BEAUTIFUL PARISIAN IMPORTED GOWN.
This beautiful gown is fashioned of a soft, lustrous cloth. It is built on graceful lines, the high belt being in one with the skirt, and the blouse is of a brown satin to match the skirt. The long sleeves have horizontal tucks, and a fitting of big fibred net at the hands. There is a fluting of the waist over the left side, the net flaring over the neck also. There is a gold mesh scarf at the neck, with one end drooping over the left shoulder, the other peeping through the bodice at the bust line.

THE MESSAGE
By LOUIS TRACY

Author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Wheel of Fortune," "The Captain of the Kansas," etc.

There was no trouble at the entrance to the compound. The guards were Moors recruited from the seaboard provinces, well-paid hirelings whom the Blue Man could safely order to kill any obnoxious members of his own tribe. Were they Arabs, they might have suspected Warden's accent, but the patois they used was almost unintelligible among the desert folk. So Warden spoke with a harsh distinctness.

"Go, one of you," he said, "and tell the glorious successor of the Prophet that the daughter of Beni Kalli awaits his pleasure."

"This well," he said, "Even now the Holy One asked why she tarried. Who art thou, brother?"

"What, then, must the renowned son of Mahmood suffer further delay?" cried Warden, even more loudly.

He risked a good deal, because some true Arab might be within earshot, and there are gutturals in the nomadic language of Northern Africa that no European throat can reproduce.

But his fearlessness was justified. A snarling voice reached them where they stood.

"Bring the girl hither," it growled, and the two were allowed to pass instantly.

Warden's heart throbbed a little faster as he half dragged the cowering negress across the courtyard. She knew what was going to happen, and had been coached as to her behavior, but she was only a child, and her fear was great for her father and herself. She could not believe that this gaunt Christian, the man whom she had seen working daily among the Nila Moulah's slaves, could really accomplish the task he had undertaken. So she whimpered and shrieked, and the man behind her arm and whispered a few words of encouragement.

The prophet's habit of concealing himself as much as possible from his adherents was now more helpful than a hundred armed men. He was supposed to pass day and night in meditation. None had ever seen him eat or sleep. To carry out this pose he seldom appeared from behind the thick mats which veiled the front of the room he occupied.

A lamp was burning within. When Warden lifted a corner of one of the mats, he saw a grotesque and ghoul-like figure seated cross-legged on a praying carpet. Two red-rimmed, glittering black eyes gazed fixedly at him, and a hand sought under a cushion for a weapon, since none dared to pass that screen without direct instructions. Warden turned quickly and pushed the girl forward.

"Beni Kalli was slow in fulfilling your wishes, O worthy of honor," he exclaimed, bowing low yet advancing the while, and never relaxing his grip on the unhappy negress. Her manifest reluctance explained the rough ways of an Arab.

"There are means to make him speedy," he chuckled, rising.

That was what Warden wanted. In raising himself, the moulah was momentarily off his guard. In the next instant he was lying with his face on the floor, a strong hand was across his mouth pulling his head back until his neck was almost dislocated, while the blade of a sharp knife rested most suggestively across his throat.

"Turn the lamp low," said Warden to the girl. His voice was quiet and reassuring, but she was so completely unmoved that she nearly put out the light, which would have been awkward. Happily, she avoided that blunder.

"Now listen, you dog!" muttered Warden, slightly relieving the tension on the Blue Man's spinal column. "Do as I bid, and I shall spare your life. Say but a

SATURDAY'S EVIDENCE IN THE McDUGALL CASE

In the police court Saturday the preliminary hearing in the case of C. Bruce McDougall, charged with defamatory libel, was begun. Dr. A. W. MacRae and J. B. M. Baxter, K. C., appeared for the prosecution and J. C. Sherren, of Moncton, for the defence. The court room was filled with people who for the most part followed the developments closely. Mr. Sherren, on behalf of his client, offered bail with the prisoner's two brothers for surety but the magistrate refused to grant it on the ground that the crown was ready to go on with its case. The court was adjourned about 12 o'clock till this morning at 11 o'clock.

Night Detective Luens and George Merissee were the only two witnesses examined and the prosecution took the first step towards establishing the connection of the defendant with the paper Free Speech. The testimony of Luens was merely formal and adduced to prove the imminence of the libel as complained of. Copies of Free Speech containing references to Dr. MacRae, Mayor Bullock, D. Mullin, K. C., and Ald. J. H. Frink were admitted in evidence subject to an objection entered by Mr. Sherren.

The examination of Merissee brought out some interesting information. He is one of the two Greeks related for selling Free Speech and he arrested particulars of his connection with it. He said he went to Moncton about a week after June 1. While there he saw defendant at his house and talked to him about Free Speech and how well the papers were selling in St. John. Witness opened the conversation, he said, by asking the defendant if he was Mr. McDougall. To this defendant replied, "Oh yes, as far as I know." Merissee then told him that he was acting as his agent in St. John.

In answer to questions by Mr. Baxter, who was conducting the examination, the witness said he could not himself write English and he got a friend to write for him to McDougall. The name of this friend he refused to remember perfectly. He only knew, he said, that his first name was Roy. Mr. Baxter asked him if it was not Roy Harding but witness did not think so. An answer had been received to this letter but he could not tell what had become of it. The letter in question was typewritten and he could not tell whose signature was on it as he could not read English.

Mr. Baxter—"Could you not take a piece of pencil and paper and show us what the signature was like?"

Witness—"No."

Mr. Baxter—"Oh come now, did you not show me with a pencil and paper in the store what the signature was like?"

Merissee did not seem to comprehend this question and Mr. Baxter left the point. Owing to the witness' ignorance of English he said he had got the same friend who wrote to McDougall to read the letter in reply. That was the only one he had ever received and it had disappeared after he placed it on a shelf in his store. He was clear, he said, that the letter authorized him to act as the agent of Free Speech in St. John.

Continuing, Merissee said Free Speech sold for five cents a copy and every week he had sent three cents a copy to Moncton. This money, witness declared, went by Canadian express money orders payable to B. McDougall.

Counsel for the defence entered an objection at this point to which Mr. Baxter retorted: "Oh, it does not make such a great deal of difference but I may tell you that these receipts will be here Monday morning at 11 o'clock."

It was because of what was contained

rived he knew what it was and immediately sent it back to the post office unopened. About three months ago Free Speech was debarred from the use of the mails by the postmaster-general of Canada.

MONACELLI'S TRIAL ON OCTOBER 19

Woodstock, N. B., Aug. 21.—The same keen interest was shown in the Legan murder case this morning as was in evidence yesterday and many spectators were present.

Magistrate Dibblee presided. Stipendiary Magistrate Holyoke was also present, and Hon. Mr. McLeod represented the crown, Chris Nichols was interpreter, and T. C. L. Ketchum stenographer.

Sandy Monacelli, the prisoner, came into the court room in the custody of Chief Kelly. He was dressed in a light suit of clothes, wore a soft hat, and was without a necktie. He did not at all seem nervous during the examination. The revolver used was a 32 short double action Young America.

The first witness was Deputy-Sheriff Armstrong, who said he was called to Beechwood at 1.30 on Sunday morning, arriving about 4 o'clock. He drove to Mr. Wallace's house. The revolver shown was given to him by Dr. Ross, the five shells all discharged. The revolver was offered in evidence. Dr. Ross was in the house before he arrived and the injured man had been removed to the train which took him to Woodstock hospital.

Herbert Lindsay, sworn, said he was constable for this county. He knew the prisoner. The first time he saw him was the night of the arrest. He went into the car about 9 o'clock. An Italian, Dominick, was with them. The prisoner came at 10.45 to the cars and whistled. Dominick told the prisoner to go to the other door. Prisoner did so, and he and W. W. Melville arrested Sandy and he was handed over to Sheriff Tompkins, who took him to Woodstock jail.

Dr. Demore Ross, sworn, said: I am a practitioner in Florenceville. I was called to Wallace's house on the morning of the murder. I saw Nick lying on a lounge. There were two wounds, one on the left side near the hip, and one between the neck and shoulder. The wound on the arm was a slight one. I dressed the wounds. One shot had gone into the bladder. I told him he would get better. I then telephoned to Superintendent King, who got a special train and sent him to Woodstock. I saw that revolver before. I found it on the floor between the window and the stove in the kitchen. The shells were in it, but the shots had been fired. I did not see Monacelli since. I did not attend the murdered man at the hospital. I gave the revolver to Sheriff Armstrong.

Solicitor-general—That will close the evidence for the prosecution.

Magistrate Dibblee—Having heard the evidence you are not bound to say anything, but whatever said will be taken down in writing and will be given against you at the trial. I advise you to say nothing. Do you wish to make any statement?

Monacelli—I have nothing to say, but I would like to have time to get my witnesses.

Magistrate Dibblee—The evidence is sufficient, and I will commit you to the county jail until the next session of the court to be held in this county on Oct. 19 next.

The prisoner was then removed to the jail by Chief Kelly.

FORESTERS' OUTING AT WELSFORD SATURDAY

Saturday was a red letter day in the history of the Independent Order of Foresters in this city. About 1,000 people attended the annual blueberry picnic at Welsford and saw Past High Chief Ranger Duncan G. Lingley, chamberlain of the city, decorated with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor and a magnificent jewel by the High Standing Committee. All the usual picnic games and dancing were present and furnished music. The picnic left the city on two trains. At 9 o'clock the band went up but the majority of those who attended went up at 1 o'clock. When the last train reached the platform a procession was formed, consisting of the members of the High Standing Committee, with an escort of Royal Foresters from the New Brunswick and St. John Encampments. The line of march was a point directly in front of the pavilion where a circle was formed with High Chief Ranger George W. Merissee and Past High Chief Ranger D. G. Lingley in the centre. The band was massed outside the circle and played Hail to the Chief.

After the music ceased H. C. R. Merissee addressed P. H. C. R. Lingley. He stated that some time ago the High Court of New Brunswick had recommended to the Supreme Court that the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor be presented to Mr. Lingley. This recommendation, he said, had been endorsed and it then became his pleasant duty to make the presentation. This part of the ceremony was completed by H. C. R. Merissee pinning the cross to Chamberlain Lingley's coat.

The Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor is a Maltese cross of gold and enamel on a wreath surmounted by a royal crown. It is pendant from a royal blue ribbon, with three clasps. The inscription is as follows: "Presented to Duncan G. Lingley, P. H. C. R. of New Brunswick, for distinguished services to the order, 1909."

H. C. R. Merissee next presented to Chamberlain Lingley the jewel from the members of the High Standing Committee. This is in the form of a gold and white enamel nine pointed star. The background is gold and there are five pointed blue enamel stars between the points of the large star. In the centre of the large star there is a moose head in gold on a red field enclosed in a belt of blue surmounted by a royal gold crown.

The jewel will be worn pendant from a blue ribbon round the neck with a wide sash of royal blue worn from the left shoulder.

The members of the High Standing Committee present were: G. W. Merissee, H. C. R.; G. A. Fryers, H. V. C. R.; F. W. Emmerson, H. S.; J. V. Russell, H. T. B.; D. Mullin, H. Physician; A. A. Wilson, H. Counsellor, and H. W. Woods, P. H. C. R.

After the double ceremony was over all dispersed to enjoy themselves on the grounds.

The decorations which had been put up by James McKenna were much admired. A handsome arch had been placed at the entrance to the grounds and there was a profusion of bunting with many artistic effects. The day was most enjoyably spent and tired, but happy, the party returned to the city at 9 o'clock.

RACE FIGHT IN MONTREAL STREET

Montreal, Aug. 22—Twenty-five Jews and French-Canadians attacked one another in St. Lawrence street Saturday night, arousing a race feeling that led to two hours of street fighting near the corner of St. Lawrence and Demontigny streets, while 500 people jostled together on the pavement watching the riotous proceedings.

It was the angriest street scene that Montrealers have witnessed for a long time and it has produced a harvest of indignation that will be unloaded in the recorder's court by the Hebrews, who are loud in their protests, owing to the fact that only Jews were arrested while the French-Canadians who, they claim, started the fighting by pulling an old man's lengthy whiskers, were allowed to escape.

Street cars and vehicles were blocked in St. Lawrence street while the fighting lasted. Innocent spectators were dragged into the fracas and had their coats pulled off, their shirts torn and their faces bruised by fist blows and falls in the street. Only one policeman was on the scene to cope with the fight at the start, this being Desmarceaux, whose strength and weight-throwing abilities are renowned in the leading Canadian cities. But he had all he could do to handle the situation and the only result was the arrest of three Jews who claim they are innocent of disturbing the peace, whereas the French-Canadians all managed to escape. The fighting started shortly after five in the afternoon and lasted until after 7 o'clock.

WILL AUDIT THE MONCTON ACCOUNTS

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 21.—At a meeting of the civic finance committee this morning it was decided that pursuant to the request of Magistrate Kay the city auditor be instructed at the next visit to make an accurate audit of the civic and police court books and records and adopt a system of bookkeeping for the office which will be in the best interests of the city. There was a warm discussion over the intimation made by a local newspaper that lawyers for the prosecution in the Kay inquiry were denied access to the city books and the city clerk read lengthy correspondence on the subject between himself and the complainant, George L. Harris. The city clerk also referred to an intimation made in George W. Fowler's address yesterday that the audit might be beneficial in other civic departments and said he was ready to have an audit at any time.

NO SIGN OF LOST CHILD ON SUNDAY

Stellarton, N. S., Aug. 22—This was the fifth day since the disappearance of the two-year-old child of a Belgian miner from his father's house into the woods and it has not been found.

Two thousand men, in organized form tramped the woods from 9 till after 3 o'clock today and they came back this afternoon with the same story that has been told daily since last Tuesday—"No sign of the child."

The searchers today were drawn from the towns of Trenton, New Glasgow, Westville, Lourdes and Stellarton. They returned discouraged and the organized search will end, though tomorrow many will likely go out again individually. The search has been thoroughly conducted under Mayor Campbell, or Stellarton. The child can hardly be alive now.

MAHOGANY ROAD FIRE

Early yesterday morning the house belonging to Fred Moore on the Mahogany road with most of its contents was completely destroyed by fire. The flames were from Fairville and the department turned out with their hose cart. Unfortunately the house was situated outside the fire limits and the hose was found useless. The firemen went on, however, to the scene to help the owner save his property. By that time the flames had made such headway that it was found impossible to enter any of the rooms.

As near as can be ascertained the family were asleep when the house caught fire. They were awakened by the smoke and got out just in time, being barely able to save a few pieces of furniture from the lower story. The fire seems to have started in the kitchen. Mr. Moore places his loss at about $1,200. There was some insurance.

MONCTON NEWS

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 22.—William C. Knight received a telegram Saturday conveying news of the death of his father, Joseph Knight, which occurred Saturday morning at Oak Bluffs (Mass.), the summer home of his son, George Knight. Deceased was eighty-two years old. He was a native of Gravesend (Eng.), and came to Charlottetown (P. E. I.) fifty years ago. Two years ago he went to the States to live with his son.

A barn belonging to Theophilus M. Leblanc at Fox Creek was destroyed by fire this afternoon. The barn was filled with hay, and also contained wagons and other articles, all of which were destroyed.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

For all Liver and Stomach Troubles

It has just transpired that a number of hotel men in the city have been receiving bundles of Free Speech through the mails. The hotel men say that no letter accompanied the bundles and that there was nothing to indicate what they were to do with the papers. In no case could it be learned that the hotel men had sent for them and the bundles were returned unopened to the post office authorities.

The hotel proprietors say that they feel sore over the matter. In one instance when the first bundle was received a week ago Friday the proprietor naturally enough was curious to know what it contained as there was no clue to show from whom it had come. He opened it but as soon as he saw it contained about twenty-five copies of Free Speech he tied it up and sent it back to the post office at once with a message to the effect that he would have nothing to do with it.

Last Friday when a similar bundle ar-
