers, of Moncton, I. C. R. locomotive engineer, who sustained such severe injuries in the mail train wreck near Campbellton, three months ago, is still confined to his bed, and it will probably be another month before he will be able to be around. Mr. Fryers was badly scalded and the wounds are slowly healing. He has had a long siege, and his many friends will sympathize with him in his affliction.
On Wednesday before H. H. James Esquire, Judge of Probate for Kent County, application for letters of administration of the estate of the late W. H. Hogan was made by W. D. Carter, acting on behalf of W. J. Mahoney, barrister, of St. John, proctor for the petitioner, James E. Hogan, uncle of the deceased. A citation was ordered returnable June 11th next. The estate was probated at $6,400 personal property, including life insurance. There was no real estate.

Nova Scotia
The Gloucester fishing schooner Georgie Campbell, Capt. Thomas Flanagan, which was driven ashore by the ice at Point Tupper on Sunday week, was towed into North Sydney on Monday by the tug James Reid. The Campbell left Gloucester on March 8, and has 100,000 lbs. of fish on board. Her bottom has been damaged considerably as a result of her going ashore and she is making considerable water.
The government steamer Minto, Capt. Finlayson, arrived in North Sydney on Monday morning from Cape Bay, where she had been landing Marconi operators and supplies for the station. Capt. Finlayson reports a great deal of heavy ice on the Cape Breton coast, but none in the Gulf north of St. Paul's. The Minto will take in Bunker coal and proceed up the Gulf of St. Lawrence to assist incoming steamers up the river.
The powerful ocean-going steel tug which arrived at North Sydney on Monday from Point Tupper with the Gloucester fishing schooner Georgie Campbell in tow, came through the Bras d'Or Lakes. The boat is owned by the Reid Wrecking Co., of Sarnia, Ont., and has been laid up at Mulgrave all winter. Last fall she was engaged in an effort to float the steamer Turret Bell, wrecked at the north side of P. E. Island over two years ago. The tug will return to Mulgrave from here and later go to the Island to resume operations at the Turret Bell.
On Tuesday, at Halifax, before His Honor Judge Wallace, H. A. Bogue, charged with obtaining land warrants by fraudulent representations, elected to be tried summarily, the time for the trial being fixed at half-past ten o'clock on next Saturday morning. Mr. Bogue appears to feel very keenly the position in which he is placed. He was admitted to bail, himself in $400 and one surety, the amount fixed in the lower court.

Helpful Household Hints
The pan under the broiler of a gas range may be easily cleaned by sprinkling cornmeal to absorb the grease and then scrape off with a cake turner. The pan should then be washed in hot water.
Do not wash your milk bottles in hot water, as the heat drives the milk into the glass. A thorough rinsing in cold water, immediately after the bottle has been emptied is sufficient.
A new way of beating the yolks and the whites of eggs together is to first beat the whites until light and then add the yolks and beat again.
A can of enamel paint will make any straw-colored waste-paper basket harmonize with your furniture and furnishings if you choose an appropriate color and apply it to the basket evenly.
If a small strip of court plaster is applied to the tips of gloves turned inside out, with the sticky part toward the glove, they will wear longer.
Mrs. Emily P. Collins, a real Daughter of the Revolution, an army nurse during the American civil war, and one of the original women suffrage champions of the country, died last night at her home in Quincy, Mass., aged 94 years and eight months.
To prevent the smell of onions which is so offensive on the breath, eat a sprig of parsley.

Craze for Jewelry
With the opening of the present season the craze for all kinds of jewelry is noticeable. The summer fashion plates all show women wearing enormous pieces, representing either an animal, a symbol or a society emblem. Even the unfortunate friends of the woman who has got the craze are likely to have their faces dragged into public oftener than they themselves would desire. For the latest thing in this class of jewelry is a brooch in the form of a frame, oval in shape, made either of gold, silver or tortoise-shell. My lady looks over the photographs of her friends, picks out the one which she considers the most desirable and uses it as an adornment at her neck.
The jewelers are catering to the craze, as they are bringing artistic ornaments within the reach of the smallest purses. What my lady wears, in gold and diamonds, is being manufactured for Belinda in brass and paste.
The big ear-rings have taken better hold since the opening of the spring, and the manufacturers look forward to a very decided advance in the ear-ring business as the summer approaches.
New coiffure ornaments naturally come with the introduction of the Grecian style of wearing the hair. These creations are elaborate and unique and are very popular.
Fashion decrees that the necklace is a necessary ornament. Many new designs are in the shops. A very pretty one seen recently gave the effect of a black ribbon woven in a gold chain.
An increasing wave of prosperity is sweeping over the United States, according to that usually accurate barometer of prosperity conditions—the gross postal receipts. The receipts at fifty of the largest cities for the month of March last, show an increase over the same month last year of $1,178,921 or 1.45 per cent., the normal rate of increase being about five per cent. Similar statements show increases for January last of 6.09 per cent. and for February of 4.73 per cent. over the same month of last year.
